FROM WASHINGTON.

(BY OUR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.)

Washington, Feb. 3, 1910

Senator Lodge caused a veritable sensation on the Democratic side of the Senate when he submitted official tables of statistics showing that the increase in prices is world wide and prevails in free trade countries.

The Massachusetts Senator pointed out that the increased production of gold, which is the measure of value is an important factor in higher prices. He showed that cotton, which has been on the free list for half a century, has shown a steady advance in price.

Hides were placed on the free list and the duty on boots and shoes reduced from 25 to 10 per cent by the Payne law, Mr. Lodge said, and yet, since the enactment of that law, the price of both hides and shoes has increased.

When Mr. Bacon insisted that the high price of beef was due to the tariff, the Massachusetts Senator replied that this could not be so inasmuch as this country is one of the greatest exporters of cattle and beef in the world.

He infomed Mr. Bacon that, under absolute free trade, not a pound of beef would be imported into the United States. Mr. Bacon, in his effort to hold the tariff responsible for higher prices, became somewhat confounded when Mr. Lodge wanted to know about lumber.

Most of the Democratic Senators including Mr. Bacon, were opposed to the placing of lumber on the free list when then the Payne bill was before Congress.

Replying, Mr. Bacon said he had voted for a duty of $1.25 a thousand feet of lumber, not to protect the American lumbermen, but because he regarded this duty as a revenue tariff. There was general laughter when Mr. Lodge replied that he was amused at at the flexibility of a revenue tariff and how the revenue limit increased as it approached a home industry.

Postal savings banks are to be opposed in the Senate by the leading contitutional lawyers on the Democratic side on the ground that this legislation can not be enacted under authority of the Constitution.

Senators Bailey and Rayner will lead the fight against postal savings depositories. Mr. Bailey has announced that he was partly responsible for the defeat of this legislation in the last Congress and that he will be glad if he can take like credit at the close of this Congress.

He fears that the goverment is invading a field which should be left to private enterprise and that ultimately the establishment of postal banks will be followed by other legislation for regulatidg private business and centralizing goverment in Washington.

Senator Carter, in charge of the bill, is one of the most skillful parliamentarians in Congress and under his leadership there is little doubt that the Republicans will be practically united in carring out the platform pledge of the Chicago convention.

A STARTLING STATEMENT

New York Medical Authorities Claim Dyspesia to be a Pre-Disposing Cause of Consumption

The post-mortem statistics of the big New York hospitals show that some cases of consumption are due, at least indirectly, to unchecked dyspepsia, especially when the victim was predisposed to tuberculosis.

Dyspepsia wears out the body and brain. The weakened, irritable stomach being unable to digest the food, the body does not receive the required nourishment, and the victim becomes thin, weak and haggard. As a result, the body becomes a fertile field in which the germs of disease may lodge and flourish.

Therefore, the person who permits dyspepsia to progress unhindered is guilty of contributing toward the development of one of the most insidious and fatal diseases known to mankind.

Dyspepsia may be completely eradicated if properly treated. We sell a remedy that we positively guarantee will completely relieve indigestion or dyspepsia, or the medicine used during the trial will cost the user nothing.

This remedy has been named Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. Certainly no offer could be more fair, and our offer should be proof positive that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are a dependable remedy.

Inasmuch as the medicine will cost you nothing if it does not benefit you, we urge you who are suffering with indigestion or dyspepsia to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. A 25-cent box contains enough medicine for fifteen days' treatment. For chronic cases we have two larger sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Rochester only at our store—The Rexall Store. The B. J. Pulver drug store, Tecumseh, Mich.

Most counties in England have their idiomatic expressions to denote left handedness, and they are often prefixed to the unfortunate left handed child's name. In London the term is kack handed, the word being also equivalent to awkward. In Lancashire it is k-pawed, in Yorkshire gallock or gawk handed, an expression dating back to at least the seventeenth century. In Derbyshire are used the terms keg handed, cork handed and corky handed, while in the Teesdale district cuddy handed is common and in Nottinghamshire wallet handed.

In the south of England special terms to denote left handedness are also found. In Dorset it is scrame handed and in Devonshire coochy handed. In Scotland we find gawk handed and in the west cawry handed. In Ireland a left handed man is called a kithogue. Tim Healy used this word in a speech at East Wicklow, in which he said that Mr. O'Kelly could fight with his left hand and had already given his opponent some "kithogues" that would spoil his political beauty during the contest.—London Chronicle.

STATE CAPITOL BRIEFS.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 27.—Secretary of State Martindale has been named by Governor Warner to attend the National Legislation convention of the American Automobile association, which will be held February 17 to 19, in Washington, D. C.

According to a report issued by the state labor bureau, Flint's army of factory employes increased from 4,489 in 1908 to 10,265 in 1909. The number of factories has increased from 111 to 128, and the average daily wages of all employes has been increased.

The state railway commision has a map filed by the Grand Rapids Electric company, showing the proposed route of an electric line from Mt. Pleasant to Gladwin, via Clare.

A record was established by the board of the state auditors last week at their meeting, when 508 claims were allowed and nearly $16,000 was paid out.

The annual reports of the auditor general's department have been completed and delivered to the state. A great deal of interesting data is found in this year's report.

Govenor Warner has removed from office Alger J. Libby, supervisor of West Branch township, Marquette county. Libby was found guilty of abusing the privileges of his office and discriminating against certain contractors in regard to the payment for work done on the roads of that county. His successor will be appointed at the next regular meeting of the township board, in accordance with the law.

The difficulties the early Virginian colonists had with their live stock is curiously illustrated by the fact that in the colony of Massachusetts Bay a red calf was cheaper than a black one, experience having shown that the former was more likely to be attacked by wolves owing, it was thought, to the wolves mistaking it for a deer.

Decayed Families.

We have known Moneys who were entirely ignorant of the race from which they came. Sometimes it is far otherwise. The family of Conyers is a remarkable example. It ended in the last baronet, Sir Thomas, who died in 1810 without male issue. He would have passed away in the parish workhouse of Chesterle street had not Robert Burtees of Mainsforth, the historian of the country palatine of Durham, and other generous neighbors intervened. To the last he showed that he was well aware of the dignity of the house he represented and for some time declined to receive assistance from his friends. Another remarkable case is that of Grenville. This family was noteworthy in the wars of the Caroline period, yet as time passed sank so low that two of its members were at one time receiving parish relief, and one of them, evidently by some mistake which it is difficult to account for, was twice picked for high sheriff at the very time he was a pauper.—London Athenaeum.

DOCTOR HARTZOG'S LECTURE.

The community for the past week has been looking forward to the lecture at the Baptist Church by the pastor with active curiosity. As the date approached the interest increased and after the entertainment was over all agreed that the Doctor had exceded our highest expectations.

We consess our surprise that our dignified preacher should uncork so large a supply of amusing and instructive stories, each with its point, pointing a moral, that his address was bringing out. No more does this month of Frbauary need sunshiee, han this old world needs the sense that the lecturer was teaching and recommending to his hearers.

The writer can not but think that had our good Doctor come to us from some great city and demanded fifty cents each admission, we would have thought it fully worth the price.

We may congratulate ourselves for having among us a popular lecturer of ability and distinction.

Those who did not attend simply must look back to a lost opportunity. Those that were there had an entertaining hour and a half, and went home inspired by the vision of the worth and help of great life purposes, honest persistant effort to that end, and a cheerful faith in the exalted outcome of such a life. Doctor, we congratulate you.

We give a few definitions of words in common use from the Foolish Dictionary, which are not so foolish as they look.

Advice—A commodity peddled by your lawyer and given away by your mother-in-law but impossible to dispose of yourself, Famous as the one thing which it is more blessed to give than receive.

About 30 of the Sunday School class and friends of Mrs. Albert Waring were entertained at her home last Saturday. A picnic dinner was served and a very pleasant time was enjoyed by every one.

MRS. ANNA ALLEN

Mrs. Allen who will be 99 years old should she live until next May, deserves some little mention. For the last two years she has been unable to get around the house without help and has been living with her daughter Mrs. John Loomis, but her mental faculties are bright and clear and she can read or sew without her glasses. She busies herself in making handkercheif's for her friends, and takes much pride in her work. Her general health is good, and she is only waiting for the call that takes her to her final home.

CHARITY BALL

Once more we come before you in the interest of charity. We hope to have a noble response to our invitations for the good of the work. Let everyone interested in the cause we plead, respond in some way at this time, for the calls are many and the needs are great, any little mite will serve to swell the fund.

We aim to give you a pleasant evening in some way and your presence will make us glad, as it will prove that you are interested in our work.

"OANDLEMAS DAY HALF YOUR WOOD AND HALF YOUR HAY."

As Told by the Ground Hog.

Wednesday dawned bright and beautiful and the ground hog, true to tradition came forth, gazed on the lovely sunshine, shook his head and retired for another snoze of six weeks. We had hoped that gentle spring would be spared the infliction of harboring winter but fate seems inexorable and so it must be. Anyway it is well to know what to expect and "would'nt you like to be the coal man," is the latest.

SUBJECT: "SOULLY ANTHRACITE."

It is with pleasure that we announce to coal users and the general public of this city, that the above coal has been tested by the United States Geological Survey Department, located in the city of Pittsburg, Pa., and their findings as a result of this test was that "SCULLY ANTHRACITE" coal comes fully within their approval and they have stamped it as being a pure Anthracite Hard coal.

Some local dealers have raised complaint and have tried to make an issue out of the fact that it was not a Genuine Anthracite coal. In this connection, beg to advise you that the United States Government is the largest purchaser of coal in the world, and they have several different departments to analyze coal for just such purposes, and their determination and decision in the matter is accepted by all local coal dealers throughout the United States as being final and satisfrctory. Consequently, S. W. & L. E. Temple, of your city, will be glad at any and all times to show you this coal burning in their office, and the number of satisfied users in your city speaks for itself.

We make the claim that Scully Anthracite coal contains more heat per ton than the majority of Hard coals on the market. Further, that after one once gets accustomed to burning same, they will not go back to other hard coals that they have previously burned. When you consider the difference in price, or in other words, how cheaply you can buy this coal, all conditions taken into consideration, it appeals not only to the poor, but the rich and poor alike.

We take this means of thanking you for the patronage you have seen fit to give our agent in your city, who we cheerfully stand behind in their guarantee to you. Price $7.00 per ton delivered. If not delivered, $6.50 per ton. Respectfully,

W. J. SCULLY,
Detroit, Mich.

CAN'T BE SEPARATED

Some Tecumseh People Have Learned How to Get Rid of Both.

Backache and kidney ache are twin brothers.

You can't separate them.

And you can't get rid of the backache until you cure the kidney ache.

If the kidneys are well and strong, the rest of the system is pretty sure to be in vigorous health.

Doan's Kidney Pills make strong, healthy kidneys.

William W. Shurtz, Kilbuck street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times for ten years and I have received such great benefit that I gladly endorse them. Whenever I feel that my kidneys are not doing their work as they should I get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and a short use brings me relief." Jimmy's Recitation.

Jimmy is one of the most enthusiastic members of his Sunday school. He is usually very quiet, but when, soon after he joined, a storm prevented many members of his class from coming to take their parts in a long planned entertainment Jimmy could not endure in silence the distress of his teacher.

"Hi can speak a piece," he said bashfully.

"Oh, can you? What is it about?"

"'Bout the beasts that went with Noah."

"Well, said the distracted teacher, "I haven't time to hear it now, but I think it ought to help fill up. Thank you, Jimmy."

When Jimmy's name was called the small man mounted the platform, put his hands in his pockets and proudly and loudly spouted the following:

The helk and the helephant hentered the hark
When the helephant hopened the hall.
The helk hasked the helephant, "What's to heat?"
Said the helephant, "'Ay is hall."
The helk and the helephant hate the 'ay;
Said the helk, with a heloquent sigh,
"Hi 'ope you are 'appy this 'orrible day."
And the helephant hanswered, "Hay."

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Tecumseh Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1—comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2—comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Tecumseh proof:

Elias C. Brisbin, N. Democrat St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I began to suffer from kidney trouble twenty years ago and all my efforts for relief were unsuccessful. I had severe backaches and the kidney secretions were high colored and highly irregular in passage. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and they promptly relieved me. I have since kept this remedy in the house and whenever I have taken it, good results have followed." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. PARIS IN FURORE.

Postponement of Performance of Rostand's Play Due to Actor Who Takes Part of the Cock.

Paris, Feb. 3.—Paris is fairly humming with gossip since the announcement of the further postponement of the first performance of Edmond Rostand's barnyard play, "Chantecler." Although it is now positively stated that a dress rehearsal will be held on Saturday night, Paris is sceptical. The news has leaked out that it is not the difficulties in regard to the flood and lights that are causing the postponement, but M. Guitry's aversion to playing his part of the cock. When disgusted in the costume designed for the cock, and without the advantage of his wonderful facial expression, which cannot be seen in the head dress of the cock, Guitry feels that he cannot make an impression in the part and so refuses to appear. The management is postponing the premiere [illegible] everything in its power to change Guitry's decision.

Meanwhile there is a perfect literary and journalistic war over the production. All the papers and magazines which have printed excerpts from the play will be excluded from the dress rehearsal.

HORSE SOLD FOR $40,000.

John E. Madden Has Purchased the Famous Fitzherbert.

New York, Feb. 3.—The mystery regarding the purchase of Fitzherbert, considered by many to have been the greatest race horse in training last year, has been cleared up. John E. Madden, master of Hamburg Place and the breeder and owner of so many great thoroughbreds, admitted that he had exchanged $40,000 in cash for the celebrated son of Ethelbert and Magnolia. For reasons best known to himself, the shrewd Sanford, former owner of Fitzherbert and the purchaser from Madden of King James, concluded to sell Fitzherbert. He informed Frank Taylor, his brother-in-law, that the horse was for sale, and the announcement was made on Wednesday that Taylor had secured a purchaser for the horse in a man named Kohler. Today, Mr. Kohler said that he knew nothing about the transaction and could not imagine how his name became mixed up with it.

Later Madden, who is in New York to attend the sale of light harness horses at Madison Square Garden, admitted that he had bought Fitzherbert, and added:

"I consider Fitzherbert the best horse in America, and maybe in the world, for racing and breeding purposes."

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

ALLEGAN—Albert Bush, aged twenty-five, has been sentenced to serve from five to fifteen years in Jackson on a charge of assault on a fourteen-year-old girl.

BAY CITY—John Smithers, a miner, forty-five years old, was instantly killed at the Akron mine when a coal car which he was driving overturned and crushed him. A widow survives.

KALAMAZOO—The meat boycott here is having its effect. Unable to longer contend with the strike, two markets in the laboring district have closed their doors.

PORT HURON—J. R. Elliott of Port Huron and Myron Mills of Marysville have purchased 6,657 acres of timber land in the state of Washington. Logging operations will be started at once.

MANISTEE—Attacked with appendicitis last Thursday, and undergoing an operation three days later, Charles Donahue, rector of the Holy Trinity church, died Tuesday evening. He was forty-two years old and leaves a mother, brother and sister.

BAY CITY—Wage earners in the Saginaw valley have signified intentions of asking for an increase on May 1. It is stated that the miners will demand an increase of 10 per cent, while masons have notified their employers that they will ask for a raise of 5 cent an hour.

KALAMAZOO—It is announced that during the coming year the Commonwealth Power company will erect here one of the largest electric plants in the state, from which will be furnished a power for the M. U. R., as well as power and light for manufacturing concerns at Kalamazoo, Battle Creek and several other places.

GRAND RAPIDS—At the annual meeting of the Grand Rapids Board of Trade, held in the armory Tuesday night, banquet covers were laid for 700. The usual routine was followed by the election of officers. Eber A. Knott was chosen president, with John Widdicond and Charles M. Alden vice president. The board of directors for the ensuing year consists of sixteen members.

Wilkesbarre Woman Lawyer Dies.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 3.—Miss Laura Cannon, the well known woman lawyer of this section of the state, is dead after eight months' lingering illness. On July 5, while motoring down the Wilkesbarre mountains, accompanied by James H. Hughes and wife, the automobile in which they were riding overturned, throwing out Mrs. Hughes and Miss Cannon down a steep embankment. Mrs. Hughes was instantly killed, and Miss Cannon sustained a fracture of the spine.

Elevator Drops Eight Floors.

Pittsburg, Feb. 3.—Six workmen were injured, one fatally, when an elevator in an unfinished building in Allegheny fell eight stories Wednesday, landing a mass of timbers and cement iron in the basement.

Livestock Falls Off.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Chicago received only half its normal consignment of livestock Wednesday. The livestock market prices advanced, but retail dealers declared that their rates are not affected. A conspiracy on the part of some of the western stock raisers to retaliate on the public for recent meat boycotts is seen by some stock dealers in yesterday's small receipts. Owing to this scarcity cattle have advanced 16 to 25 cents a hundred weight on the hoof, hogs 5 to 10 cents and sheep 10 to 15 cents.

ANGELL TO GO SOUTH.

Old Trouble Returns to Former President of U. of M.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 3.—Dr. J. B. Angell, president emeritus of the U. of M., has announced to his class in international law that he would be unable to meet them during the next semester, as he had been ordered south by his physician and would leave for Florida the first of next week. His announcement was received with great disappointment.

Dr. Angell has been suffering for some time past with his old enemy, bronchial trouble, and his physician has become insistent that he should go south at once. He will leave for Florida next Tuesday and will be accompanied by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Alexis Angell of Detroit. He will not return till after the worst of the March winds have passed.

the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor. There are two other candidates, L. P. Dickinson of Charlotte and Colon C. Lillie of Coopersville.

Glazier Bondsman Paying the Score.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 3.—Shortly before noon Wednesday a representative of the United States Fidelity & Guarantee company paid into the office of State Treasurer Sleeper the full amount of the indebtedness of this firm to the state as the result of F. P. Glazier's shortage. Attorney General Bird says he has assurances from the remaining three companies that they will do likewise.

Meyer and Congress Differ About Reorganization of Navy.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Conditions in the navy and in congress with reference to naval reorganization are in a chaotic state. It has become known that after Secretary of the Navy Meyer had presented his reorganization plan, and before Chief Constructor Capps had flatly contradicted the secretary's figures and opposed his scheme, the committee stood 16 to 3 in favor of adopting the secretary's recommendation. But Constructor Capps' testimony changed all that. Eliminating Representative Richmond P. Hobson (Ala.), who is expected to be busy pretty much all this session mending his political forces, the committee now stands 9 to 9 on the Meyer plan. Both factions say most emphatically they will stand out forever if necessary to force their own plan on the naval service.

It is the old line and stiff row all over again, raging now with renewed vigor, not only in the navy but in congress as well.

THE WOODEN HORSE.

An Old Time Form of Military Punishment in England.

Torture on a grand scale in England went out with Felton, the assassin of Buckingham, but torture on a small scale continued to be practiced on military offenders down to the eighteenth century. The form most frequently resorted to was that known as the wooden horse, to ride which was the punishment accorded for petty thefts, insubordination and so on. The wooden horse was made of planks nailed together so as to form a sharp ridge or angle about eight or nine feet long. This ridge represented the back of the horse and was supported by four posts or legs about five feet high placed on a stand made movable by truckles. To complete the resemblance to the noblest animal in creation, a head and tail were added.

When a soldier was sentenced either by court martial or by his commanding officer, to ride the horse he was placed on the brute's back, with his hands tied behind him, and frequently enough, in order to increase the pain muskets were fastened to his legs to weigh them down or, as was facetiously said, to prevent the fiery, untamed, barebacked steed from kicking him off.—London Graphic.

Doubtful Praise.

Mr. Faxon was the oldest patron of the "select boarding house" in which he lived, and his landlady sometimes referred people to him for a recommendation of her table. His wish was to praise the food highly, as he could conscientiously do, but one day he overstepped his mark.

"I'm dyspeptic, sir," said a man who had come to Mr. Faxon to make inquiries about the boarding house, "and my food has to be simple and well cooked—no high seasoning, no indigestible compounds."

Mr. Faxon looked at him with a bland and reassuring smile.

"My dear sir," he said in his most impressive manner, "you need have no fears. All I have eaten in the ten years I have been under Mrs. Brown's roof would not interfere with the digestion of the most delicate baby, sir, in the land."

When Lovers Watched the Corpse.

Most curious of the old time superstitions of New England was the custom of requiring lovers to watch the corpse. It associated the hopes of marriage with the silent vigil, was poetic and has only disappeared from the oldest towns within a generation. No obligation of the social conscience was more scrupulously regarded than that a dead body should never be left alone at night. In the earliest days the solemn watchers were old men and women, deacons, selectmen, but as the colonies grew honest lovers with plighted troths were frequently selected for these long vigils.

Exaggerated Cruelty.

A well known gentleman took horse exercise daily, accompanied by a magnificent bloodhound, until he conceived an enthusiasm for cycling, when he altered the program by leaving the bloodhound at home and taking as his companion a dachshund.

The pair were passing through a village recently when a laboring youth remarked to his "pal:"

"If Oi wor proime minister Oi'd put a stop ter this 'ere bicycle business."

"Why?" queried the other.

"Cos it owt ter be stopped, if only for th' sake o' that dog as is a-puffin' along behind theer," rejoined the first speaker. "It ain't sport; it's cruelty to hanimals."

His companion disagreed and said he thought the dog benefited by the exercise.

"Exercise!" retorted the other scornfully. "D'ye call that exercise? You never saw that dog afore 'is master started 'bikin', did yer?"

"No, I didn't."

"Well," said the youth, "'e wor one of the [illegible] 'e you ever clapped eyes on, an' wot's 'e now? 'Is body's dwindled away to nowt, while 'is legs is worn clean darn to th' stumps. Oi repeat, it's cruelty ter hanimals."—London Bystander.

Get His Money's Worth.

A lady palmist was recently prosecuted, and an amusing incident was noted in connection with the case. One of the witnesses called by the police was an individual who did not appear to be overburdened with intelligence. During a smart cross examination defendant's counsel asked him:

"On first going into the room did you pay a shilling fee to the defendant?"

"Yes," was the reply.

"What did she tell you in return for the money?"

"Oh," said the witness, "she towld me lots o' things, some on 'em true, some on 'em half true an' some on 'em less."

"Now," continued the counsel after the laughter had died away, "this is the point I wish to get at: Was there any attempt at impo[illegible] lady impose upon you at all?"

"Oh, dear no!" was the response. "I knowed it wor all gammon, so there couldn't be no imposition. Besides, it wor a bad shillin' as I guv her, to start with!"—London Tit-Bits.

Marriage in Picardy.

A Picardy custom, founded on a broad basis of common sense as well as the idea of complete partnership, is that which puts a new bride through a kind of examination in the trade of her husband. It may, of course, have become something of a burlesque, and the bride may purposely show less dexterity than she need. Still, the consideration of the wife as a helpmate is very clearly shown in the performance. If the young wife's husband be a farmer, she will be asked to harness a horse and cart and to harrow a small piece of land. If her choice has fallen on an ironworker, she must hammer a piece of iron; if on a miller, she must measure out wheat from a basket at the church door; if on a smith, she is supposed to be able to strike the anvil; if on a miller, she has to clean and mend [illegible] other [illegible] ing of [illegible] Picardy [illegible]

Elderly People Helped Free

The last years of life are the sweetest, and yet the most difficult to prolong. It is then that the greatest care is exercised in maintaining bodily health. But the chief care should always be with regard to the food you eat and whether you are digesting it properly. You should not allow yourself to become constipated.

No doubt you have tried salts and cathartic pills, purative tablets, etc, and have come to the conclusion that they are violent in action and do but temporary good. Listen, then, to the voice of experience with regard to a wonderful and mild laxative. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is not new, only we are trying to find new friends for it.

A. A. Fritz of Johnston City, Ill., suffered from stomach trouble for six years and found no cure in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. His wife uses it too with success. We could name hundreds of others. Some heard of it first through neighbors or friends; others through the doctor's offer to send any sufferer from a stomach, liver or bowel complaint a free sample bottle for trial, without charge. If you will send your name and address he will send you a trial bottle direct to your home. If it proves itself as he claims then continue the treatment by buying a 50-cent or $1 bottle of your druggist, as all of them sell it. Old people like children should look for purity, and it is well to mention that the purity of this remedy is vouched for with the U. S. government. Also, though a free bottle is sent to prove its merits, results are always guaranteed from the regular bottles bought of druggists, who will refund your money if it does not satisfy you. Send at least for the free test bottle today.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

PREPARED FOR STRIKE

Operators Say They Have Been Getting On Splendidly With Miners.

Pittsburg, Feb. 7.—It has developed that the coal operators of the Pittsburg district are prepared for a strike April 1, if the miners so desire, and a warning is being issued to the miners. The operators say they have been getting on most friendly not only with union miners but non-union miners, and any move at this time toward a strike will be resented. President J. H. Jones of the Pittsburg-Buffalo company, the biggest independent coal company in the country, said:

"The miners must take into consideration that during the past two years' depression they have received the highest wages ever paid for mining in this district, notwithstanding that the miners in many fields which are unorganized accepted a reduction. The operators who recognize and treat with the miners show by their actions that they are friendly to the miners. I feel confident that the miners and their officials after considering everything very carefully will take care of their friends."

first colored branch of the spreading organization. There was a large attendance at the meeting, including a considerable number of men.

Mrs. L. L. Moorman, president of the Negro Women's Business league, who had arranged the meeting with Mrs. Belmont, said:

"Mrs. Belmont invites us to join her Political Equality association. If politics are dirty, it's the men who have made them dirty, and it is for us to clean them up."

Mrs. Belmont was seated on the platform with Mrs. Henry Villard and Mrs. Ella Hawley Crossett, president of the New York State Woman's Suffrage association, and others. She made a vigorous appeal to her listeners in behalf of her cause.

PASSENGERS ON TRAIN ROBBED

Three Men Held Them Up and Got Their Valuables.

ON MISSOURI PACIFIC ROAD

About $400 and Small Amount of Jewelry Taken—One Cornered and Held Conductor, Second Held Passengers at Bay, and Third Collected Valuables—Posse After Them.

Pittsburg, Kas., Feb. 7.—Three unidentified men held up and robbed the passengers on an eastbound Missouri Pacific passenger train, five miles east of here, during the night. They were unmasked. About $400 and a small amount of jewelry was taken.

The robbers boarded the train, which was a local accommodation running between Coffeyville, Kas., and Nevada, Mo., on the outskirts of Pittsburg. They took seats in the chair car and rode quietly until the train was near Gernell, Kas. There they leaped from their seats, backed Conductor Garrity into a corner and, drawing revolvers, warned him not to call for assistance from other members of the train crew.

One of the robbers then covered the passengers with his revolver. "You will now prepare to give up your valuables," he said. "My partner here will pass among you. Please be quiet."

The partner thereupon produced a gunny sack and started on his collection tour. From each passenger he took everything of value. Money, diamonds, watches and rings; all went into the sack. One woman screamed and fainted. The collector calmly lifted a ring from her finger, picked her purse from the floor, to which it had fallen, and passed on to the next victim. Passengers revived the woman after the robbers left the coach.

Throughout the progress of the robbery the train hurried ahead. None of the crew, with the exception of the conductor, knew a robbery was being perpetrated.

When the lights in the town of Gernell loomed into view several of the passengers at the rear of the coach who had not been reached by the robbers had hopes that they would escape with their valuables, and they began placing them back into their pockets. But they were doomed to disappointment. Just because the train stopped at the station the robbers did not hurry away.

The robber with the sack stripped the last passenger in the car, and then the men dropped off the train and disappeared down an alley into the town. No attempt was made to rob the express car of the train.

Sheriff Merriwether, with a score of deputies, is searching for the men.

Radical Measure to Be Presented to Congress.

DEALING WITH CORPORATIONS

Bill Which Provides For Federal Control Likely Goes to Congress Today. Chief Executive Has Experienced Change of Mind In Past Few Weeks, Believes It Best Plan Possible.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Congress will get today, unless there is some unlooked for derangement of the legislative schedule, the most radical bill it has received—and which has any prospect of becoming law—in the last fifty years, according to experts who are familiar with the course of lawmaking. The Taft federal incorporation bill, which the administration believes will provide a safe method for the national recognition of large combinations and which will at the same time give control of such combinations to the government, will be presented to congress by Senator Clarke (Wyo.) and Representative Parker (N. J.), chairmen of the judiciary committee of the senate and house. The completed draft which is to be submitted to congress now represents, the administration believes, the best plan that can be brought forward.

Taft Changes His Mind.

A few weeks ago the president did not expect to see the incorporation bill become law at the present session of congress. This expectation was based on the belief of Mr. Taft that in matters so important the whole national congress would be unwilling to act conclusively without prolonged consideration. Since the proposition, however, has been made the subject of discussion among public men, the attitude of the administration has changed, and it is now believed the bill may go far along the road toward passage this year, if it does not actually become a law.

Under the proposed plan corporations will be restrained and subjected to regulation which, it would appear, is to be more drastic than that under which the railroads now do business. The principal objection to federal incorporation which so far apparently has not been met is that there is no provision for the control by any state of a corporation which does business within its borders which has a national charter. As the bill is drawn the control of all corporations which take out charters is vested in the United States, and there does not seem to be any method by which a state could inerfere with its operation although it violated state laws.

The Weather Outlook.

Washington, Feb. 7.—In a special bulletin, the weather bureau says that the week beginning today will open with temperature considerably below the average for the season over the eastern portion ow the United States and freezing weather in the gulf states and Florida. Following the cold period in the east the temperature will rise slowly for several days. A storm from the middle west and northwest will reach the Atlantic coast about Thursday.

Dover, N. H., Feb. 7.—The announcement of Mrs. Marilla M. Ricker, a lawyer and leader in the suffrage movement, that she is to be candidate for the governorship has created a sensation. Woman In Detroit Burned So That She Died.

CHURCH JANITOR IS BLAMED

Alleged Alcohol Flames and White Hot Poker Figured In Remedies Offered—Coroner Investigates Death of Hospital Inmate—Warrant For Man's Arrest May Follow.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 7.—Coroner Bennett is investigating the death of Mrs. Paul Sotas, thirty-four years old, 15 Bacon street, who died at Solvay hospital Saturday night as a result of burns. The coroner will lay the facts concerning the woman's death before Prosecutor Van Zile, and it is possible that arrests will follow.

A year ago, Mrs. Sotas suffered a stroke of paralysis, which left her unable to walk. She had various physicians treat her, and finally, about a week ago, the janitor of a Hungarian church in the Eighteenth ward, whose name Coroner Bennett has been unable to learn, guaranteed to cure her for $50.

On Saturday, Jan. 29, the janitor called at the Sotas home to give the woman the first treatment. He took her out of bed and sat her upon a chair, placing her feet on another chair. It is said he then took a wash tub, filled it with boiling water, and began to steam her legs. The steam was so hot that Mrs. Sotas is said to have begged the janitor to stop the treatment, but it is alleged he told her if she was to be cured she must suffer some pain.

When Mrs. Sotas pleaded for him to stop, the janitor is alleged to have poured half a gallon of alcohol into the boiling water, and this cooled the water somewhat. It is claimed he then heated a poker to a white heat and placed it in the boiling water and alcohol. The poker set the alcohol on fire, and the blaze burned Mrs. Sotas terribly. Being paralyzed, the woman was unable to help herself, and when she was finally rescued her limbs were literally cooked. She was treated at her home until last Saturday, when her condition became so serious she was taken to the Solvay hospital, where she died a few hours later.

Panama Has a Carnival.

Panama, Feb. 7.—The carnival season opened Sunday with the formal entry of King Nomo into the city. The festivities are on a scale similar to those at New Orleans. This is the first carnival here.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

United States Senator Flint (Cal.) has announced positively that he will not be a candidate for re-election.

A fire which did damage estimated at between $50,000 and $76,000 occurred at Gallaudet College For the Deaf and Dumb in Maryland, near Washington, Sunday afternoon. The firemen had a hard task in getting it under control. The fire was in the building occupied as men's domitories and recitation rooms.

Ten-year-old Mary Morgan of Wilkesbarre, Pa., risked her life to rescue a one-year-old baby from the burning house of Isaac Levy, a neighbor. Aroused by the cry of fire, she ran out of her home and, seeing the blaze next door, she went into the house. She knew the baby slept in the front room, and, dashing in, she found the little one in its crib. With forethought, she wrapped a tablecloth around the baby to protect it from the flames and ran out with it.

The London Standard says it has been a topic of current gossip in Berlin that the Kaiser condemned the crown prince to forty-eight hours' detention in the latter's palace for an unpremedidated offense, which his majesty held compromised the honor and dignity of the imperial family. The crown prince went to the Theater Des Westens to attend a performance without giving the prescribed notice of his intention.

BEWARE OF CATARRH

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

WHY SALVES FAIL TO CURE ECZEMA

Scientists are now agreeed that the eczema fiems are lodged not in the outer skin or epidermis, but in the inner skin. Hence, a penetrating liquid is required, not an outward salve that clogs the pores.

We recommended to all eczema patients the standard prescription Oil of Wintergreen as compounded in liquid form known as D. D. D. Prescription. A trial bottle of this D. D. D. AN ALPINE CLIMBER.

How a Girl Distinguished Herself on New Year's Day.

By CLARA A. BURTON.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"An odd New Year's, but a grand one," thought Marcia Wells as she paused for a moment on a spur of the Alps and gazed down upon what seemed the world outspread before her.

Five years she had been traveling now into many remote parts of the world—studying, investigating, exploring—a strong, self confident and courageous girl from the first, and gaining experience and new ambitions with her progress until now, at the end of only five years, she was gaining a reputation as a mountain climber, a student explorer, a writer of travels. [illegible] exultation in her eyes as they looked out across the world, dwarfed by height and distance.

With the conquering of obstacles was coming a broader, more earnest purpose in life that was above personality, and, moreover, over this day was a shadow that made even the conquering of the great heights of ambition seem trivial and small.

Even as they started up the mountain they had passed a white faced guide with a story of his party being caught by a snowslide and carried over a precipice. He was the only one saved and had been swept many rods down the mountain side and saved himself only at the very brink of the precipice by cutting the connecting rope.

The severed bit of cord still dangled from his waist, overlooked and forgotten in the horror of the catastrophe.

And among the party were friends and acquaintances of Marcia Wells met with on her travels. They had started to climb the very mountain she was going up, and by rapid progress she had hoped to meet them somewhere near the top.

And now all that was left was the guide, stumbling and slipping down the mountain, white faced, hatless and disheveled.

They had listened to his story, their own faces whitening, but nothing could be done, so Marcia Wells had said she would go on and climb the mountain as planned.

TOLD HIM TO SWING HER GENTLY TO AND FRO.

They were now more than two-thirds of the way up, and Marcia Wells was standing upon a narrow shelf of the spur, so narrow that only her heels held, with her toes projecting over, but her face was calm and her nerves steady.

Many times had she been in such places before. On either side were the guides, grasping the rope which secured them together and holding it taut to assist her in rounding the almost sheer wall of the spur.

But for a long time she stood there gazing, then slowly, inch by inch, for that was the only way, she continued to edge her way across.

"The signorina would better have taken the other route," the advance guide said anxiously, "and even now it will be easier to go back. This way is shunned even by the more reckless of the guides."

"It is the way the other party went," Marcia answered briefly. "Maybe it was a mistake on their part, but it is too late to change that now. They started this way and were intending to scale the sheer wall beyond, the guide told us. It must have been near here that the slide struck them. Doubtless, from his story, they all perished, but until we have absolute proof to the contrary there is a chance they did not. It is for us to find out. Ah!"

The exclamation was a startled one, and she raised a curved palm above her eyes in quick inquiry and gazed long and earnestly into the depths below.

"Henri," she called quickly, "you and Fritz tighten the rope and hold it firmly against the wall of the rock. I am going to lean out far enough to see over that bulge yonder, and the rope must sustain me."

Both of the guides whitened.

"It may be death," gasped Henri in remonstrance. "It is dangerous as you are now, and if you lean out your heels may slip, and then—and then you will go down and drag us with you. It may be death."

"It may be life for the ten persons the snow carried over. I do not know, but there is the edge of something dark just over the bulge of rock, and I thought I saw it stir. You may hold your knives ready, and if I fall you can cut the rope quickly and save yourselves. Now!"

They pressed the rope sharply against the rock wall behind and braced themselves as firmly as possible to hold it from slipping or swaying. Marcia, without even looking at them again, leaned out, and out, and out, until only the rope sustained her weight, her heels resting against the narrow shelf keeping her in position. Then, after what seemed an endless suspense to the men at the end of the rope, her hand motioned for them to draw her back to her footing.

"Yes, it is the party," she said as she regained her balance, "and some of them are alive. We must go down to them."

"But the rope is not long enough," both guides protested in a breath, "and we cannot"—

"Yes, I think we can," Marcia said "or at least we can try. There are several fissures large enough for our heels to grasp. One of us will stay here, another be let down to a fissure as far as the rope will reach, and so on. There are three of you guides and myself. Four lengths of the rope will reach down to the party, I think. You have plenty of strong twine, and that can be used to draw the rope up from shelf to shelf as the party are rescued."

"A girl could never draw a heavy body up this wall," fearfully, "and—and if the rope should slip away and be lost"—

"We will take that risk. And I shall be strong enough to draw them up. I have done such things before. Now, Henri," as she worked her way along the shelf to his side and motioned for the other guides to follow, "you will stay here and lower the rest of us to the next fissure, then fasten the twine to the rope and let it down for Fritz to lower Gaspard and myself to the next fissure; then Gaspard will lower me, and I will fasten the rope to some rock projection, or if I cannot find one I will drill a hole in the rock and drive in a spike.

"Then I will go down hand over hand and see if any of the party are able to help themselves.

"If they are, I will climb back to my fissure and draw them up, or perhaps some of them will be able to help me. If not, I will have to go down to fasten each one separately, then climb back and draw him up.

"And, now, mind, all of you," her voice ringing sharp, "there must not be a hand to tremble or an eye to waver. On each of us the lives of all will depend."

"Perhaps one of us men would better go down to the lowest fissure," hesitated Henri.

"No; I will go myself. I can do the work better, I think, and my muscles have been trained for and by such work. It may be the entire party are alive and we can save them all."

They started to follow the plan the girl had laid down. Marcia, having assumed the leadership, naturally took it upon herself to be the first one lowered.

The rope having been fastened about her waist, she was lowered to the fissure below. The distance was not great, but only a steady pair of eyes, swinging, as she did, over a giddy height, could have enabled her to maintain her equanimity.

Having reached the fissure, she unbound the rope. It was drawn up, and Fritz was next lowered, then Gaspard.

When the three were ready to go to step lower Marcia, still taking the lead, was lowered to the next fissure, and Gaspard followed.

It was now Marcia's part to do the rest alone.

But this step was more dangerous than the others, for there was but one pair of arms to bear her weight, and the distance was greater than either of the two former descents.

The brave girl made a loop at the end of the rope, and, instead of having it placed about her waist, took it in her hands that she might drop whatever distance the rope would not reach.

And so, swinging by her two hands, she was lowered to the rope's full length.

There still remained six feet between her and a rocky projection on which there was a surface as many feet square. She called to Gaspard to move three feet to the left. He did so, and she called again to him to move two feet farther in the same direction. Then she told him to swing her gently to and fro from the cliff. When directly over the proper place she let go and safely landed on the rock.

Tying the end of the rope around a point of rock, she completed her journey.

It was only after a day and night and another day of such hardihood and daring as was told at the inns and chalets for many a long year that the work was finished.

Even the guides, fired by the example of Marcia and perhaps also by solicitude for the other guides of their party, seemed to be unconscious of fear and hunger and weariness.

When at the end of the second day they reached the foot of the mountain the rescuers were almost as exhausted as the party they had saved, and from the palms of Marcia Wells' hands nearly all the skin had been worn by the rope.

But three days later, although her hands were still bandaged, she said goodby to the rest of the party and started off to begin the new year in quest of another mountain to climb.

ANDERSONVILLE

THE DEATH TRAP OF THE BOYS IN BLUE DURING THE REBELLION.

The Old Stockade and Prison Pens Are Still in Commission, but the Andersonville of Today is Quite Different.

Andersonville, Ga., Feb. 5, '10

Editor Herad:

During a recent business trip through the South, it was my good fortune to visit the National Cemetery, and the old Stockade Prison Pens at Andersonville, Ga., and some friends have requested me to write of Andersonville, as it looks today, believing it might be of interest to some of your readers.

I spent Sunday, Jan. 16, at this historical, and had a most interesting [illegible] day. Leaving Macon at 8 p. m., Saturday, I reached Andersonville at 9:30 that evening, the only passenger for that station, and found the town in darkness, the depot closed, and not a light to be seen except a small bonfire around which some colored boys were playing. One of them kindly offered to pilot me to a hotel, already having visions of the good things he would buy with the twenty-five cents I offered him.

The hotel is a private house, where strangers are sometimes taken in and after repeated knocking, the sleepy landlord admitted me and gave me a room.

The following morning was clear, the air warm and delightful, and after the usual southern breakfast of corn-pone, rice, yams, coffee and bacon. I went out to view the town and found that Andersonville consisted of a railroad station, three small, one story unpainted stores, about seventy-five frame dwellings, and a population of about two hundred people, half of whom are colored.

The town is situated in a rolling country, sixty miles southwest of Macon on the Central railroad and is a typical southern village—sleepy, dull and quiet, surrounded by cotton fields and scattering pine timber. I venture to say that no town in all the world, of the same size and appearance, has such world-wide notoriety as Andersonville, and it hardly seemed possible to me that this little village was the scene of one of the most inhuman and horrible tragedies ever known in civilized war-fare.

Procuring a rig, I drove about a mile distant to the National Cemetery, which is located on a hill and consists of about 40 acres, enclosed by a brick wall of rather artistic design, and pleasing effect. A beautiful front entrance bears the words, "Andersonville National Cemetery," and nearby is the neat little office and home of the superintendent, where all visitors are requested to register.

This silent city of the dead is indeed a most beautiful spot, with its plants and fine shruberry, with its monuments, beautiful in design and workmanship, as erected by various northern states, with its clean graveled walks, its long rows of white marble slabs, and above it all, the black-green foliage of the magnolia trees glistening in the sunlight.

Within this enclosure are buried 13,000 northern soldiers, all of whom died in the stockade prison pen, half a mile distant, and as you look upon row after row of white slabs, so close together that they almost touch, marking the graves of thousands upon thousands, what thoughts must fill the mind of the northern visitor. As you walk down the long lines covering acres of ground and read the inscriptions from Mich., Indiana, Ohio, New York and every northern state, you think of the homes in those states made miserable and lonely by the cruel fate of war, but above all else comes to you the thought that none of these men were killed in battle—that they did not die facing the bullets of the enemy, but that they met death a thousand times more horribie, through brutal treatment, starvation and neglect.

Is it possible for us of the present generation, to understand or realize all they suffered and endured as we stand at their graves nearly fifty years afterward? Can we begin to understand their torture as they lived for weeks and months, their bodies covered with vermin and scurvey, slowly starving on scant and unfit rations, dying from fever and pestilence, with no care nor protection, exposed to the hot sun by day and the chilly dews by night, no tents, no covering, no shelter, whatever, from rain or storms—thrown into a pen to die of filth and starvation. Today you look at their beautiful resting place, look down over the valley and the peaceful, quiet country surrounding them, and you think of our glorious nation, with its peace and plenty and prosperity, and with bowed head you honor those soldier dead as among the great heroes of the civil war.

About three hundred yards from the cemetery is the famous stockade prison, now known as Prison Park. It is located on two hillsides, sloping together, and in the little valley between them is a fine spring brook.

This noted prison pen was 1,540 feet long, 750 feet wide and contained 27 acres. The stockade was built of hewed pine logs, eight to ten inches in diameter, set upon end in the ground with eighteen feet above the surface, and all securely fastened together. Every 90 feet was a sentry box, constantly occupied by an armed sentinel. Seventeen feet inside the stockade was the dead line and any prisoner who crossed it, was immediately shot. The entire enclosure was surrounded by eight forts, located in commanding positions at the top of the hills with guns aimed at the prison pens. In the southwest corner was starfort, the largest of them all, in which the officers quarters were located. Also, the office of the commander in charge, Captain Wirz.

Some of the brick foundations of his office still remains, and the formation and embankments of all the forts are today just as they were when occupied during the war. There were three main entrances facing the west toward the railroad and the town. Prisoners were brought from the train, taken to starfort, money and valuables taken from them, and in hundreds of cases, stripped of their uniforms and thrown into the "pen" clothed only in underclothing.

Below starfort and near the brook was the rebel camp, cook shanties, etc., where such food as they had for prisoners was prepared. The timber from which the stockade was built was cut inside the inclosure, leaving the inside space absolutely bare, not a tree nor a shrub for shelter, and even the stumps were dug up by the prisoners for firewood until the entire space was only a strip of white sand without a stick or stone.

Outside of the stockade was thick pine timber, which the prisoners begged they might cut and provide shelter for themselves, but this they were always refused. This stockade was built in 1863, and was almost completed at the close of the war. During the last year of its use, as a prison, from 30,000 to 45,000 prisoners were in the pen nearly all the time, the largest number at any one time was said to be 51,000.

Imagine if you can, 40,000 men shut up within an enclosure of 27 acres of barren sand, with no shelter from sun or rain, scant clothing and miserable food, eaten alive by vermin, and surrounded by conditions too horrible for description, and you have a fair idea of the Andersonville horror, unparalled in the annals of history.

During the last few months, conditions were so terrible that prisoners in the stockade died at the rate of one every 22 minutes, or about 70 every day. Their bodies were thrown into wagons, taken to the cemetery, a few yards away and buried in trenches from 200 to 500 feet long and from two to three feet deep, without coffins or clothing to cover them, and so close together that each man was allowed twelve inches of space. The strongest of the prisoners from the pen were detailed to do this work and forced to bury their own comrades in graves which they expected to soon occupy themselves.

At the close of the war, the government immediately took possession of this cemetery, enclosed it and repaired it, placed markers with the number, name, rank, regiment, company and date of death of 13,000, leaving about 500 marked as unknown, whom it was impossible to identify.

Prison Park is owned and managed by the National Woman's Relief Corps, and like the cemetery, is well kept and beautiful. Many northern state monuments are erected on these grounds and among them is the Michigan monument, which is most beautiful in design and proportion, and has a fine location. Somehow it seemed to me about the best of them all. Mr. J. T. Bickell is the present care-taker at Prison Park. He seemed pleased to visit with me because I came from Michigan, as his home is in Kokomo, Ind., and he has few visitors from this section of the country. He was a union soldier, was himself a prisoner in the stockade pen for four months, and as we walked about the grounds, he explained to me in detail many of his personal experiences and gave me many graphic accounts of the prison.

The stockade was cut down many years ago and the timber split into rails and is still in use for that purpose on nearby plantations. Today the line of the stockade, also the dead line are marked by long rows of white posts and all over the grounds are sign boards locating some place of special interest, or stating that some company camped at this spot while prisoners of war, etc. In many places over the grounds are wells, now enclosed with a fence, that were dug by the prisoners in their search for water, as the stream running through the stockade was so polluted and filthy they could not drink from it and hundreds died from thirst.

As the soil was sandy, they found little water, and the bottom of the wells was afterward used as the entrance to an underground tunnel leading outside the enclosure and through which a few escaped. All these interesting facts are told the visitor from official sign boards over the grounds.

Some months before the close of the war, a large spring broke out to the surface near the foot of the hill, inside the inclosure, which was named "Providence Spring" by the prisoners, as its clear, pure water saved the lives of many men. A very neat stone shelter-house is now built over this spring, and the sparkling water runs into a granite basin, above which are numerous inscriptions, carved upon marble tablets.

I cannot close this account of Andersonville, without a word regarding the Wirz monument. For the benefit of your readers it may be well to state that Henry Wirz, a captain in the Confederate army, was detailed to have control and charge of the northern prisoners in the stockade at Andersonville.

He was a native of Switzerland, came to this country and joined the Confederacy early in the war. A tyrant by nature, his barbarous, cruel and inhuman treatment of the Andersonville prisoners, created widespread horror all over this country. At the close of the war, he was arrested, tried, sentenced to death for his brutal treatment, and hung in the city of Washington, Nov. 10, 1865.

The daughters of the Confederacy have now sought to honor his name and memory, and by popular subscription, erected in 1909, a monument to Capt. Wirz, which now stands in the public square in the little village of Andersonville. Thousands of people in the south are opposed to this monument and deeply regret its erection, as it has caused more unfavorable comment, both north and south, than any other incident since the war.

As I belong to a newer generation, born since the war, it is not for me to comment upon the mistake of the Wirz monument, but as I read its inscriptions, and knew of his cruel and brutal nature, and the awful suffering he caused, much of which could have been avoided, I thought of the silent protest against this monument that would come up from 3,000 graves over on yonder hill.

The South today are Americans, loyal and true, generous to a fault, kind in their treatment, patriotic in their sentiments, hospitable always.

The Wirz monument, erected after so many years, can only serve to open old wounds, and to uncover a dark page in the history of the south, all of which should have remained forever closed and forgiven.

I left Andersonville at 5 o'clock p. m. As I walted on the platform of the little station, I looked over to Prison Park, and through the magnolias and pines, high up on the hill, I could see the white shaft of Ohio's monument, and the posts marking the stockade enclosure. Over to the left, from the top of a high standard in the National Cemetery, "Old Glory" was proudly floating above the city of the dead. Surrounded by a quiet, peaceful country, beautiful in summer and winter, this most historic spot will forever appeal to an the sympathy, the tenderness, and the loyalty of all American citizens.

POLITICAL SPLASHES

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 3.—One of the biggest surprises in the political arena sprung here lately was the resignation of Nathan F Simpson, deputy auditor general, to take up the management of Senator J. C. Burrows' campaign.

The Clinton county Republican banquet held at St. Johns January 25, and attended by a large number of local politicians, started the campaign rolling in great shape. All four Republican candidates for governor were present, besides other political lights. There was not a dull minute from the tap of the bell until the last word had been spoken. All were in fine fettle and sought to get a lead on the other candidates, and showed conclusively that the fight is to be to the finish, with the people as arbitrators.

Colon C. Lillie has now officially announced his candidacy for lieutenant governorship honors. This makes two in the race for this honor, and the people will be given the opportunity to name tdeir choice at the primaries. Mr. Lillie is well known thoughout the state.

Patrick H. Kelly and Judge Montgomery are two of the gubernatorial candidates who have accepted invitations to the Taft club banquet, to be held in Flint Feb. 9. Some of the other candidates, who have received invitations, are also expected to accept.

ANSWER

One—the flat, sad, sickly looking one—was baked with poor baking powder; possibly the high price kind—possibly the cheap, big can kind. It denotes a lack of leavening gas, or an uneven distribution of same—or both. The other—the large, light, fluffy one—was prepared with Calumet Baking Powder, and denotes the never-failing, delicious baking that always results from its use.

Calumet does not cost as much as the high price baking powder, but it is very much superior in every way—it is purer—more reliable—more healthful. Here are the reasons:

All baking powders undergo a chemical change in the process of baking. You do not take it into the stomach in the same form as it is in the can. For example: When you use Cream of Tartar Baking Powder you get Rochelle Salts in your food, because the Cream of Tartar during this reaction turns into Rochelle Salts. This, as you know, is a drug, and should be taken only under doctor's orders.

Calumet is so carefully and scientifically prepared, that the neutralization of the ingredients is absolutely perfect.

That it is absolutely pure and of highest quality is proven by the fact that

SOCIAL EVENTS.

WIT AND WISDOM CLUB.

At a meeting of the Wit and Wisdom club held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. E. D. Rector, a very fine program was presented.

Rev. Shaw had a paper on Geology and the Bible, which showed deep study and research. Mrs. McAlpine gave a beautiful vocal solo after which Prof. McAlpine gave an excellent paper on Coal and Petroleum. Miss Caldwell favored the company with a fine solo.

Now the more active part of the program began. Tickets were sold for a trip embracing many countries. The band was called out and the music was something wonderful. All the instruments were found among the kitchen utensils except the Piano.

The crowd embarked on the Funville, Frolictown and Featherbrain R. R. and were highly entertained along the way by the various officers of the Co. They made 19 steps beginning at Boston and bringing up at Saratoga, but such a winding way and so many miles covered in the time have never before recorded. The tired travelers were then regaled with dainty refreshments and every one had a most enjoyable evening.

Thousands are getting rid of indigestion by using Mi-o-na. Here is what one man writes: "I want to speak a good word for Mi-o-na and what it has done for me. I suffered something terrible with dispepsia and indigestion. It was almost impossible for me to eat anything. Day after day I would go without eating anything. One day I read your ad. in the Bangor Daily News. I got a box, and before it was gone I could sit down to the table and eat anything, thanks to Mi-o-na."—Herbert L. Patterson, Brewer, (Bangor), Me., 1909.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are made from the best prescription ever written—they cure to stay cured. They relieve distressed stomach in a few minutes. They are sold by druggists in every town in America, and by C. A. Wright & Son. A large box costs but 50 cents. Test samples free from Booth's Mi-o-na, Buffalo, N. Y.

CHARITY BALL

A GREAT SUCCESS IN EVERY PARTICULAR

A Financial Aid in the Work of Doing Good to Those in Need.

A beautiful evening greeted those who attended the Ball Friday night. Everyone seemed exhilerated by the frosty air, and when they reached the festive hall, a scene of beauty was presented.

The pretty dresses, the perfume of flowers, and more than all; the bright and sparkling faces of the ladies, and the manly forms of their escorts, made a picture not soon to be forgotten.

The grand march led by Lester Heesen and Stella Zimmerman, was very graceful and pretty, and every dancer entered into the spirit of the occasion, but when the merry waltz began, the room seemed to scintillate with light and color. Everyone seemed to enjoy themselves, and dancing was indulged in until a late hour.

The double parlors of the Odd Fellows hall were used for refreshments and were decorated by the ladies, in red and green, which scheme lent itself to the table spread in the center of the room, it being lighted with many candles, with red and green shades.

Mrs. J. F. Hicks, Mrs. Bert Lowe and Mrs. Eugene Harris, gave their services, presiding at the coffee urns. The refreshments consisting of chicken salad, pickles, brown and white bread, sandwiches, ice cream and cake, were very dainty and nice.

The card tables were well filled during the evening. Altogether, we think it safe to say that the Ball of 1910, was one long to be remembered.

SUNDAY EVENING LECTURE.

The Sunday evening lecture on "Elijah, the Reformer" at the Baptist church was listened to by a large congregation. It is manifest that the interet in these lectures is growing from week to week. When men and women will drive miles through the severe weather, it is an evidence that they are getting information and help from the discourses. Dr. Hartzog issued a revised program announcing additional lectures. The series will continue up to and including the first Sunday in May. The program includes a course of 18 lectures.

Next Sunday evening the subject will be "Elisha the Counsellor of Kings."

This lecture will describe the vivid experiences of a prophet who for 60 years lived in Samaria the capital of the Northern Kingdom and acted as God's ammbassador to that earthly court. It will depict the terrible scenes connected with the dismemberment of that nation by Sargon of Assyria. It will discuss the oft repeated question, What became of the ten lost tribes of Israel?

MRS MARY CODLING.

Mrs. Mary Codling passed away Monday morning at 2:30 aged 68, after a severe illnese of two weeks. She has been in failing health for a long time, but so strong was her will that she would not give up, until nature could no longer endure the struggle.

Many years ago she was left a widow with a family of five sons and one daughter and with a mother's love she bravely fought her way through trials and discouragements, until they were able to care for themselves and for their mother. Surrounded by her children and grandchildren who have ministered to her every want in the last days of her life. She passed away into the great beyond, where sickness and sorrows are no more and rest, sweet rest shall be hers forever. The funeral will be held at the house Wednesday at 10 o'clock, Rev. C. C. Kemp officiating, with burial at Clinton.

PROF. GILL.

The sad news comes to us of the death of our friend Prof. Gill, at the hospital at Ann Arbor, Friday. His son was with him during the last days of his life and bore all that was mortal of nis father to Chicago, where he was laid by the side of his wife who preceded him to the better land about a year ago. The Prof. has said to us a great many times that life has been desolate since she went home, and the way seemed dark and lonely.

We shall miss him from our midst for he had won a deep place in our regard. There was a daily beauty about his life that won every heart. He was so mild and gentle yet withal so firm in his dealing with his pupils, that he won their confidence and gave them of his best. He was finely educated both in this country and Germany, and the articles written by him that appeared in our paper from time to time showed careful study and fine feeling. All those who have been in touch with him during his sojourn in Tecumseh will drop a tear in his memory at this time.

At the New York Banquet the governor will spenk upon "Primary Reform" which is a live topic in that state at the present time.

CAN'T BE SEPARATED

Some Tecumseh People Have Learned How to Get Rid of Both.

Backache and kidney ache are twin brothers.

You can't separate them.

And you can't get rid of the backache until you cure the kidney ache.

If the kidneys are well and strong, the rest of the system is pretty sure to be in vigorous health.

Doan's Kidney Pills make strong, healthy kidneys.

William W. Shurtz, Kilbuck street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times for ten years and I have received such great benefit that I gladly endorse them. Whenever I feel that my kidneys are not doing their work as they should I get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and a short use brings me relief." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

The Monkey and the Pie.

An Indian faker had a monkey that he had brought up from babyhood, says an English writer. The pair were fast friends, the monkey being a faithful attendant on his master and as good as a watchdog. One day the faker made a pie for dinner and left it to cook on a charcoal fire while he went for a walk. As the cooking proceeded the savory smell was too much for the monkey. It raised the crust and tasted the chicken. Finding the food very tasty, it ate more and more until nothing but the crust remained. Then it remembered its master, who would shortly return hungry and ready to enjoy his meal. What was to be done? The sharp eyes of the monkey detected some crows not far away, so without loss of time it lay down on the ground as if dead. By and by a crow came along and pecked at the monkey, which seized the bird in a twinkling, strangled it, stripped off the feathers, placed it in pieces in the dish, covered it over with the crust and then contentedly awaited the return of the faker, to whom the whole incident was related by an eyewitness.

WARREN TOPPAN, Lynn, Mass.

Cured of severe compound cold and cough by

Vinol

"From Dec. 20, '08, to March 1, '09, I had three bad colds, one on top of the other. I got so weak I could hardly get around. Nothing seemed to help me until I began to take Vinol. The change was magic. Three bottles completely fixed that compound cold and stopped the terrible cough—and what surprises me most, at the same time it cured me of a severe stomach trouble that has bothered me for 20 years.

Vinol is certainly a wonderful medicine."

Mr. Toppan is one of Lynn's most prominent and highly respected merchants, whose word is as good as his bond.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal, strengthening, body-building elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron.

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Tecumseh Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1—comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or thick, red, illsmelling urine, full of sediment and irregular passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2—comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Tecumseh proof:

Elias C. Brisbin, N. Democrat St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I began to suffer from kidney trouble twenty years ago and all my efforts for relief were unsuccessful. I had severe backaches and the kidney secretions were highly colored and highly irregular in passage. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and they promptly relieved me. I have since kept this remedy in the house and whenever I have taken it, good results have followed." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. He Was a Good Mixer.

There used to be a popular minister in Indianapolis who was well known in Louisville. He was pastor of one of the leading churches of the city. He was built on the plan of the late Henry George, whose motto was, "I am for men." This Indianapolis preacher was what is called a "good mixer." One day he stopped in a blacksmith shop to chat with the workmen. During the visit a florid faced man of prosperous appearance came into the shop. He and the minister began chatting, but neither knew the other's line of business. They became good friends in a few minutes. Finally the florid faced man produced his card, which announced that he was in the saloon business on West street.

"Come down to my place any time," he said, "and I'll show you a good time."

"All right," replied the minister, "and, by the way, I'm running a pretty good place myself. Come and see me, and I'll show you a good time."

"I'll sure do that," said the other. "But, by the way, where is your joint?"

"My joint," was the reply, "is the First Presbyterian church. Just inquire for Myron W. Weed, the pastor, and I'll be at your service."—Louisville Times.

The Military Salute.

All salutes, from taking off the hat to presenting arms, originally implied respect or submission. Of military salutes, raising the right hand to the head is generally believed to have originated from the days of the tournament, when the knights filed past the throne of the queen of beauty and by way of compliment raised their hands to their brows to imply that her beauty was too dazzling for unshaded eyes to gaze upon.

The officer's salute with the sword has a double meaning. The first position, with the hilt opposite the lips, is a repetition of the crusader's action in kissing the cross hilt of his sword in token of faith and fealty, while lowering the point afterward implies either submission or friendship, meaning in either case that it is no longer necessary to stand on guard. Raising the hand to the forehead has also been explained as a sign that the weaponed hand is empty and in an inoffensive position, but this reason does not seem so convincing as the others.

A Toothsome Revenge.

During the reign of Charles II., the age of gallantry, it was the custom among gentlemen when they drank a lady's health in order that they might do her still more honor to destroy at the same time some part of their clothing.

Upon one occasion Sir Charles Sedley was dining in a tavern and had a particularly fine necktie on, whereupon one of his friends to play him a trick drank to the health of a certain lady, at the same time throwing his necktie in the fire. Of course Sir Charles had to do likewise, but he got even, for not long after that, dining with the same company, he drank the health of a fair one, at the same time ordering a dentist whom he had engaged to be present to pull out a refractory tooth which had been troubling him. Every one else was obliged to this toast to prevent a mole.

GLAZIER IN LOWLY CELL.

Judge Wiest Gave Him From Five to Ten Years' Sentence.

Jackson, Mich., Feb. 7.—Today Frank P. Glazier, ex-state treasurer and Chelsea banker, is "No. 9112," and is resting as best he may in one of the poorest cells in the prison, the sixty-fourth from the end in the old east wing, on the second tier. His neighbor on one side is Frank Coolbaugh, a Grand Rapids burglar, serving fifteen years, and on the other side, John Austin, a Manistee ravisher, serving ten years.

There are three grades of cells in the prison, and Glazier, according to the regular routine, got one of the worst grade.

The east wing of the prison was built more than sixty years ago. The cells are less than four feet wide, six feet long and six feet high, and there is no ventilation except what air can filter through the deeply imbedded [illegible] and no sanitary appliances. The furniture is a narrow pallet hinged to the wall, and a tin water basin, the only light a kerosene lamp.

Glazier is now a prisoner of the second class. If he behaves himself he will graduate into the first class and have the privileges of the library, prayer meetings and such luxuries.

Glazier, accompanied by his wife, arrived from Mason at 3:15 on Saturday afternoon.

Judge Wiest sentenced him to a term of from five to ten years.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

PONTIAC—The West Avon Farmers' club has adopted resolutions favoring the sustaining of local option in Oakland county for two more years.

MUSKEGON—A sixty-pound block of ice fell on W. A. Reid, a workman at the ice plant of Magoon & Kimball, splitting his head open so that ten stitches were necessary to close the wound.

KALAMAZOO—Because Mrs. John M. Barnes was laughing so heartily she dislocated her jaw, and doctors had difficulty in setting it. Mrs. Barnes was talking with members of her family and became interested in a funny story. It is not expected that serious results will follow.

OWOSSO—John Buckley, a New Haven township farmer, was ordered to send his fourteen-year-old daughter to school, but allowed that it was no one's business but his own whether he did so or not. When he persisted in keeping her out he was brought before a Corunna justice and fined $10.25 and costs. He promised to be good.

OWOSSO—Mrs. Etta Wert of Laingsburg was awarded a verdict of $142 by a jury in circuit court, against G. C. Leuckemann, an Owosso saloonist, whom she had sued for $5,000 for having sold liquor to a minor son. A short time ago Adelbert Thompson of Laingsburg was convicted of having sold liquor to the boy, and his case is now before the supreme court on appeal.

MT. CLEMENS—Crazed by a fit of delirium, one of the guests of a local hotel left his room at night and wandered about the streets clad only in a long white robe. With his feet cut and bleeding from the ice on the sidewalks, the man ran into several business places which keep open all night, startling the inmates, who took the figure for a ghost. The "ghost" was finally captured.

MT. CLEMENS—Matthew Smith the young married man who was arrested here a few days ago on a criminal charge preferred by his sister-in-law, a girl of seventeen, was examined before Justice Nunnelly. The girl retold the story of her alleged wrong, which was entirely corroborated by her sister, Mrs. Smith. The case was adjourned for a week.

HUDSON—People in this city are wondering where a full-sized 'possum came from a few nights ago, for it has been years since an animal of this kind has been seen. Mrs. Charles Bird heard a commotion in the henhouse, and when she went to the rescue the hens quited down, but she found an animal curled up in one of the nests, apparently dead. It was taken to the house, where it began to show signs of life and was identified as a 'possum. It was promptly killed and made the family a dinner.

Length of Dreams.

Three physicians were discussing the matter of the length of dreams.

"One afternoon," said one of them, "I called to see a patient, and, much to my satisfaction, I found him sleeping soundly. I sat by his bed, felt of his pulse without disturbing him and waited for him to awaken. After a few minutes a junk dealer's cart with discordant ringing bells turned into the street, and as their first tones reached us my patient opened his eyes.

"'Doctor,' he said, 'I'm glad to see you and awfully glad that you woke me, for I have been tortured by a most distressing dream that must have lasted for several hours. I dreamed that I was sick, as I am, and that my boy came into the room with a string of most horribly sounding sleigbbells and rang them in my ears, while I hadn't power to move or speak to him. I suffered tortures for what appeared to be an interminable time. I'm so glad you woke me.'

"The ringing of those bells for one second had caused all of that dream and just at the waking moment."

Tough Turkey.

Mark Twain when he worked in Nevada on the Virginia City Enterprise inserted in the news a good many boarding house jokes.

In revenge the humorist's sensitive fellow boarders in Virginia City decided to put up a game on him. They enlisted the landlady's help, and at the Thanksgiving dinner at the boarding house Mark Twain by a dexterous piece of sleight of hand was served apparently direct from the fowl with a turkey leg of painted wood.

The humorist sawed away solemnly at the wooden leg for some time. Then he said to the landlady, with a smile:

"You've changed your poultry dealer, haven't you, ma'am?"

"Why, no, Mr. Clemens," she replied. "What makes you think so?"

"This turkey," he answered, giving the wooden drumstick a little whack with his knife. "It's about the tenderest morsel I've struck in this house for some months."

STRANGE CRIME.

Kalamazoo Man Forced Young Girl to Commit Forgeries.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Feb. 7.—For enticing a fourteen-year-old girl from school and forcing her to forge checks and then pass them, George Watson, a well known young man in Kalamazoo, has been sentenced to Ionia prison for from one to fourteen years.

Watson was arrested several weeks ago and allowed to go on probation after having pleaded guilty to forgery. It was not known then that he had forced the young girl to commit crime.

School authorities secured the evidence, and Watson's second arrest was the result. The name of the girl is being kept secret. She did not appear in court.

BAY CITY FACTORY BADLY DAMAGED

Quaker Shade Roller Company Scorched.

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 7.—The factory building of the Quaker Shade Roller company was partly destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon, causing a loss estimated at $100,000, but fully covered by insurance.

Although the city, at the request of the company, some time ago placed a fire alarm box in front of the office building, an alarm was pulled from a box five blocks away, and when the fire department reached the plant the main building was in flames from end to end.

The fire started in the "pickling" room, where the large vats of boiling alcoholized liquors, containing salpheric and other acids, are used for removing scale from metal parts of shade rollers.

GIRL GETS BIG VERDICT.

Fifteen Hundred Dollars For Injuries Received in Elevator.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 7.—What is said to be the largest personal injury verdict in the Wayne circuit court in twenty years was rendered by a jury in the case of Myriam Caley against Frank H. Bamlet, proprietor of the Bamlet building, in Judge Hosmer's court. The amount was $15,000.

Miss Caley was one of eleven persons, including her brother, Robert Caley, and his family, who were going to attend a Christmas entertainment in the building, Dec. 27, 1906, when the elevator fell about sixteen feet to the basement. Both her ankles were crushed, and she received injuries to her spine. She is now confined to her bed.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

SAGINAW—Rev. Henry R. Stark of Frankfort has accepted a call as pastor of the First Presbyterian church in this city.

CHARLOTTE—George M. Fenn, a leading local manufacturer, while testing a recently installed machine, had his right arm badly mangled. It is feared that amputation will be necessary.

OWOSSO—John Wortman, aged nineteen, was seriously injured when a shotgun on which he was leaning accidentally discharged, the charge entering his arm. Physicians say the member will have to be amputated.

LANSING—The Saginaw-Bay City Railroad company has petitioned the railroad commission to allow it to increase its capital stock to $1,100,000, and also to issue bonds for $5,000,000. The company is a consolidation of the Bay City Traction company.

OWOSSO—But for the prompt work of James Alexander, during a fire at his home, when he risked his life to save his mother-in-law, Mrs. Eleanor Lonsby, who was sleeping in a room on the second floor, would have perished. The house was destroyed.

TRAVERSE CITY—The Traverse City lodge of Elks has adopted the suggestion of the executive committee of the association, and the state convention of the lodge will be held in Detroit this year, instead of at Traverse City, as was at first arranged.

KALAMAZOO—Declining the request of a stranger to follow the profession of a burglar, John Pulaski visited police headquarters and told of the invitation. Acting on the description of a man as given by Pulaski, the police arrested Felix Nelson, at whose home a burglar's kit was found.

Rheumatism Sufferer Hangs Self.

Muskegon, Mich., Feb. 7.—After sending his children to school for the day, Andrew Taylor, aged forty, a watchman in Hessel & Cook's mill at Elbridge, committed suicide by hanging himself. The body was found by his wife. He had gone up to his bedroom, tied a rope to a rafter, slipped the noose around his neck and dropped to a sitting posture, slowly strangling himself. Excessive suffering from rheumatism is assigned as the cause.

STANDS UP FOR COOK.

Professor Brewer Thinks That Ten Years Hence People Will Believe He Reached the North Pole.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 7.—Professor William H. Brewer of the Sheffield Scientific school declares that Dr. Cook did not have a fair deal, and that his enemies were determined to hound him to death. He went on:

"In my opinion, people who are living ten years hence will believe that Dr. Cook really reached the North Pole. I believe that he thought he reached that point."

"Don't you believe that Cook is either crazy or that something has happened to him, professor?"

"Very likely. Only a crazy man could have got out of Alaska completely as did Dr. Cook. The suffering from exposure in the Arctic regions is enough to drive many a man crazy."

SEVEN MEN KILLED

Men Motor Too Near Exploding Dynamite.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 7.—Headless of the warnings of a foreman, a party of excavating operations [illegible] of the private motor road [illegible] Kaylor to the Ray copper mines, this morning [illegible] gasoline car containing [illegible] miners ran his car close to the smoldering fuse of a heavy charge of dynamite, and the car and the seven passengers were blown to atoms.

The dead are: J. B. Jones, A. C. Hiebert, J. C. Grimm, all civil engineers employed by the Ray Consolidated Copper company; [illegible] of Salt Lake City, W. [illegible] and W. O. Frenz, mining engineers employed by Henry Krumb, and [illegible] in testing the Revolo [illegible] at the Ray mines, and [illegible] Hoffall, motorman of the car.

Married in Six Hours.

[illegible] Rockwood, who [illegible] March 30 [illegible] school chums last spring by announcing their marriage to Miss Cummings, is getting ready to spring a still greater surprise by instituting divorce proceedings. After an unhappy matrimonial career, Miss Rockwood was married to the Altar as a bride of fifteen years last March as the only way of escaping the truancy law. Mr. and Mrs. Cummings separated over two months ago.

Burst[illegible]

The greatest danger of a high ascent in a balloon is concerned with the changing density of the atmosphere. On the ground the atmosphere presses on the balloon with a weight of about fifteen pounds for every square inch of its surface. As the balloon rises, however, the air grows thinner and its pressure becomes in consequence less and less. As the pressure of the outside atmosphere decreases the balloon expands, and if the ascension is made too rapidly or without sufficient care the gas inside the silk envelope will expand until the balloon bursts. But the bursting of a balloon in midair is by no means necessarily a fatal catastrophe. Every balloon is provided with a "ripping cord" which, when pulled, rips a long rent in the envelope out of which the gas speedily escapes. The silk bag is then carried by the air into the upper portion of the netting, where in the majority of cases it forms a parachute and brings everything safely to earth.

A Constipation Remedy Free

There is no action of your daily life of greater importance than to see that your bowels move. They should move at least once a day naturally, and by that is meant without any help. If they do not move at least once a day you can consider yourself constipated and it is time you did something about it.

You will be glad to know there is a way out of the difficulty. Lemuel Landerdale, an old soldier at Quincy, Ill., Elmer McMillan, of Speed, Mo., Mrs. Monahan, of Stonewall, Miss., and many others were as you are now. But one day they awoke to the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin was curing their friends, so they bought it too and it cured them. Today they are loud in praise of it.

What Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin did for them it should do for you. Surely your constipation is no worse than theirs, one of whom had it since '61. It only remains for you to realize that salts are of but temporary good, and what you want is a permanent cure; that purgative tablets, cathartic pills and such violent things make a great show of doing something, but do nothing that is lasting. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientific preparation, a laxative-tonic, a mild syrupy liquid that contains ingredients that not only cure the constipation, but tone the intestinal muscles so that they learn again to work without help. A bottle can be bought of any druggist for the small price of 50 cents, and there is a dollar size for families who have already found out its wonderful value in stomach, liver and bowel troubles, in old or young.

Send your name and address to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you so that you can test it before buying.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

PINCHOT OUT WITH ATTACK

Bitterly Flays Man Who Succeeded Him Temporarily.

DEFENDS RANGER SCHOOLS

Explains How Work of Teaching Foresters in Universities Was Headed Off—Says McCabe Purposely Wrote Letter so Twisted as to Secure Decision Against Schools.

New York, Jan. 10.—Gifford Pinchot, president of the National Conservation association, speaking at a dinner given in his honor by the National Arts club, last night, bitterly attacked Solicitor McCabe of the department of agriculture at Washington. Mr. McCabe is the man who was temporarily put in charge of the forestry department after Mr. Pinchot was dismissed by President Taft.

Mr. Pinchot accused the solicitor of misrepresentation and of "prostituting the law." The Pinchot attack is based on the action taken by McCabe in refusing to continue making payments for the education of forest rangers at some of the state universities.

President Pinchot's complaint against the solicitor found a ready sympathy among the diners. They applauded him again and again. Mr. Pinchot said in part:

How It Was Stopped.

"About the middle of January the papers contained stories of how the forest service was paying the expenses of students at various colleges and how this alleged illegal expenditure had been discovered and stopped.

"The facts are these: The forest service has never spent a cent for the training of any young man who was not already in the service. It has never sent any student to college. But it has ordered picked men already in the service, one or two from each forest, to go for eight, ten or twelve weeks to four state universities in order to learn things necessary for their work for the government.

"Since the forest service was created the uniform practice has been to call together the rangers for discussion of their problems and instruction in their work. These meetings were indispensably necessary.

"By the pressure of necessity, the ranger meetings, which were officially approved and authorized by the secretary of agriculture, grew into ranger schools, held in the national forests. Rangers and teachers attend these schools officially and at government expense, and, so far as I am informed, no objection to them has ever been made. Certainly, no more useful work is done anywhere in the service.

Stop Training of Rangers.

"Under this state of facts suddenly the law was invoked to stop the training of the rangers. It happened thus: Upon my dismissal the solicitor of the department of agriculture, pending the arrival of another officer from the field, was made acting forester for three or four days. It appears that he learned then of the ranger schools at the four state universities and sent telegrams to the disbursing officers in the field to pay no expenses connected with them. These telegrams were kept secret from every member of the service in Washington except the stenographer who wrote them. With equal concealment from all the men in the forest service, a letter was prepared and sent to the comptroller, asking for 'a speedy advance decision' as to the legality of the ranger schools. This letter was clearly intended and was so framed as to secure a decision against the schools, and it was successful in doing so.

"I am not concerned with the motive behind this indefensible sacrifice of the public welfare. It is a typical illustration of a certain way to 'obey the law.' Of course, it is not obedience to the law at all, but the prostitution of the law."

KELLEY MAY LOSE HIS JOB

Railroad Commission Thinks of Firing Him.

DID AN INDISCRETE THING

Although Being Secretary For Commission He Appears Before Tax Commission in Interest of Big Four Road—Believed He Had Information Commission Needed.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 10.—The fate of Samuel H. Kelley as secretary of the state railroad commission hangs in the balance. The members of the commission are inclined to take summary action resulting from his indiscretion in appearing before the tax commission Tuesday to urge a reduction in the assessed valuation of the Big Four railroad.

There was a conference of the commission last night, and all of the details of the case were given a careful consideration.

Members of the commission frankly admit that the secretary had committed a grave error in appearing before the tax commission to discuss the interests of the Big Four.

Kelley has stated that he had no intention of making a bad break in appearing before the tax commission, but believed that he had some information which would be of value to the commission in deciding the amount of taxes the Big Four should pay, and that he was requested to appear by Robert Shields, who is a member of the board.

Had Other Representatives.

There were three representatives of the New York Central lines before the commission the day Kelley appeared, and state officials here can see no reason why the secretary should have volunteered his services. It is said that he came before the tax commission a year ago on a similar mission, but if this is true the matter was not brought before the railroad commissioners at that time.

Kelley succeeded Louis Cramton as secretary of the commission and began his duties Jan. 1, 1908. While a representative from Berrien county he came before the tax commission during the session of 1907 in the interests of the Big Four. He has repeatedly declared that he dropped all his connections with the railroads when he became affiliated with the commission, and some of his friends in this city are inclined to believe that he will be able to give a satisfactory explanation.

INDICT PACKERS.

Rumors in Chicago Have It That the Grand Jury Will Do So.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—Rumors that Judge Landis' federal grand jury, which is investigating the alleged beef trust, was about to vote indictments against Chicago packers who are believed to be interested in a monopoly of the fresh meat industry are current about the federal building and persisted in despite statements of government officials that no such action was about to be taken. The rumor has it that four indictments would first be voted against certain officials of the various packing companies supposed to be interested in the alleged trust.

Would Take Matter to Supreme Court.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 10.—Secretary of State Martindale states that in his opinion the big suits between the state and the Michigan Central railroad should go to the supreme court for settlement rather than that the board of adiutors, of which he is a member, should pass upon the proposed settlement of the cases as arranged by the attorneys. The state is suing for about $4,000,000 in back taxes, while the railroad claims $6,000,000 damages as a result of the repeal of its charter. It was proposed that the suits be dropped upon the payment by the corporation of $125,000 costs to the state. The matter will come before the board on March 16.

NEAL REPORTS.

State Oil Inspector Says That Kerosene Caused Most Deaths.

Northville, Mich., Feb. 10.—State Oil Inspector Neal has presented his annual report to the governor and the state board of health. The report shows the inspection of 21,626,128 gallons of kerosene during the year 1909, of which amount 1,039 gallons were rejected as being unsafe for illuminating purposes. Total fees collected were $43,541.63, besides $203.90, interest for balance on deposits. The cost of maintaining the department, including all salaries, deputies, fees and all other expenses was $30,684.50, and the state inspector has turned in to the state treasurer the net surplus of $13,061.03, that amount being the largest surplus for the number of gallons inspected ever turned in since the department was created in 1879.

Besides inspecting illuminating oil the department looks after the sale of gasoline.

A number of serious accidents, some fatal, have occurred as a result of filling gasoline stoves while they are lighted.

The total value of property destroyed by gasoline fires reported to the department by deputies amounted to $20,5000, though that amount probably does not anywhere near cover it.

Strange as it may seem, the use of kerosene has caused more fatalities during the year than gasoline. There were seven deaths reported to the department resulting from an endeavor to hurry up fires in stoves by pouring kerosene from a can on live coals.

MILLIONS FOR MICHIGAN.

Rivers and Harbors Bill That Makes Provision Comes Up Today.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The rivers and harbors of Michigan will be well provided for in cash appropriations in the rivers and harbors bill which in all probability will be reported to the house this afternoon. From present indications the bill will carry cash amounts of $33,000,000, with authorizations of $11,000,000 to be provided for in the sundry civil appropriation bill. Naturally the most important items in the measure of interest to Michigan are appropriations of $560,000 for the improvement of the Detroit river; $630,000 for the Livingstone harbor, and a survey for a new lock at the Soo.

Compel County to Build Jail.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 10.—At the request of the state board of corrections and charities Attorney General Bird will begin mandamus proceedings against the board of supervisors of Alcona county to compel that county to erect a jail. It is said that this is the first time proceedings of this character have been commenced in this state. The county has been without a jail for over seven years through the inability of the supervisors to agree on a site for the building.

TAKES ISSUE WITH IRELAND

Methodist Bishop Denies Archbishop's Statements.

WAS NOT VERY DIGNIFIED

In Attempting to Explain Why Pope Did Not Receive Fairbanks—Challenges Catholic Prelate to Show That Methods of Methodists in Rome Are Not Honorable.

Washington, Feb. 10.—In an interview here, Right Rev. Earl Crouston, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, takes issue with statements made by Archbishop Ireland, growing out of the refusal of the pope to grant an audience to former Vice President Fairbanks. He denies emphatically some of the archbishop's statements with reference to the work of the Methodist Episcopal church in Rome.

"I have read what Archbishop Ireland had to say of the Fairbanks incident," said Bishop Crouston," and he is doubtless the best man who could have been put forward to save the pope's face in this country.

"In his attempt to square the behavior of the pontiff with American ideas of religious tolerance the archbishop has a hard task, but he ought to know that to say 'You're another' and to start east with doubled fists is not the dignified way to go about it. It will not satisfy fair-minded Americans to say that Mr. Fairbanks was to address a company of 'pernicious heretics' Sunday and, therefore, could not be received by the pope Monday, for, the archbishop's word to the contrary notwithstanding, we have an American congregation as well as an Italian in Rome, and Mr. Fairbanks was to address a company of Americans in their own place of worship, both parties having a standing which the pope did not give and cannot take away.

Not Consistent.

"Even had they been a disreputable lot to whom Mr. Fairbanks spoke, the precedents of the Vatican do not indicate that high moral tests are invariably applied to persons who are granted audience at the Vatican. Mr. Fairbanks both taught and exemplified true catholicity.

"If the archbishop's reasoning is valid, diplomacy must at once exclude many people who have been frequent callers at the White House, lest offense be given to friendly nations.

"But I must observe from the morning cablegrams from Rome that the Vatican sends out a new explanation. The pope cannot receive any one, however distinguished, who does not while in Rome act as a Catholic. That is consistent, in words at least, as Rome understands them."

Discussing Archbishop Ireland's charge that the methods of the Methodists in carrying on the work in Rome are "dishonorable," Bishop Crouston said:

"I challenge him to give specific data. We will agree to match every specification with counter evidence to show that Rome does not know the meaning of the word the archbishop has so glibly used when proselyting methods are fairly compared. The short of it all is that the Methodist Episcopal church has dared invade papal countries with Protestant ideas."

POPE ISSUES STATEMENT.

Tells Why He Refused to Receive Former Vice President.

Rome, Feb. 10.—The pope has made a statement regarding the recent incident involving former Vice President Fairbanks, who was refused a private reception by the Vatican because he insisted on keeping an earlier engagement to address the Methodist society here.

His holiness said he regretted he had not been able to receive Mr. Fairbanks, but that he could not depart from the policy adopted, as to do so would appear to give recognition to the disloyal interference of certain Protestant denominations.

BEWARE OF CATARRH

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

William C. Witherell, W. Potawatamie St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "My experience with Doan's Kidney Pills has convinced me that they are an absolutely reliable kidney remedy. I publicly recommended them through the local papers in return for the relief I received from backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble through their use. I seldom have need of a kidney remedy now, but I still keep Doan's Kidney Pills in the house all the time. I know of several persons who have used this remedy at my suggestion with the best of results." For sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents. "ONE OPERA CLOAK, $250."

High Handed Methods Won Where Meekness Had Failed.

By FRANCESS GROFF.

Miss Lillian Fairweather's state of mind was far from pleasant as she sat in one of Schenck & Schenck's stuffy little fitting rooms. Nicholas the meek, Nicholas the downtrodden, had turned. The words of his letter stood out vividly before her eyes.

Jacob served seven years for Rachel and then got her sister. I have served five years, see no hope of getting you in seven, and you have no sister. Unless you say yes in a week to the question I have asked you so often I sail on the Mesaba for Europe. Remember, at a signal from you I shall turn back at the last moment to my waiting, waiting, uncompromising, unreasoning, unreasonable, but devoted, heart.

Nicholas had been the subject of gibes, both to his face and behind his back. One that she had coined she gave current issue among her friends because she fancied it was clever.

"Church on Sunday, theater Monday, flowers Tuesday, candy Wednesday, new book Thursday, dinner Friday, good luck on Saturday—if Nicholas Purdy."

It did not seem so clever to her now after a week during which there had been no one to carry her prayer book to church, no one to take her to first night performances, no flowers, no candy, no books, no dinners, no Nicholas Purdy, but there had been a wearied feeling. Much to her own surprise, she found that she missed the man more than his attentions.

This was the day of sailing for the Mesaba. From some feeling—curiosity, of course—she knew the pier from which it started, the car lines leading to it and the time it took to get there. She certainly would not give in to him, especially after the insolent tone of the letter. Yet it was from a fear that she might so far forget herself as to go down to the dock and lose her supremacy over Nicholas forever that had brought her here. Her suit very opportunely needed alteration. Miss Macy, the head fitter, had hurried off with it, promising to seek something to throw around her form a few minutes till it was ready.

Then a girl had appeared with a gorgeous pink opera cape. Such raiment was far beyond the slender means of the struggling artist, but for once she forgot to revel in its richness. She was looking anxiously at her watch. Three-quarters of an hour and then the Mesaba would clear her docks.

How fast the minutes flew by! Half an hour now!

She pounded on the door. Miss Macy hustled in. "I'm so sorry, Miss Fairweather. I've been delayed with some customers. You shall have your dress shortly."

"But I must have it at once!"

"Impossible!" And Miss Macy bustled off.

Lilian was now frantic.

She caught the next girl that passed.

"Give me a dress, any kind of a dress!"

A moment later she was tearing a price mark off a sloppy dress of a dirty chocolate color. She rushed into it, quite unmindful of the fact that it was two sizes too large, long waisted and bulging at the hips. Throwing the opera cape around her, she stuck on her blue hat and rushed madly from the store.

She hailed a passing cab. "Five dollars if you get me to pier 17 before the Mesaba sails!"

It seemed an eternity until she was rushing down the long wooden shed. Pushing aside the man who demanded her ticket, she ran up the gangplank, and her feet had scarcely left it when it was withdrawn. No Nicholas was in sight. She approached the steward and asked him where Mr. Purdy's stateroom was. He replied that no such party was booked.

Then Lilian gave a gasp. She ran to the end of the steamer nearest the dock only to find that the vessel had begun to move. She uttered a cry, which attracted the attention of a youngish man sitting on the piles at the corner of the pier hanging his heels over the water.

He jumped up and whistled, for he realized the full enormity of the situation. She was going, and he was to be left behind. The ocean would separate them, besides a sea of misunderstandings. His bluff had worked beyond his expectations.

He ran to the steamer's starting place and found a stout commercial looking man in a state of great excitement bargaining with the owner of a small tug to take him to the outgoing steamer. Nicholas joined forces with him. A common object—to catch the steamer—bound them together.

The thing was all arranged in a few minutes. They quickly got alongside and hailed the steamer.

There was already great excitement aboard the Mesaba. A woman in a dirty brown gown, a pink opera cloak and a blue hat was begging hysterically to be taken back to land.

The captain saw peace for him when he perceived the tug. The steamer stopped, and Lilian was transferred to meet her shameless lover and the justly indignant costumer. She began to upbraid the former when the commercial man interfered:

"Easy now, easy. What about my $250 wrap, not to mention the dress? I see you have damaged the cloak so

Hunting Truffles as Sport.

Quite apart from the interest of fungi to the naturalist the temptation cannot here be resisted to refer to a method of procuring one kind of fungus, which might take rank among the minor sports. This is the fashion, originating in France, of procuring the truffle by the aid of swine and hounds. More ill assorted sporting companions can hardly be imagined. The truffle grows underground. Pigs are particularly fond of these delicacies and, guided by the scent, will discover them by rooting in the earth. After the discovery of the truffles the dogs are employed to beat back the pigs and prevent them from devouring the spoil. And every quality dear to the sportsman of skill and judgment is needed to control and obtain the desired result from the efforts of a herd of swine and a pack of hounds.—London Outlook.

This will be an Evangelistic address based on the well understood principle of thereness. Last Sunday was an unusual day in our church. At the morning service one dear brother gave his heart to God and a score or more who have been more or less indifferent, took a decided step for higher consecration. A large number promised to attend prayer meeting every Wednesday night during the Lenten season, and all present felt that God's spirit was manifested to a remarkable degree. Last Wednesday night as a consequence, the prayer room was filled and the spirit of evangelism filled the room. You may keep your eye on the Methodist church, for God is already beginning a work of grace which is sure to issue in a genuine revival if we are willing to do our best to be in the King's highway when the King comes. Better "Be there" Sunday night for he may come to us then.

FLORENCE MABEL FINK

Florence Mabel Fink was born in Brownville this village March 15, 1894 and died Feb. 5, 1910, making her term of life almost sixteen years.

She was the daughter of Henry and Mary Fink and attended our public schools as long as her health would permit, leaving in the fifth grade two years ago. She had been in delicate health for a long time and for the last few months was confined to her bed. Hopes were entertained by her friends for her recovery until an attack of pneumonia set in a few days before her death and weakened by a long illness, she was unable to withstand this last attack and on Saturday last a little after noon she passed to that land "Where midnight waking, twilight weeping, Heavy noontide all are done."

Florence made many friends during her illness by her sweet patient manner in great suffering. Not forgetful of those who attended her she was frequently heard to pray "Lord have mercy on us all" thus including the other members of her family in her petitions.

She remains in their memory as a spirit entirely unselfish and good. The burial took place on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Methodist church, Rev. Stanley Shaw officiating. Mrs. Richard Mead and Mrs. Hodges sweetly sang. There were several beautiful floral pieces, one by the pupils of her room at school and many other offerings of flowers from sympathizing friends.

"There is no flock however watched and tended
But one dead lamb is there.
There is no fireside howsoe'er defended
But has one vacant chair."

Card of Thanks.

We desire in this way to express our most sincere thanks to the many friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy all through the long sickness and at the death of our beloved daughter and sister Florence, also for the floral offerings, the singing and Rev. Shaw for his words of comfort.

Mrs. Mary Fink and family.

is what you buy is of more importance to you, than profits that the dealer makes off what he sells you. They think they can persuade their customers to buy what they have in stock anyway. Are you that class of customer? If so

The leading feature of the evening was the contest on the dress question and prizes were given for the most fantastic costume. The first prize was given to Mrs. O. G. Hunt, that red head of hers seeming to light up the whole dress.

The booby prize was given to Fred Aldrich whose nose seemed quite stuck up over the whole thing. Card playing was indulged in as usual and first prize was given Mrs. Fred Aldrich, while Mr. O. G. Hunt was consoled by the booby. After a social time together, the crowd dispersed feeling well pleased with their winter's entertainment and hoping to meet again with the same old crowd another winter.

THE CAUSE OF COLDS

Good Advice Regarding the Prevention of Coughs and Colds

If people would only fortify and strengthen the system, the majority of cases of coughs, colds and pneumonia might be avoided. These troubles are frequently due to weakness, which produces a catarrhal condition of the mucous membrane, which is an internal skin of the body. When this skin is weakened it becomes easily infected with germs which cause many of the diseases to which flesh is heir. Healthy mucous membranes are essential safeguards of the body's general health.

An excellent aid in the prevention of coughs, colds, pneumonia, and such like infectious diseases, is a remedy that will prevent or cure catarrh.

We have a remedy which we honestly believe to be unsurpassed in excellence for the prevention of cough, colds and all catarrhal conditions. It is the prescription of a famous physician, who has an enviable reputation of thirty years of cures gained through the use of this formula. We promise to make no charge for the medicine should it fail to do as we claim. We urge everybody who has need of such a medicine to try Rexall Mucu-Tone.

It stands to reason that we could not afford to make such statements and give our own personal guarantee to this remedy if we were not prepared to prove the reasonableness of our claim in every particular, and we see no reason why any one should hesitate to accept our offer and try it. We have two sizes of Rexall Muco-Tone, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Sometimes a 50-cent bottle is sufficient to give marked relief. As a general thing the most chronic case is relieved with an average of three bottles. You can obtain Rexall Remedies in Tecumseh only at our store,—The Rexall Store. B. J. Pulver Drug Store.

AMUSEMENTS!

Tom Marks Co.

A crowded house greeted the first appearance of Tom Marks and his splendid company who commenced a week's engagement at the Opera House last night, when the prettiest comedy drama seen in Berlin for many a year was presented. "That Irish Boarder." The production was greatly enriched with many splendid vaudeville specialties introduced between the acts.

We cannot express ourselves too strongly as to the calibre of the company and if the plays and specialties during the balance of the week are up to the standard of that presented last night, it will be one pleasant week for those who are fortunate enough to attend.

The cast throughout could not have been chosen better, as each and every player seemed just suited for the part he or she was interpreting.

We cannot make special mention of any in particular as each and every role was in the hands of real actors.

The splendid specialties introduced between the acts relieves the play of many a long wait and certainly adds greatly in strengthening the show.

It is estimated that fully five hundred people were turned away from the Opera House last night.—Berlin Ontario Fews.

TOM MARKS and his own company will be at the Bradley opera house for a three nights' engagement, beginning February 17th.

MR. AND MRS. ELLSWORTH ELLIS IN

In addition to above 2,000 feet of new moving pictures will be shown. Doors open at 7 p. m. Continuous show. No waits. Admission 10 cents to all.

Break Up That Cold In A Day.

You can stop a cough or a cold as if by magic by just breathing soothing, healing Hyomei over the sore, raw and inflamed membrane.

This is from a man who knows:

"Mrs. Mager and myself have used your inhaler faithfully when needed and it has always given instant relief and saved us from many severe colds.

The above is voluntarily given and if in your estimation its use as a testimonial would help to get others to use it, I will gladly have you do so, as we consider it a wonderful discovery and recommend it whenever opportunity presents itself." F. W. Mager, Contracting Freight Agent, C. H. & D. Ry. Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 22, 1909.

Don't fool with stomach nostrums; try magical Hyomei at once; it relieves a stuffed up head in two minutes.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including inhaler and one bottle of Hyomei, costs only $1.00 at druggists everywhere and of C. A. Wright & Son. It is guaranteed to cure catarrh, croup, cough, colds, sore throat and brochitis or money back. Extra bottles of Hyomei, if afterward needed, cost but 50 cents.

CAN'T BE SEPARATED

Some Tecumseh People Have Learned How to Get Rid of Both.

Backache and kidney ache are twin brothers.

You can't separate them.

And you can't get rid of the backache until you cure the kidney ache.

If the kidneys are well and strong, the rest of the system is pretty sure to be in vigorous health.

Doan's Kidney Pills make strong, healthy kidneys.

William W. Shurtz, Kilbuck street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times for ten years and I have received such great benefit that I gladly endorse them. Whenever I feel that my kidneys are not doing their work as they should I get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and a short use brings me relief." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other

Own Your Own Mind.

Have you ever considered the possibility of doing this? Remember that living in a rented mind, furnished with opinions bought on the installment plan, never offers any inducement with it for the future. Not only this, but you are not saving up anything.

The advantages of owning your own mind will be apparent at a moment's thought.

In the first place, you come to take a personal interest, which you do not feel when it is owned by some one else. Then again the natural increase in value redounds to your own profit. You have no one to dictate to you as to the inside furnishings and decorations. Besides, it makes you more particular with regard to what you put into it. If you live in a rented mind you don't care much. You will drive nails in the walls and get generally careless about it. But when you own your own mind you are constantly going about picking it up. You take real pride in it.

Be it ever so humble, there is no place like a mind that you own yourself.

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Tecumseh Citizen Can Afford to Ignore

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1—comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or thick, red, illsmelling urine, full of sediment and irregular passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2—comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Tecumseh proof:

Elias C. Brisbin, N. Democrat St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I began to suffer from kidney trouble twenty years ago and all my efforts for relief were unsuccessful. I had severe backaches and the kidney secretions were highly colored and highly irregular in passage. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and they promptly relieved me. I have since kept this remedy in the house and whenever I have taken it, good results have followed." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. POLICE QUELL RIOT.

Hungarian Strikers Intimidate Workers at South Bethlehem.

South Bethlehem, Pa., Feb. 10.—Eight hundred more men Wednesday joined the strike of Bethlehem Steel company employes, and of this number 200 are riggers of the new $1,000,000 blast furnaces which C. M. Schwab is erecting, and their striking ties up all construction work.

A riot was percipitated in the morning, when 500 Hungarians intimidated 1,500 of their fellow workmen who were going to work, but trouble was averted by the arrival of the police. The strikers have wired Samuel Gompers to come and take charge of the strike.

Will Appeals to Canners.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 10.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, in a letter received here, requests the packers to go on record as opposed to the use of soda. Claiming in his letter that the fight being made against benzoate was only engineered by interests backing other preservatives, the cabinet officer intimates that the packers of tomatoes, peas and other vegetable products have no interest in the fight and politely requests that they take no action in the matter at the present convention.

Six Killed In Explosion.

Stearns, Ky., Feb. 10.—An explosion in mine No. 1 of the Stearns Coal company has killed six white miners outright. It is thought that the victims ran into a pocket of gas, which ignited when it came into contact with their lamps.

GRAND RAPIDS—Charged with wholesale swindling in several counties in western Michigan, in connection with the Continental Supply company of Chicago, J. C. Oren, purporting to be a representative of that firm, is under arrest at White Cloud. It is alleged that Oren took orders for dress goods, collecting partial payment on each order, and that the goods failed to arrive.

Coyote and Jack Rabbit.

The speed of the jack rabbit has always been proverbial among western men, like the speed of a coyote. In a straightaway race it is claimed that the jack rabbit can distance the coyote, but he usually falls a victim to the coyote's superior intelligence. The favorite coyote method for catching jack rabbits is for one of the animals to start a jack and attend to the work of keeping the victim on the run, while the other coyote sits down, patiently awaiting the arrival of his dinner. The jack rabbit when he has a free range will run in circles, and the coyotes cleverly count on this habit. Before long the rabbit will arrive at the place from which he started, and there coyote No. 2, fresh and ready for a short sprint, will swoop down upon him and then divide the meal with the coyote that has done the actual chasing.—New York Press.

SWITCHMEN HAVE VOTED TO STRIKE

Many Railroads Threatened With Tie-up.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—By a vote of 8,007 to 91, switchmen, members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and [illegible] eighteen railroads in Chicago, voted Wednesday to go on strike. The canvass of the vote, which has been taken during the past week, was completed late in the day by F. A. Whitney, vice president of the union.

Four thousand switchmen will be affected by the strike. The one thing that will prevent a tie-up, labor officials declare, is that the railroads concede to the demand of 5 cents an hour increase in wages. The men indicated by the vote cast, their leaders say, that they were against settlement by arbitration.

GAVE SWOPE POISON.

Jury Says Dr. Hyde Thus Caused His Wife's Uncle's Death.

Kansas City, Feb. 10.—That Colonel Thomas A. Swope, the millionaire philanthropist, died as the result of a dose of strychnine administered to him by Dr. B. C. Hyde, husband of his niece, is the verdict of the coroner's jury at Independence, Mo.

After being out one hour the jury returned this verdict:

"Colonel Swope came to his death by reason of strychnine administered in a capsule by Dr. B. C. Hyde, but whether with felonious intent or not, we, the jury, are unable to say."

This decison followed the evidence of Miss Pearl Kellar, the nurse who attended Colonel Swope, that her patient died in convulsions within twenty minutes after taking a capsule prescribed by Hyde, and that Hyde previously had asked her to influence the aged man to name him his executor.

"BABE MADELINE" PERISHES

Famous Child That Weighed 250 Pounds Burns to Death.

Columbus, O., Feb. 10.—Bessie Longnecker aged seven, a child known throughout the show world in the United States as "Baby Madeline" on account of her great weight, is dead, having burned to death at her home here. The girl weighed 250 pounds and was said to be the largest child of her age that ever lived. Her mother, Mrs. James Longnecker, was badly burned in trying to save her.

ARBITRATE OR FIGHT.

That Is Precent Attitude of Pittsburg Coal Operators.

Pittsburg, Feb. 10.—Pittsburg coal operators are now ready to either submit the wage question to arbitration or to fight.

"We have reached the limit in paying the miners. A demand for higher wages is simply impossible. We cannot give them what we have not got, and I for one am ready to submit the proposition as to this matter to any impartial judge." This statement is made by H. A. Kuhn, president of the Pittsburg and Westmoreland Coal company, one of the larger corporations of the Pittsburg district, after he had read the declaration of President Lewis of the Mine Workers that the miners must have a substantial increase in wages before the signing of the scale for this year.

Glazier's Bondsmen Settling.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 10.—State Treasurer Sleeper has received $26,000 from the Title Guaranty & Surety company, this being the amount in full due from them as bondsmen for Frank P. Glazier. Out of a total of $200,000 held by the several bonding companies in the Glazier failure, $117,500 has been paid over, leaving a balance of $82,500.

The Retort Courteous.

"Camp Meeting" John Allen was a famous Methodist preacher and revivalist of the old days down in Maine, and, like most successful pulpit orators, his sense of humor was equal to his gift of speech.

It is recalled by the Boston Journal that on one occasion the old gentleman's wife was getting into a carriage, and he neglected to assist her.

"You are not as gallant, John, as when you were a boy!" she exclaimed in gentle rebuke.

"No," was his ready response, "and you are not as buoyant as when you were a gal!"

ABBIE BEN ADHEM.

Abbie Ben Adhem, merry of eye, Dressed as neatly as one ever sees, One day was absent when her friends began
To turn from short to one beneath their scan.
"She paints!" vowed one and sadly shook her head.
"She flirts!" another, with a shudder, said.
"I've heard that so and so and so and so," a third
Declared, and all cried, "Well, upon my word!"

And so in half an hour poor Abbie's fame, As well as reputation and once honored name,
Was torn to tatters, and her friends declared
She was the sort by whom fool men were snared
And that if they were she they'd have more pride
Than to give cause for rumors undenied.

In fact, they came to the conclusion then
That Miss Ben Adhem should not be again
Held in their friendship as she once had been,
But that she should be spurned with glances keen
And that, while some reports might not be true,
Of course "a person never really knew."

The next day, these same friends met to compile
A list of those who should be asked to while Away an afternoon at tea and whist,
And each one then prepared her lengthy list,
Suggesting who to ask and who to snub,
For it, you see, was an exclusive club.

And who, think you, was most important guest?
Lo, Miss Ben Adhem's name led all the rest!

—Wilbur D. Nesbit in Life.

Not Encouraging.

Dr. Young—I feel very much discouraged over my practice.

Dr. Elder—Cheer up, my boy. You must have patience.

Dr. Young—Well, I hope I know that much. If I had patience I wouldn't be discouraged.

Why He Was Late.

Pat was late again, and the foreman was dealing out the usual reprimands.

"Nine o'clock," he said. "What do you mean by coming at this time of the day? I wonder a man of your means troubles about coming at all. Now, then, what's your excuse?"

Pat considered for a moment, and at last the excuse came.

"Sure, sor," he said, "I dreamed last night I were at a football match which ended in a draw."

"What about that?" interrupted the foreman.

"Well, sor, the referee ordered an extra half hour to be played, and, begorra, I only stopped to see the finish"—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Constipation Remedy Free

There is no action of your daily life of greater importance than to see that your bowels move. They should move at least once a day naturally, and by that is meant without any help. If they do not move at least once a day you can consider yourself constipated and it is time you did something about it.

You will be glad to know there is a way out of the difficulty. Lemuel Laderdale, an old soldier at Quincy, Ill., Elmer McMillan, of Speed, Mo., Mrs. Monahan, of Stonewall, Miss., and many others were as you are now. But one day they awoke to the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin was curing their friends, so they bought it too and it cured them. Today they are loud in praise of it.

What Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin did for them I should do for you. Surely your constipation is no worse than theirs, one of whom had it since '61. It only remains for you to realize that salts are of but temporary good, and what you want is a permanent cure; that purgative tablets, cathartic pills and such violent things make a great show of doing something, but do nothing that is lasting. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientific preparation, a laxative-tonic, a mild syrupy liquid that contains ingredients that not only cure the constipation, but tone the intestinal muscles so that they learn again to work without help. A bottle can be bought of any druggist for the small price of 50 cents, and there is a dollar size for families who have already found out its wonderful value in stomach, liver and bowel troubles, in old or young.

Send your name and address to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you so that you can test it before buying.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

Naval Tug Nina Missing For Over a Week.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 14.—The naval tug Nina, which left the Norfolk navy yard for Boston a week ago Sunday, is still missing. The battleship Louisiana and the cruiser Birmingham, which were despatched from the Norfolk navy yard to join in the search for her, have been heard from by wireless. Both vessels are proceeding carefully over that portion of the route of the tug which was assigned to them to search.

No one familiar with the navigation of the seas entertains much hope that the tug is still afloat, and the chances of the rescue of the crew by some other vessel is minimized by the fact that a vessel of the type of the Nina in foundering would go down quickly, and likely, without much warning.

Washington, Feb. 14.—No information has been received to a late hour last night at the navy department of the whereabouts of the naval tug Nina, which left the Norfolk navy yard last week Sunday morning for Boston and has not been heard from since. Eight naval vessels were ordered from the various navy yards along the Atlantic coast to look for the Nina.

Severe Cold Wave Coming.

Washington, Feb. 14.—In a special bulletin issued last night the weather bureau says: During the present week a general storm followed by a cold wave will cross the United States. The storm will appear over the Pacific states within the next two days, cross the Rockies, plains states and central valleys during the middle days of the week and reach the Atlantic seaboard by Friday. The cold wave promises to be rather severe.

Baseball Schedules This Week.

New York, Feb. 14.—The big baseball leagues will adopt playing schedules this week and will make other arrangements for the championship pennant races to begin on April 14. The National league men will meet at the Waldorf in this city, while the American league club owners will convene at Congress hall in Chicago. The roll call in each instance is fixed for 2 o'clock Tuesday.

The state cancer laboratory at Buffalo, of which Dr. H. R. Gaylord is the director, has just issued its report for 1909. A feature of the work suggested by the known prevalence of human cancer along water courses and in rural districts which are poorly drained. The report calls attention to the fact that the disease is most frequent in the well wooded, well watered and mountainous regions of county districts than in cities.

Penitentiary investigating committees have received the report of the expert accountants who were appointed to investigate the books of the state penitentiary system. It shows that the books have been kept in an incompetent and inaccurate way for many years. No charges of willful corruption are made.

SPENT SUNDAY IN DETROIT

Was Guest of Detroit Club For Few Hours—Entertains Members With Few Irish Stories and Complimentary Sayings—Had Not Been In Metropolis of State For 33 Years.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 14.—James E. Sherman, vice president of the United States, spent a few flitting moments here Sunday afternoon as the guest of the Detroit club. He was a busy man during his brief Detroit stay. He stopped long enough, however, to shake hands with a number of the city's leading citizens, convulse the members of the club with a number of Irish dialect stories and drop a few eloquent words of thanks for the reception that had been tendered him. Mr. Sherman took the train at 6 o'clock last evening for Buffalo, where he made connection for his home in Utica, N. Y. He will rest a few days following his oratorical diversions.

"I have been talking almost continuously since 10 o'clock Saturday morning, and I will say just a few words now," said Mr. Sherman to the members of the club. "In Grand Rapids I was surrounded by about 500 school teachers, and I guess I am for enough away from there to venture the remark that at least a few of them were of uncertain age.

"Some of my Detroit friends have been chiding me because I have not come here before. I was here thirty-three years ago, and I remember telling a friend at that time that I would come again when I was president of the United States. I think I've done very well by Detroit. It will be eight years before I will be president.

"I am grateful to you for this kindly reception. I am grateful because I am so near to the greatest position the United States has to offer. I feel that this reception is to the position I hold and not to the man.

"I am sure that I shall carry away from Michigan an intensified interest in your grand old state, and I feel sure that it is designed to become one of the truly great Republican states of the Union."

HALF TON OF OLEO.

Found In Store of Detroit Man—He Is Arrested.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 14.—Officers of the United States internal revenue department broke into the grocery store of William C. Ten Eyck, 371 Michigan avenue, shortly before midnight, arrested Ten Eyck and confiscated more than half a ton of oleomargarine, part of it colored and the rest in the uncolored state.

Arraigned before J. W. Finney, United States commissioner, Ten Eyck entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of manufacturing colored oleomargarine without a license, and in default of $2,000 bail was remanded to the county jail to await a hearing Tuesday morning.

Encouraging.

A Philadelphia clergyman tells of an incident in connection with his first visit to a town in Pennsylvania, where he expected to be called as pastor.

While tramping along a dusty road he was so fortunate as to encounter a man in a wagon who gave him a lift. During the conversation that ensued between the two the divine chanced to ask:

"Do the folks hereabout enjoy religion?"

"I don't know exactly," replied his companion, "but I s'pose that them that has it enjoys it."

PITTSBURG SUFFERS FROM A DROUTH

This Despite Snow Is From One to Three Feet Deep.

Pittsburg, Feb. 14.—In spite of snow from one to three feet in depth which covers the hills and valleys of western Pennsylvania the big industrial district of Pittsburg is in the midst of a drouth which is interfering with manufacturing to a great extent. The coke belt is suffering perhaps worst. Orders were Sunday given that thousands of ovens which have been running for weeks be not fired at midnight, as has been intended.

During the week just ended there were several thousand ovens shut down. It was estimated at the last of the week that one sixth of the independent ovens had already been closed down, and one sixth of the steel corporation ovens were not running. The Pittsburg mill district is suffering badly from low waters in rivers from which their supplies are drawn. In many cases water has fallen below the intake pipes through which water is taken to the big mills, and in other cases water taken to the mills is so filled with sediment and acids that it is dangerous to boilers. The Pittsburg Railways company is suffering severely from the lack of water.

A great snow storm called all their reserve electric power into play, and through lack of water the company has been unable to generate the necessary additional power. It has been estimated that 30,000 horsepower is needed to move the trolley cars of Pittsburg, and the additional snow plows and heavier hauling increased the demand to 40,000 horsepower; but owing to a low stage of water in the rivers the street car people were unable to raise this power quickly when wanted. Sunday the street car lines had to cut through drifts ten feet in depth in some places.

REORGANIZE THE TREASURY

One Hundred Thousand May Spent In Doing So.

NORTON ASKS FOR THE SUM

Assistant Secretary of Treasury Believes That Following Reorganization $1,000,000 May Be Saved Annually In Operating Expenses—Norton Argues Before Committee.

Washington, Feb. 14.—There is to be a complete re-organization of the treasury department. It is expected that by an expenditure of $100,000 the treasury will save at least $1,000,000 and probably a great deal more in operating expenses. The work of the various bureaus is to be gone over carefully, and various economies now in contemplation effected. All this is contingent, however, on the appropriation of the $100,000, which Assistant Secretary Norton of the treasury has asked the house appropriations committee to include in the executive, legislative and judicial appropriation bill.

When Mr. Norton was before the committee several days ago he was questioned closely by members of the legislative sub-committee, of which Representative Bingham (Pa.) is the chairman, as to what he proposed to do with the money if he got it. Mr. Bingham referred to the fact that in the urgent deficiency bill there is an item of $25,000 to be used as a contingent fund at the disposal of the secretary of the treasury, and Mr. Norton declared that this sum as well as the $100,000 extra would all be needed before the re-organization was completed.

"Why," said Mr. Norton, "the strong point in favor of this $100,000 estimate is that the secretary of the treasury transacts a business, the expenses of which are $38,000,000, and he has as a contingent fund subject to his own disposition for investigation as to betterments and improvements only $500 under existing law. It is impossible for the secretary for $500 to get effective outside co-operation unless it is donated by experts, which, of course, is not desired. To give the secretary some freedom, such as he would have if he were in private business, it is absolutely necessary that he should have a fund at his own personal disposal. We have made a careful estimate, and we will need all that money and more next year for this purpose.

"If we have this appropriation of $100,000 we shall secure expert help at once on the re-organization to affect a saving in business methods. We shall put to work the ablest analysists we can find, and we expect the results of their observations to show materially in our estimates next year."

BEWARE OF CATARRH

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

TRIED IT ON DAD.

Botanist of the Family Treats the Old Man on a Discovery.

A prominent Yale professor is exceptionally fond of mushrooms. His son, who is an enthusiastic botanist, one day brought some home and told his mother to have them prepared as a special treat for his father. When the professor came in to dinner he was delighted to find his favorite dish at his place.

"These are not all for me, are they?" he asked, not wishing to be selfish.

"Yes, father; I gathered them specially for you," answered the dutiful son.

Next morning his son was awaiting him with rather an anxious expression on his face. "Good morning, dad," he ventured. "Did you sleep all right last night?"

"Fine," was the encouraging reply.

"Not sick at all, or didn't have any pain?"

"Why, of course not!" answered the professor.

"Hoorah!" said the botanist. "I have discovered another species that is not poisonous!"—Success Magazine.

Suddenly he tripped and fell sprawling to the floor, carrying a goodly portion of his charming partner's gown.

Roars of derisive laughter greeted his contortion, and ruefully he extricated himself from the masses of chiffon and lace.

Reaching the side of a gentleman whose face had not assumed even the ghost of a smile, he burst out gratefully:

"Sir, you are a gentleman! You are the only man in the room who did not grin when I had the misfortune to tear that lady's dress!"

"Don't thank me, my dear sir!" replied he of the stony stare. "The lady happens to be my wife, and I paid for that dress!"—Answers.

Four and Its Multiple of Ten.

The number four was anciently esteemed the most perfect of all, being the arithmetical mean between one and seven. Omah, the second caliph, said, "Four things come not back—the spoken word, the sped arrow, the past life, the neglected opportunity." In nature there are four seasons and the four points of the compass.

Forty, a multiple of four by ten, is one of the sacred numbers. The probation of our first parents in the garden of Eden is supposed to have been forty years. The rain fell at the deluge forty days and nights, and the water remained on the earth forty days. The days of embalming the dead were forty. Solomon's temple was forty cubits long. In it were ten lavers, each four cubits long and containing forty baths.

Moses was forty years old when he fled into the land of Midian, where he dwelt forty years. He was on Mount Sinai forty days and forty nights. The Israelites wandered in the wilderness forty years. The Saviour fasted forty days and nights before entering upon public life. The same time elapsed between the resurrection and the ascension.—Exchange.

The Very Best Ever

ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN AT GRANGE HALL

By the Ladies of the Tecumseh Grange Last Thursday Night.

Tecumseh Grange Hall has witnessed some rare entertainments, but never before was anything so thoroughly enjoyable in every way given within its walls as was the program given by the ladies of the Grange last Thursday night. The business session was brief, all the chairs being filled by the ladies. Worthy Past Master, Mrs. D. T. Hall, and Worthy Past Treasurer, Mrs. J. L. VanDoren, and Worthy Past Secretary, Mrs. C. E. Holdridge, occupying their old places.

When the entertainment began, every seat was occupied and standing room was at a premium. First came an instrumental duet by Mrs. Bramble and daughter, Bernice, followed by a recitation by Vera Sisson, "The six little ducks." Then came Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works, being five pieces of statuary that were wonderfully life like. In fact I really thought I saw the big doll wink at me. I asked the names of the Siamese twins and a man near me said they were "Which and Tother," but neither he nor I could tell "Tother from Which." I didn't meet the lady who had them in charge, but suspect she was the old lady Jarley herself. It kept her assistant going some, to keep them all wound up, and their joints properly oiled, but she was equal to it. Then came a good reading by Mrs. Finch Bird life, followed by a two act comedy.

In the first scene, I tried to learn which of the four girls in the scene was the oldest and I found out. It was the girl with her hair combed down over her ears.

A French woman is the object of a good deal of suspicion on the part of her gossiping neighbors and there is something doing when her Maid, Betty, accidentally takes poison. The timely arrival of the doctor, with his stomach pumps, pulled her through. "Betty" soon becomes the star in any play.

The duet by Reuben and Rachel was very fine. Reuben was a comely youth, who was determined to make an impression on Rachel, and so was gotten up regardless of expense. His broad brimmed Quaker hat was very fetching but I have a suspicion that his trousers were borrowed for the occasion. Rachel concluded finally that she didn't want the men all transported far beyond the Northern Seas, even though at one time she declared she did.

The two original papers, "City vs. country life," by Mrs. Andrew Wilson and "Civilizing Africa" by Mrs Helen McNeil were especially good and showed work on the part of the authors.

Now listen.—From a distance came the strains of "Marching through Georgia," and finally a genuine colored minstrel troupe marches in. The leader, Melinda, with her banjo ascends a sort of throne and an even dozen dusky damsels gather around her. What singing! Nothing like it was ever heard in Grange hall before. A good sized colored girl—Miss Magdalena, Evalina Wonderly from Atlanta, Georgia, occupied a central position, and, under Melinda's direction, led the singing. She was awfully black, but, what a voice! What depth of tone and feeling in that duet, "Juanita" as rendered by Melinda and Miss Magdaena Evalina.

How that plaintive old plantation song, "Nellie Gray" carried me back to the days "befo de wah."

Melinda had some difficulty in getting her girls to rise together when it was time to sing. They didn't get up altogether, quite to her liking, and she mildly reproved them for it. My galluses broke when a sprightly girl pulled her gown and insisted, "I did, Melinda, I did. "I got up all togedder." None but a genuine African, straight from the cotton fields, could have said it just as she did. And I lost some buttons when Chloe "pounded de time." Evidently she learned to pound de time on some plantation back in Ole Virginy. And what a school of information the troupe proved to be!

Tecumseh mothers know now where to get their babies weighed. Every baby, white or black, boy or girl, warranted to weigh fohty fo pound, if weighed on George Kay's ice scales.

If you happen to eat too many green apples and have trouble in your interior, and no doctor handy, send a hurry-up call for Mrs. Finch to come and bring O. B.'s vacuum cleaner.

How nice it is that our good friends, Mr. and Mrs. Ben VanNess can do their cooking this winter without using wood, coal or gasoline. But, I regret that so good a Granger as brother Otis Sisson, should have been arrested. And what a serious charge! Deputy Teachout told Justice Hosmer that he was charged with soda water.

How it must have tried Clem Bramble when daylight came and he found himself on the turnpike, trying to sell a feed and litter carrier to an empty button.

Floyd Bryan would surely be in that western town called "Holder" yet, if he hadn't been so desperately anxious to get to another "burgh."

Pretty hard on Harry Smith that he has to have hay fever in the winter. Better take Melinda's advice, Harry, and do something more than sneeze.

Why is Jonah Waldron like Pharaoh's daughter? I had to give it up.

Melinda says "he doan look like nobody's dautah, but the colored girls proved that there was a similarity.

Jim McCann couldn't have made much when he sold Albert Cadmus his outfit when he went into mourning for his mother-in-law.

The ladies covered themselves with glory, and, while the men did exceedingly well, they are so far behind in the race that they don't know they ran.

In the coming long, hot summer days, when I am weeding onions or hoeing cabbage, or unloading two or three carloads of binder twine for the Grange or driving home a flock of my pure mongrel honey-bees that have crawled under the fence and are scratching up my neighbor's buckwheat patch. I shall be awfully tired and will think I must give up. Then I shall hark back to that February night when it was cooler (except in Grange Hall) and I shall see Mother Jarley and her statuary, and I'll hear Reuben and Rachel sing, and I'll see Betty brought back to earth again, and Melinda and Chloe and Topsy, and the other coons will roll their eyes at me—just as they did last Thursday night, and I shall laugh and wink at them, just as I did last Thursday night—and I'll forget the kinks in my old back and go ahead again.

Long live Tecumseh Grange, and Melinda—long live she, and when she gives another minstrel show, may I be there to see.

Secretary.

FROM WASHINGTON.

(BY OUR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.)

Washington, Feb. 14, 1910.

The Congressional reception at the White House under the new administration, was given February 1st, and the innovations of the President and Mrs. Taft were put to a final test.

Four of these semi-public receptions are given yearly when the guests of honor are first the Diplomatic corps, followed by the judiciary, the members of congress and the army and navy. The congressional reception is always the largest, the least exclusive and heretofore has been the dullest.

For many years it has been the custom to have the guests form in line on their arrival and wait until the President and receiving party had assembled in one of the smaller apartments, the green room or blue room. Then at a signal from the army officer and close friend of the President, who was in charge, the doors were thrown open and the guests were allowed, one at a time, to pass in and shake hands with the president and pass on to the East room into a crowd which made it impossible to move about and from which all sought relief in flight as soon as possible.

A number of changes have been made in this plan of entertainment since Mrs. Taft has become the ruler of the White House, Mr. Taft being the self effacing American husband in social matters, and official and resident society for the most part, approves innovations.

To begin with, Mrs. Taft announced that the receptions should be more exclusive. She drew the line at issuing invitations to tailors, grocers and hoi polloi "trade." That enabled her to reduce the list considerably. Then she announced through a secretary that those who were invited to one reception need not feel slighted if they were omitted from the list for the others. It was the object of the receptions to give all who were deemed worthy of it an opportunity to greet the president under his own roof and not to furnish a series of entertainments for them.

This of course further reduced the number to be invited and as a consequence made it possible to give the receptions an air of hospitality that had been lacking in all previous administrations.

WORDS OF WISDOM FROM MEN OF "YE OLDEN TIME"

Applicable to Those of the Present Time.

"I am a great eater of beef, and I believe that it does harm to my wit."—Shakespeare.

"I have come to the conclusion that mankind consumes too much food."—Sidney Smith.

"Choose rather to punish your appetites than to be punished by them."—Maximus.

"For the sake of health, medicines are taken by weight and measure; so ought food to be, or by some similar rule."—Skelton.

"A well-governed appetite is a great part of liberty."—Seneca.

"Gluttony is the source of all our infirmities, and the fountain of all our diseases. As a lamp is choked up by a superabundance of oil, and a fire extinguished by excess of fuel, so is the natural health of the boy destroyed by intemperate diet."—Burton.

My son, never run after a woman or a street car, there will be another one along in a minute or two.

DIARY OF A RESOLUTION.

Jan. 1.—I was born today. Of course my impressions as to the world into which I have just made my debut are somewhat fragmentary, but of one thing I am certain—my father is a very pleasant sort of chap. I confess that he is a bit awkward about holding me, and he seems rather ridiculously proud of me, but I dare say both will pass away with increased familiarity.

Jan. 2.—Well, I have met her. At least I suppose the very charming girl we called on last evening is my mother, though I was surprised to hear father call her "Miss Alice." No doubt there are manners in this world to which I must become accustomed. My proud parent exhibited me to my other parent, who was really charmingly enthusiastic over me. She promised to go to the theater with us and have a little supper afterward. We are to sup at the water wagon, which must be a fashionable restaurant, as she seemed so delighted and laughed so at the prospect.

Jan. 3.—My father exhibited me at his club today and seemed as proud as Punch over my accomplishments. Perhaps I should say "accomplishment," for the only one I have had time to acquire is saying, "No, thank you." But it seemed to take very well, for all my father's friends laughed a great deal whenever I said it.

Jan. 4.—I don't feel well today.

Jan. 5.—Something is wrong. My father was quite rude to me today.

Jan. 6.—My father left me at home all day, and I feel rather neglected.

Jan. 7.—I think it's all over with me. One of my father's friends came to call on us this evening, and my father petted me and praised me; but, oh, I could feel that he wasn't sincere! His friend examined me closely and finally remarked that there was something wrong with my backbone. He must be a doctor. I am very unhappy.

Jan. 8.—It is all over with me. We went to the theater tonight with my mother, and neither of my parents paid a bit of attention to me or to the play. I was right about the fashionable restaurant, but it has changed its name. We have taken a table, and three of us are very jolly. I don't feel well. There is an elderly woman with us. She must be my grandmother. Oh, dear! My father is ordering supper, and I feel worse. Wait. My mother says something about me. But my mother is laughing, and he answers, "Never mind that. (That!) It has served its purpose, and we simply must celebrate the engagement." Heartless man! And they are all smiling. Oh, dear! I feel so bad—(Pop! Gurgle, gurgle, gurgle.) There, now, see what he's done! I'm dead.—New York Times.

ALMA COLLEGE.

Track prospects are now beginning to foreshadow the athletic horizon. Coach Carrithers opened the season by organizing a number of classes for indoor track work, the same to be supplemented by a series of lectures and discussions on the general theory of track athletics.

A triangular meet has been arranged with Olivet and M. A. C. for May 21, while negotiations are under way for a similar meet between Ypsilanti, Mt. Pleasant and Alma. The intercollegiate meet will be pulled off at Kalamozoo June 3 and 4.

"Fleety" McComb, who holds record for the hundred yard dash 1:10 flat, Waring a jumper, and Keegan an all round man, are again on deck, while King, Misenar, Fraker, Blaske, Ingerton and the Ole Anderson are slated to do something for the new men. With the two triangular meets and a number of preliminary ones Alma's chances at the intercollegiate are indeed promising.

Mrs. Josphine St. John, principal of the Alma school of music, has returned from Germany where she placed Miss Dora Alexander in the Royal Conservatory of Dresden. Miss Alexander will be a pupil of the celebrated Frau Proffessor Braunroth, who is the present head of the Organi school for voice culture. Miss Alexander after singing before the examing board was at once admitted to one of the upper classes, which is in itself a compliment both to Miss Alexander and her former tutor Mrs. St. John.

The Alpha Theta girls after having enjoyed an excellent spread in the palacial dining parlors of Wright Hall, adjourned to their society rooms and elected the officers for the ensuing year:

Vice Pres.—Agnes Redman.
Secretary—Hattie Mills.
Treas.—Ruth Hovey.
Reporter—Jean Dykes.
Guard—Cecil Krapf.

Through the able efforts of Prof. G. T. Churchill, principal of the college commercial department, Alma can now boast of a nine piece orchestra. Prof. Churchill is himself a talented musician, and indications are that the orchestra is to be augmented in the near future. It has made several public appearances, each time meriting a goodly amount of commendation.

M. E. CONFERENCE.

Mayor Breitmeyer through D. W. Springer Detroit member of the book committee of the M. E. Conference has presented an invitation to the general conference session to be held in May 1912 to make Detroit the place of meeting.

The new Music hall which Mr. Stearns is now projecting will be sufficiently advanced so it could be used for the occasion, as it will be larger than any other hall in the city and should the invitation be accepted, every effort would be made to insure a good meeting. To the Methodist of Michigan this would be a very desirable place to gather on that occasion.

Short and Sweet.

Perhaps one of the shortest courtships was that of an eminent jurist. He was on his way to hold court in a town when he met a young woman returning from market.

"How deep is the creek and what did you get for your butter?" asked the judge.

"Up to the knee and ninepence," was the answer as the girl walked on.

The judge pondered over the sensible brevity of the reply, turned his horse, rode back and overtook her.

"I liked your answer just now," he said, "and I like you. I think you would make a good wife. Will you marry me?"

She looked him over and said "Yes."

"Then get up behind me, and we will ride to town and be married."

She did get up behind, and they rode to the courthouse and were made one. It is recorded that, brief though the courtship had been, the marriage proved a pre-eminently happy one.

Disguised Hands Always Bad.

"Here is a truth," says a handwriting expert, "that is as widespread as the ether: A disguised hand always tries to be poorer than the real hand. That axiom is a great help to us experts. For instance, when a letter done in a disguised hand is brought to us we always know that the writer of the letter is in a higher station than the hand would lead us to infer; hence in our detective work we are able to save much valuable time by eliminating all persons socially below the appearance of the letter and concentrating our attention on those only who are above it."

Mrs. Tefft favored the audience with a sketch of the Passion Play, tracing its origin, outlining the history of the community in which it is given and telling something about the people who have taken and are taking part. After the entertainment a number of views illustrative of the great drama were shown to those who cared to see them. There were several musical numbers, includfng a phonograph concert and selections by the Middleton orchestra.

TECUMSEH, MICH., FEBRUARY 14th, 1910.

To the Congregation of the First Presbyterian Church, Tecumseh, Michigan.

Rev. J. Wirt Dunning presented his resignation to the officers of the Presbyterian church Monday evening, to accept a call to the First Presbyterian church of Portsmout, Ohio, to take effect April 1st. The city of Portsmouth has about 30,000 inhabitants, and the church is a down town one with a membership of 600, it is to consolidate with the Central church which will bring the membership up to over 800. They contemplate building a new church and church house in the near future.

The undersigned hereby tenders his [illegible] as pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Tecumseh, Mich., to accept a call to the First Presbyterian church of Portsmouth, Ohio, and asks that you concur with him in a request to Monroe Presbytory to dissolve the pastoral relation now existing on the first day of April, or as soon thereafter as they may decide.

This resignation is offered after a month of careful and prayerful consideration, not only of the opportunities of the prospective field, but of the interests and needs of our own loved church in Tecumseh. The decision is made believing that the largest and best interests of the Kingdom of God will be served thereby.

The church to which I am called is a down town church in a growing city and in the center of a large population yet unreached by the gospel. The church has sufficient support to enable it to take an advanced step in reaching these people, and is contemplating consolidation with a smaller church in the interests of a progressive campaign. This call coming entirely unsought, and feeling that it offers me an opportunity for enlarged usefulness, I have regretfully yet hopefully decided to accept the call.

The years spent with you have been very profitable and happy ones for me, and I trust also for you and the kingdom of God.

To the faithful officers in all departments, and the many loyal helpers and fellow laborers in the work I have tried to do; I want to express my deepest gratitude and sincere appreciation, and to express the hope that in the future with other leadership you may be led to still larger things.

All who have an interest in the work of the church in any way, attending its services, on contributing to its support, I wish to thank for their interest and help, and bespeak for the future the encouragement that has so gladly and generoufly given in the past.

It is my earnest hope and prayer that the church to which I have ministered these three years, may grow into larger and larger usefulness as the years go by.

It has been a blessed experience to be with you in this work, and your continued kindness and helpfulness to me have been such as my life and labors do not decrease. It is therefore with regret that I sever the happy relationships of the past and enter a new and untried labor.

May ths future bring to you all, a fuller experience of the blessed things of Christ. than that to which I have been able to lead you.

Wherefore I bespeak for him, who in the future shall serve you, the love and loyalty, you have given me.

"And may the Lord bless you and cause his face to shine upon you. May He lift up his countenance upon you and give you peace."

Your Minister in Christ,
John Wirt Dunning.

To H. S. Waring.
Clerk of Congregation.

CLASS SOCIAL

A very pleasant time was enjoyed by Miss Nannie Kyle's class last week on their visit to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Benedict. Among the amusements of the evening were a crocheting contest by the ladies and sewing on buttons by the young men. Each lady was requested to bring a crochet hook and thread and the one who completed a dolly first was the lucky winner. Mrs. Osborn and Dr. Valens carried off the two prizes. In the button contest Mr. Satterlee carried off the first prize and Henry McClure 2nd. Please notice Henry has a wife. Refreshments were served to which all paid tribute.

TAKE NOTICE GIRLS.

Mrs. A. T. Marlett of the University of Wisconsin, has voiced her sentiments of dainty underwear, and various other subjects, before a large class of girls at the La Crosse County Agriculture College.

All the fine underwear she denounced as useless because it is unseen, and enslaving to the women who launders it. She predicted the time as near by, when women would wear but the two garments, undersuits and Gym. suits about their work.

She referred to young women as "Copy Cats," because they followed certain styles adopted by their friends.

She deprecated the use of false hair also of hats, claiming that there would be no need for hair tonics and headaches would disappear.

She remarked that the average woman had a putty shape, to be moulded to conform with any fashion. Another brilliant idea was that women should train their husbands to do most of the housework. predicting that the husband would be the household drudge.

Being women we cannot enter into her peculiar ideas, we think her condemnation of the pretty things that young girls delight in for their own pleasure, is but to bring forward her ideas of dress. Just imagine the busy housewife of all ages and conditions parading around in gym. suits at their work and her reflections on the form of the average women are certainly not flattering and then think of that husband in the kitchen. Well we think if he attends to the business outside, the woman of the house should resign in her own kitchen.

AMUSEMENTS!

Tom Marks Co.

How often have you heard the expression, "Oh, it takes Tom Marks Company to pack the house in this town" and how often have you seen this statement verified. The reason for this expression is very simple, in the first place, a company headed by Mr. Tom Marks is a sure guarantee that the public will get their moneys worth and in the next place the Tom Marks Company is the most reliable stock organization on the road.

Mr. Marks has spent a vast amount of time, undivided attention, forethought and expense in making a company study of what will please patrons most and we believe that when Mr. Marks and his excellent company appear at the Bradley Opera House Feb. 17, for a three nights engagement, the public will say that they are even better than ever and that is saying a great deal. Don't forget the date Feb. 17-18-19 at popular prices. See ad. for farther particulars.

SAVED BY THE KING.

An Incident in the Career of Holbein, the Painter.

There happened an affair in England which might have been fatal to Holbein if the king had not protected him. On the report of his character a nobleman of the first quality wanted one day to see him when he was drawing a figure after the life. Holbein in answer begged his lordship to defer the honor of his visit to another day, which the nobleman took for an affront. He broke open the door and very rudely went upstairs. Holbein, hearing the noise, left his chamber and, meeting the lord at his door, fell into a violent passion and pushed him backward from the top of the stairs to the bottom.

Considering, however, immediately what he had done, he escaped from the tumult he had raised and made the best of his way to the king. The nobleman, much hurt, though not so much as he pretended, was there soon after him, and upon opening his grievance the king ordered Holbein to ask pardon for his offense. But this only irritated the nobleman the more, who would not be satisfied with less than his life, upon which the king sternly replied:

"My lord, you have not now to do with Holbein, but with me. Whatever punishment you may contrive by way of revenge against him shall assuredly be inflicted upon yourself. Remember, pray, my lord, that I can whenever I please make seven lords of seven plowmen, but I cannot make one Holbein even of seven lords."—"Life of Holbein."

WIDTH OF A RIVER.

A Way to Measure It Without the Use of Instruments.

It is necessary to make use only of the eyes and the brim of a hat to measure the width of any ordinary stream or even of a good sized river, and here is the way to do it:

Select a part of the river bank where the grounds run back level behind you and, standing at the water's edge, fix your eyes on the opposite bank. Now move your hat down over your brow until the edge of the brim is exactly on a line with the water line on the other side. This will give you a visual angle that may be used on any level surface, and if, as has been suggested, the ground on your side of the river be flat you may "lay off" a corresponding distance on it. To do this you have only to hold your head perfectly steady, after getting the angle with your hat brim, supporting your chin with your hand if necessary and turn slowly around until your back is toward the river. Now, take careful note of where your hat brim cuts the level surface of the ground as you look over the latter, and from where you stand to that point will be the width of the river, a distance that may readily be measured by stepping.

If you are careful in all these details you can come within a few feet of the river's width.

A lawn mower was said to be invented by a grass-widower.

Wind and Temper.

There is a closer connection between wind and temper than at first sight appears. A coldish wind has a bracing effect and, on the whole, is beneficial. In countries where hot winds occur periodically, on the other hand, these are regarded as a nuisance, if not a curse. Every one almost gets cross, weary and done up and has a headache daily. In Egypt the season when crimes are commonest is when the hot khamseen blows. Nearly always during a severe sirocco the Arabs in Algeria were restless, if they did not attempt an actual rising. The solano, which now and then rushes across the Mediterranean in fiery blasts from Africa, upsets every one in Spain and is the worst wind in that country. And even in the Pearl of the Antilles the fierce hot wind is such a pest that it is recorded of a family living in Havana that they made it a rule in the household to preserve absolute silence until the wind disappeared. It was the only plan they could think of to avoid family quarrels.

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Tecumseh Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1—comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or thick, red, illsmelling urine, full of sediment and irregular passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2—comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Tecumseh proof:

Elias C. Brisbin, N. Democrat St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I began to suffer from kidney trouble twenty years ago. I tried many remedies for relief were unsuccessful. I had severe backaches and the kidney secretions were highly colored and highly irregular in passage. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and they promptly relieved me. I have since kept this remedy in the house and whenever I have taken it, good results have followed." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Seven Arrested For Burglary.

Monroe, Mich., Feb. 14.—Acting on a tip from the Toledo police, Sheriff Dull went to that city, and with two detectives arrested seven men and one woman, who are believed to be responsible for the burglary at Temperance and the bank robbery at Riga two or three nights ago, and passibly for most of the other safe-cracking jobs in southern Michigan the last few months. The men arrested gave their names as Tom Edwards, George Wilcox, Frank Price, J. J. Robinson of Springfield, O., Joe Smith of Buffalo, and Frank Williams and F. F. Meyer of Pittsburg. The woman calls herself May Rowland. Edwards and Price refused to come to Michigan without extradition papers, but the others were all brought here and lodged in jail.

Was Formaldehyde In Milk?

Saulte Ste. Marie, Mich., Feb. 14.—Students in the high school laboratory, while conducting tests of milk, were surprised to find what they supposed to be traces of formaldehyde. The teacher immediately conducted a personal test. He declines to say positively whether or not his finding substantiated the students' belief. He intends, however, to make further tests to satisfy himself and then report to the board of health.

Plant Trees; Redeem Waste Land.

Battle Creek, Mich., Feb. 14.—M. W. Wentworth, steward of the Battle Creek sanitarium, has purchased 200 acres, on which he will plant 10,000 trees. Among the species are several of the locust variety which will be used for fence posts. The idea of Wentworth is to utilize the marsh land for timber raising, thus redeeming almost worthless real estate; useless, at least, for any other purpose.

SENSE OF HEARING.

Sound Waves and the Way They Act Upon the Ears.

The detection of the direction of a sound by the sense of hearing is, like the rapid focusing of the eye on objects at different distances, one of those instinctive operations which are continually done without any conscious method.

Sound waves traverse the air as ripples stir the water, and the ear by experience acquires some slight power of detecting the direction in one case, as the eye does with far greater accuracy in the other. Usually we unconsciously receive assistance from other senses as well. Often we fail to locate at once some hidden source of sound, such as a singing bird, and then our instinctive ingenuity displays itself.

The intensity of sound is, of course, by no means so great behind a screen as in front of it, and every one carries with him the screen of his own head, which may prevent a particular sound from being heard so well by one ear as by the other. If, then, the head is turned until this inequality disappears and both ears hear equally well we know that we must be directly facing or turned from the source of sound, and our previous rough idea of its whereabouts generally prompts us to face it.

Toastmaster at Grand Rapids Lincoln Club Banquet.

HUGE SUCCESS.

Lincoln Banquet at Grand Rapids Surpassed Previous Occasions.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 14.—With by far the greatest array of oratorical talent ever in attendance and over 1,800 persons crowded in the Manufacturers' building, the eighteenth annual banquet of the Lincoln club Saturday evening was the greatest ever. The crowd surpassed anything anticipated by those behind the big event. No accident occurred to mar the big feast, but on half a dozen occasions it was necessary to call the police to clear the aisles of those who persisted in obstructing the views of the banqueters.

As the speakers appered in the hall Vice President Sherman and Commander Peary were accorded enthusiastic ovations. All four of the gubernatorial candidates were also vigorously applauded in turn as they entered and when they spoke.

In the afternoon Claude Hamilton, assistant secretary of the Michigan Trust company, was elected president for the coming year. If Monroe Dunham, assistant prosecuting attorney for Kent county, was re-elected secretary, and Walter Brooks was chosen treasurer.

Prominent Man Dies Suddenly.

Saginaw, Mich., Feb. 14.—Following a visit to police headquarters and the store of James A. Griggs, his nephew, when he appeared to be in normal health, James K. Griggs, president of the police board and one of Saginaw's foremost citizens, complained of a pain in his heart as he entered his home, 321 North Washington avenue, shortly before noon. An instant later he threw up his hands and sank to death in a chair. The announcement of his death caused great surprise.

A RARE COIN.

It Is Called a "Misstrike" and Is Very Seldom Seen.

"See this penny I got today at the postoffice," said the cashier. "There aren't five other pennies like it in the United States."

He handed out a cent piece with the die impression half off the face of the coin and with a big half moon of blank metal showing along one side.

"They call it a misstrike," he continued. "Perhaps once in 10,000,000 times the two little notched fingers on the minting machines that grip the blank disk and draw it forward to the die fail to spring away. In this case the left hand finger stuck and pushed the coin halfway over the die. That is how the impression is only half on the disk.

"You can see the raised edge on the blank portion of the metal," the cashier went on as he took up his pen. "It isn't everybody knows that each coin goes under the dies twice. The first time it is struck with a blank, dome shaped set of dies to put an edge on the disk. Then it gets the regular die with the familiar head on it.

"What's it worth? Oh, I'll say probably $25 or so. I see it's been in circulation for nine years. It's a wonder some coin collector hasn't nabbed it. I'm going to keep it as a rarity."—New York Times.

"INSURGENTS" NOT PLEASED

Some of Senators Stirred by Taft's New York Talk.

BRISTOW SPOKE OUT PLAINLY

House "Insurgents" More Ready to Grant Merit to Speech—Administration Men Have No Protest to Make—Western Republican Senators, Too, Are Pleased.

Washington, Feb. 14.—The president and party got back to Washington from New York at 9:25 last night. There was a crowd of nearly 1,000 people in the Union station when the president's train came in.

President Taft has decided that there is no need for him to make further explanation of what he intends to do, and it seems unlikely that in the near future the president will deliver any more messages like that which took him to the Lincoln dinner of the New York Republican club. The president, his friends in Washington say, has expressed the idea recently that he has done enough explaining and that he intends now to get down to the business of pushing his legislative program through congress.

The president, in conversation with friends, illustrated his attitude by the story about a famous head master of Baliol college, Oxford, whose name was Jewett. In addressing a student one day Jewett gave this advice: "You man, do not excuse; don't explain; get it done; let 'em yell." The president is going to "let 'em yell" and will go ahead and try and get it done.

Find Comfort In It.

Administration Republicans in congress found a good deal of comfort in the president's New York speech. As an "opener" for the congress campaign they declared it to be timely and effective. The "near insurgents" also were pleased, but the real "simon pure insurgents" seemed to be considerably ruffled.

The latter regard the reiteration by President Taft of his tariff sentiments as an unnecessary reopening of an old sore. Senator Bristow (Kas.), who insurges probably harder than any other member of the senate, openly expressed his dissatisfaction with the speech. Senator Lafollette also was far from being enthusiastic, and it is safe to assume that Senator Cummins (Ia.) and Clapp (Minn.) also will find some grounds for complaint. As a matter of fact, President Taft's New York speech seems to have widened the breach between him and the revolting Republicans of the middle west.

"As to the tariff," said Senator Bristow when asked for his opinion of the speech, "I am still standing upon the Republican national platform. I state without hesitation that the new tariff law is not in fulfillment of the pledges made by the Republican platform of 1908, nor does it carry out promises made publicly on the stump by the Republican candidate for president in that year. I would like to have the details upon which the president bases his conclusion that the tariff law was, as a general proposition, a revision downward. He says the importations of free raw materials has increased.

"When anyone undertakes to prove that the new tariff law is a revision downward he should give us details and not general statements. From his standpoint, the president's speech was a good one, but the details on which he bases his conclusions are lacking, and it is my opinion that the president's conclusions will not stand analysis."

Senator Lafollette begged to be excused from making any comments on the speech at this time.

House "Insurgents" Lenient.

"Insurgents" in the house were much more ready to grant merit to the president's speech. Said Representative Hayes (Cal.), leader of the Republican "insurgents" in the house:

"I like the president's speech. He did not dodge or evade any issue. It was a courageous utterance, and he who reads knows just where the president stands on the question that he discussed."

Representative Gardner (Mass.), another Republican "insurgent," said he had not read the speech carefully. "Those portions that I glanced over," he said, "struck me favorably. That is all I care to say about the matter."

Republican senators from the far western states seemed to think that the president had supplied in his speech the only think lacking to make him an effective leader of the party.

"Heretofore in his desire to please, which is one of Mr. Taft's most characteristic qualities," said a Republican senator from a western state, "the president has appeared to temporize. He spoke out courageously. People like aggressive and well defined leadership."

Tragic Joking.

Oswald's friends were always on the lookout for some ruse. He once notified them that on New Years day he should get the best of them all in some joke, and New Year's morning each received this notice, "Remember." They were on their guard.

As they were leaving a house where they had breakfasted Oswald slipped on the steps and fell on his back on the sidewalk. His friends rushed to his assistance, but paused before they reached him.

"This is his ruse," some one said.

Clearly the man who was so proud of his talent for mimicry was bent on deceiving them all into thinking him a dying man, for he lay there moaning pitifully, his face drawn and twisted as if with terrible pain.

His friends stood around and made jokes and puns and hummed lines of comic songs, assuring him all the while that they were not deceived by his acting. At last he gave a hoarse, mournful cry, looked at them sadly and then ceased to moan or writhe. In a never to be forgotten moment of horror and sorrow his friends realized that Oswald was dead.—"Souvenirs d'un Vieux Libraire."

A Reversal.

"I suppose you talked a lot of nonsense to your wife before you were married."

"Yes," answered Mr. Meekton. "Before we were married she thought my nonsense sensible. Now when I try to talk sense she thinks it's nonsense."—Exchange.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

MILAN—Mrs. W. T. Tankin, aged forty-five, wife of a prominent business man here, is dead, following an operation in the University hospital, in Ann Arbor.

ROCHESTER—Henry Johnson, fifty-three years of age, dropped dead shortly after arising from the dinner table. He was prominent in Masonic circles. He is survived by a widow and six children.

OWOSSO—Beebe C. Miller has received a Masonic pin through the mails from Portland, Ore., that he lost four years ago. The identity of the sender was not disclosed in the letter.

HARBOR BEACH—Peter Werbel, aged forty-two years, a section hand in the employ of the Pere Marquette, was struck by a snow plow and instantly killed while walking along the track. Because of the blinding snow storm Werbel failed to see the approaching plow.

MARQUETTE—The town of Dollarville, Luce county, has been sold by the Danaher Hardwood Lumber company to the Detroit Cedar & Lumber company of Detroit. The deal includes the mill, site, yards and houses—everything except the sawmill, which has been sold to Wickes Bros. of Saginaw, who are now dismantling the plant and will ship it elsewhere.

OWOSSO—Mrs. Robert Bowles and her daughter, Myrtle, have been arrested on complaint of Charles Listerman, who avers he gave it to Miss Bowls to keep for him and when he went after it she refused to give it to him, saying that he never gave her any money.

LANSING—One hundred and thirty applications have been received by the Michigan state board of registration of nurses, and of this number only three wished to take the examination before the board, the remaining number having presented credentials from schools and colleges in hopes of gaining admission in this manner, Secretary Shumway says this is impossible in some instances, as a number of schools represented do not give sufficient training as required by the rules of the board.

Profane History.

"Pop!"

"Well, what is it now? If it's foolish question No. 9,697 I'll spank you and put you to bed."

"No, pop; I just want to know what is profane history."

"Profane history, eh? Well—it's—it's just a term to distinguish it from sacred history."

"But why is it called profane, pop?"

"How the—that is, how do I know! I suppose it—say, you know when little George Washington cut down his father's pet cherry tree?"

"Yes, pop."

"Well, what little George's father said to little George is profane history. I should think you could get your lessons without bothering me with your fool questions."—New York Times.

A Gentle Laxative And Appetizer

Cure Dyspepsia; Trial Is Free

It is a popular mistake that only wealthy people who eat rich and highly-spiced foods suffer from dyspepsia, or, as it is also known, indigestion. The laborer in the street, the worker in the field also finds himself a victim of this disorder. Among the very greatest sufferers from it are women.

Dyspepsia is indicated by a constant feeling of laziness, by loss of appetite and troubled sleep, by sour stomach and distress after eating, by bad complexion and listeless eyes.

There is no surer and speedier cure for this trouble than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which dyspeptics have been using successfully for twenty years. This great herb laxative compound cured Capt. Clark, of Buffalo, Ia., of dyspepsia and sour stomach that he had had for forty years, or until the lucky day that he heard of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It cured Joel Adams, of Montgomery, Ala., after suffering continuously for sixteen months. These are only a few of the many. But it is not expensive to be cured with this grand remedy, as it can be bought at any drug store in a 50-cent or $1 bottle.

Your very neighbors are probably lifelong users of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, but if you want to know without expense what it will do for you personally, send your name to Dr. Caldwell and he will be glad to send you a free trial bottle. He is actually anxious to have you make a test of his remedy.

Thousands of families everywhere keep it in the house against such an emergency as constipation, sour stomach, indigestion, biliousness, dyspepsia, heartburn, torpid liver, etc., which may come on a member of the family any day. It is pleasant to the taste, acts gently and does not gripe. It is the great children's laxative tonic.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

THREE RIVERS HAS BANQUET

Lincoln Club Pulls Off Annual Affair.

FOUR HUNDRED ATTENDED

Montgomery, Osborn and Kelley Were Gubernatorial Candidates Present. Osborn Hands Bouquet to Hamilton, "Fit in Every Way to Occupy the Chair of Governor of State."

Three Rivers, Mich., Feb. 17.—With three of the four candidates for the gubernatorial nomination as guests, the Lincoln Republican club of Three Rivers held its fifteenth annual banquet last evening. The three were Judge Robert M. Montgomery, Chase S. Osborn and Patrick H. Kelley, and, besides them, Congressman Edward L. Hamilton of this district and Walter S. Taylor were at the speakers' table.

The banquet was held on the first floor of the Kelsey block and was attended by about 400. Judge Russell R. Pealer was toastmaster and introduced as the first speaker Walter S. Taylor, whose subject was "The Nucleus, Loyalty."

"Political parties," said Mr. Taylor, "are necessary in the furtherance of a government, and if these political parties are in evidence it is necessary that we join a party and stand loyally by it, and if a party, by some method, known or unknown, falls into such such ill repute that it cannot warrant loyalty to itself, its supporters should turn to another."

Osborn Selects New Topic.

Chase S. Osborn selected a new topic for his speech—"The Story of the North Country; Its Influence on the Party and State"—but it was principally a discussion of state issues and the needs of the state of Michigan. He handed a bouquet to Congressman Hamilton, who, he said, "is a man made for greater things, a man capable of achieving greater things, a man fit in every way to occupy the chair of the governor of the state."

Judge Montgomery followed Osborn. His talk was along the lines of state taxation. He said that he believes in equal taxation and the ad valorem system of taxation.

Patrick H. Kelley spoke on "State Business." He said that the state university, the agricultural college and the supreme court were the prime recipients of the state's money, thus demonstrating that 90 per cent of the expenditures are for educational purposes. What we want our government to do is to reduce the taxes, and not only that, but to show us where it has reduced them and not deal in generalities.

Ball Club Magnates Can't Agree.

New York, Feb. 17.—Another day of wrangling marked the session of the National League of Professional Baseball Clubs, at the Waldorf, Wednesday, the bone of contention being the adoption of a playing schedule for the coming season. In spite of many hours of hot argument, the magnates are still unable to agree. Five clubs, New York, Brooklyn, Chicago, Philadelphia and St. Louis, still hold out for a schedule of 168 games, while Boston, Pittsburg and Cincinnati remained firm in their effort to have the 154 game adopted. As it requires six votes to adopt a schedule, there seems to be a firm deadlock.

He was removed to Hahnemann hospital where he died.

CIPRIANO CASTRO.

He Wants to Take Up His Residence In Trinidad.

CASTRO WANTS TO GO TO TRINIDAD

Recently Thwarted In His Attempt to Do So.

London, Feb. 17.—Cipriano Castro, ex-president of Venezuela, has petitioned the British and American governments for permission to reside in Trinidad, where he recently bought a cocoa estate. He affirms that he is without means of living in Europe. He recently made an attempt to sail for South America on one of the Spanish transatlantic line steamers but the officials communicated with the American consul at Barcelona, who notified Washington, with the result that Castro concelled his passage.

Castro's real motive in seeking to reach Trinidad is believed to be to foment another revolution in Venezuela. He has still many followers, and it is reported that he has secreted a large armament in various parts of Venezuela.

GOT BOODLE MONEY.

Name of Second Man in New York Affair Given Out.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 17.—Senator Benn Conger testified Wednesday to the name of a second assemblyman to whom one of the three boodle envelopes distributed by Deacon Moe was given. It was that of the late Jean I. Burnett, who entered the assembly from Ontario county in 1899 and served until he died during the session in 1907.

Mr. Burnett had become one of the most influential members of the house presided over by the late Speaker Nixon and was chairman of the assembly cities committee when he died. At the time of the bribery Mr. Burnett was chairman of the assembly general laws committee. Whether Mr. Burnett got any of the money for himself, or whether he acted as a sort of wardman, has not yet been developed.

Governor Hughes is to investigate the state's purchases of Adriondack forest lands since this policy was inaugurated a dozen years ago.

In preparing for the trial of Senator Allds, counsel for Senator Conger investigated different things in which Senator Allds was interested, including forest land purchases by the state. Senator Allds has been employed by the state in passing upon the titles to this land. During the Allds trial counsel for Senator Conger have intimated that they were sorry they could not introduce in the evidence facts discovered in connection with these land purchases, intimating that prominent Republican politicians would be involved.

ELKINS' NIECE SEEKS DEATH

Shot Herself While In Kansas City Hotel.

BULLET OVER THE HEART

Wound Not Necessarily Fatal—Leaves Note to Newspapers, Saying She Was Simply Tired of Life—Likely Despondent Because Uncle Thwarted Her Stage Aspirations.

Kansas City, Feb. 17.—Miss Agnes Elkins, niece of Senator Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia, society woman, aspirant for stage honors, and litigant for heavy personal injury damages from the Metropolitan Street Railway company of this city, shot herself in her room at the Willard hotel, Ninth and Locust streets, at 2 o'clock in the morning, in an attempt to end her life. A bullet from a small revolver struck her just over the heart, inflicting a dangerous, but not necessarily fatal, wound. Dr. Phillips, her physician, says that she has a chance to recover. No statement has been given to the press other than the following:

"To the papers—I simply was tired of life, and the struggle for existence was more than I could meet.

(Signed) "Agnes Iese Elkins."

Before shooting herself, Miss Elkins, who is twenty-six years old, and noted for her beauty, wrote two long letters, one to J. N. Ashley, proprietor of the hotel, and another to his wife. If Miss Elkins lives the letters will be returned to her unopened. Friends assumed her chagrin at being stopped from a stage career by Senator Elkins, executor of an estate in which she has an inheritance of $20,000, and family troubles caused the young woman to grow despondent. She is a sister of Mrs. William H. H. Platt of this city, and it is an open secret that the two are not on friendly terms. Mrs. Platt was notified of the attempt the woman had made to die, but she did not go to the injured sister.

Miss Elkins is the grand-daughter of the late Dr. Hereford of this city. He was wealthy. Her father was a brother of Senator Elkins. Her mother, Mrs. Ada Elkins, formerly was a well known society and club woman of this city.

When Miss Elkins' father died he left $20,000 each to Miss Agnes, her sister, Mrs. William H. H. Platt, and her brother, John Elkins. This is the estate of which Senator Elkins was executor.

Miss Elkins recently returned from New York. It was there she had an offer from a theatrical manager. She had long wished for a stage career and was about to close a contract when the West Virginian interfered.

ELIMINATE TOBACCO.

Pennsylvania Railroad Would Have Employes Do So.

Pittsburg, Feb. 17.—Employes of the Pennsylvania railroad at Pittsburg have been ordered to refrain from the use of tobacco while on duty, at least, and also have been requested to break themselves completely of the habit if they can possibly do so. Applicants for positions with the road are now being questioned very closely regarding tobacco, and within the past few days scores who admitted themselves confirmed tobacco users were refused positions. It is claimed that tobacco chewing is hurtful to good performance of duty on the passenger trains, and that too much smoking hurts those who work in the offices.

Western Union's New Manager.

New York, Feb. 17.—Belvidere Brooks, who was superintendent of the eastern divison of the Western Union Telegraph company, has been appointed general manager of the company. Heretofore the president has been general manager too. Since the advent of the American Telephone and Telegraph interests there has been a belief in the directorate that the combined offices were too much for one man.

PRESIDENT IS HANDICAPPED

Cannot Promulgate His Corporation Tax Law.

UNTIL CONGRESS SHALL ACT

Washington, Feb. 17.—The teeth have been drawn from President Taft's corporation tax law, at least until congress acts. The president and his advisers have discovered that congress has appropriated no money with which to index and display the returns from the corporations. Congress, it is true, did appropriate $100,000 "for the expenses of collecting the corporation tax," but the president has discovered a law passed by congress back in 1862 which he construes as prohibiting the use of any of the money for promoting the publicity president intends, until this condition clause of the corporation tax. The president intends, until this condition of affairs can be rectified, to treat the returns from corporations merely as internal revenue returns, and thus the business secrets extracted from concerns all over the country will be accessible only to the taxpayer or its attorney, or to such persons as are authorized by the president.

Up to Congress.

The president puts the entire situation squarely up to congress. The acting secretary of the treasury has written a letter to Speaker Cannon, urging the necessity of the passage of a bill providing a $50,000 appropriation for carrying out the publicity feature of the law.

President Taft's impatience over the apparent indifference and hostility of congress to his legislative program became more evident Wednesday, when he summoned a number of senators to the White House and urged them to do something. In a measure he succeeded in getting action.

He called Senator Carter (Mont.) to the White House to discuss the prospect for the postal savings bank bill, and from Senator Beveridge he requested an account of the difficulties that beset the pathway of the bill reorganizing the Alaskan government and the measure giving statehood to New Mexico and Arizona.

The president also called in Senator Borah (Ida.) and tried to persuade him that it was the latter's duty to cease obstructing the Alaskan bill. Senator Borah has been one of the most persistent opponents of the bill.

HOT TIFF IN HOUSE.

Longworth and Mann Have Words Over Judgship Bill.

Washington, Feb. 17.—Representative Mann (Ill.) made a bitter attack on assistant attorney general Wade Ellis and chairman of the Republican committee of Ohio on the floor of the house Wednesday afternoon. A senate bill creating another judge for the northern district of Ohio, with an amendment by Representative Longworth (O.), doing the same thing for the southern district, was before the house when Representative Parker (N. J.), chairman of the judiciary committee, read a letter from Mr. Ellis, indorsing both propositions. Instantly, Mann was out of his seat, demanding to know whether the letter had been written before or after Mr. Ellis became chairman. It turned out that it had been written after he took the job, whereupon Mr. Mann, apparently very indignant, denounced it in no measured terms.

Mr. Longworth answered Mr. Mann. When he got on his feet he was angry. "I am afraid to say what I think," he cried, shaking his finger at the great objector.

"Don't be afraid," yelled Mr. Mann. "Go right ahead; don't be afraid of me."

Mr. Longworth swallowed hard and then went on in a more pacific way to describe the absolute necessity of another judge in the southern district of his state.

After this flurry the bill was passed, Mr. Mann registering the only negative vote.

BEWARE OF CATARRH

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

An Amateur Who Kept a Hotel and Made a Mistake.

By FRANK H. SWEET.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"Dear Phil—Mighty glad to hear from you and to know you're at leisure and contemplating a visit east. Start at once. I find the letter as a chance shot, for I remembered you wrote to some of your people at that place.

"Seems odd we've never heard a thing of each other in all these twenty-five years. But never mind. I feel just as ready for a lark as I did when I said goodby on the college campus, and I know you do.

"Now to business. I'm mighty sorry, but a whole lot has happened since I wrote you that letter seven days ago. My people are off pasturing in Europe, and I'd planned for us to have the whole summer together.

"But now I am cabled that my wife has been picked up by brigands in some of the old wornout mountains and that I must hurry over with a ransom.

"It will take some money, and, what's worse, a whole lot of time, and, what's still worse, I shall not be able to see you till after I get back.

"I remember you were a pretty good fellow to take hold of things, but not very good in arranging circumstances to your own advantage, so I don't suppose you've prospered much.

"I have, in the hotel business, and think we can make your visit of mutual advantage. I have 300 guests already in the house and 500 booked for later arrival, and there's a good manager for practical details, but not for the social side. You used to be great on that line.

HE BEGAN TO SEEK OUT GRACIE TO ENTERTAIN HER.

"Now I'm going to ask you to fill my chair until I get back—in fact, make it sort of compulsory—for I must take the steamer this afternoon. There will not be any real work, understand, only just to have a good time with the guests. Mr. Burke, the manager, will be looking for you. Start at once. And, oh, yes, there'll be no expense to you, of course, and if things go right there'll be something handsome when I return. Your old chum, BILL.

"P. S.—I have a little girl off at school whom I'll not have time to see. She'll not be any trouble, of course, but I'd like you to keep a general oversight of her. She'll be home for the summer vacation in a few days. Ta-ta. BILLY."

Philip Cudahay, just from college and recently come into possession of his father's millions, had commenced the letter with perplexed face; he ended it with a laugh.

"Evidently thinks I am my father," he thought, "and just as evidently, from our home address being in the country, considers him a small farmer of limited means. H'm!" He drew a letter from a pigeonhole in his desk. It was the one he had received seven days before and read:

"Phil Cudahay, Oakwoods, Md.:

"Are you still living, and could you arrange to make a visit east?

"BILLY BLACKWELL."

Phil's answer to this had been equally brief and to the point: "Certainly. Am contemplating a visit east even now. What'll you have?"

"Don't seem as if I ought to take advantage of it," he said, still grinning, as he thrust the letter back into its pigeonhole, "but it would be a lark to run a big hotel with a capable manager to hold the reins. The child would be the real trouble, though I've been told I have a way with children.

"H'm! I can't write and say father is dead, and the thing is jammed down into my pocket, with the owner already out of sight, and my idea of the man from his letter is that he didn't tell Manager Burke a thing except that a Phil Cudahay would have charge.

"I could be twenty or eighty, with any old size of looks, so long as the name proves up. H'm! I'll do it."

Hotel Amberset was seven miles from the nearest railroad point and reached by stage.

A number of people were in the same car, apparently guests for the hotel, but only one child.

He wondered if it could be Blackwell's daughter. He hoped not, for the child was peevish looking and evidently mischievous. Having charge of her would be a task as onerous as unpleasant.

With her was a young woman as nurse, or perhaps, as the child was ten or twelve, she was governess.

But instead of avoiding them at the station, as he was inclined, he lifted the little girl into the waiting bus and then took a place beside them. The whole thing was a great joke, but some of the component parts were likely to be very earnest.

Burke, the manager, accepted him as a matter of course, in a practical, businesslike way, but even he for the first day or two seemed a little surprised at the facility with which Phil dropped into the owner's chair.

Perhaps, after all, there had been some intimation of country rearing.

For the first week Phil was conscious of a strong desire to avoid the child, [illegible] not [illegible] larity of "Gracie," but this very consciousness made him seek her out oftener than he otherwise would. It was a joke, but he was personating his father, who was her father's friend. Be that thing the office of [illegible] was thus seriously occupying a good deal of his interest. He began to seek out Gracie, to entertain her, as he supposed, but it was her companion he looked at, with whom he talked.

"Miss Marian," as Gracie called her, was a remarkable young woman—beautiful, entertaining, accomplished, cultured—everything that Philip Cudahay thought a young woman should be and carrying all the accomplishments with an ease that was noticeable even in the big hotel full of people.

The guests themselves seemed to realize it, for they treated her as one of them, and many even sought her company.

Had it been any other nurse or governess Philip would have noticed and wondered. But with Marian it seemed a matter of course. He would have wondered had it been otherwise.

And so it happened that Miss Marian became uppermost in the amateur hotel keeper's mind. He thought about her so much that had he not had an admirable manager in Burke the hotel would have been soon deserted by its boarders.

His attentions were ostensibly devoted to Gracie, but really to the governess. He invited them both to drive with him afternoons, to go boating—indeed, to share with him those pleasures usually enjoyed by people in summer who have nothing to do.

One afternoon he was pulling the two along in one of the light boats used on a lake near the hotel, with his back to the bow, where he could not see what was coming.

Suddenly there was a crash. A moment rowing in the same relative position had fouled him. At first it did not appear that much damage had been done, and the man who had caused the trouble pulled away. But Phil's boat had sprung a leak. Handkerchiefs were thrust into the aperture, but the water, though checked, was not stopped.

The oarsman pulled for the shore, but the water gained so rapidly that it was impossible to reach it. The boat sank some fifty feet away, leaving all three in the water.

Phil was the only swimmer in the lot. Seizing an oar, he gave it to the child; then, taking the governess by the arm, he swam ashore with her, she all the while protesting that he should leave her and save Gracie.

As soon as he got Miss Marion into shallow water he returned to her charge, who was clinging to the oar and crying vigorously for help. It was an easy matter to assist her to the shore.

"You should have been ashamed of yourself," said the governess, "to devote yourself to me and leave that poor little thing out in the lake."

"Didn't I provide her with an oar?" quoth Phil.

"Yes; you did that."

"The oar would not have supported you. And if I had saved the child, leaving you to take care of yourself, you would have drowned. And then what would I have done?"

He spoke the last words in a low tone, a tone that would tell any woman that there was something more to come.

The same evening after they had got off their dripping clothing a cablegram came from Blackwell. "Ransom paid. Got wife. Start for home at once. How is my girl? Cable me at Naples."

Marian was on the veranda by herself, with Gracie playing at a little distance. Phil went directly to her.

"Miss Marian," he began abruptly, "I've come to ask you to be my wife. I love you and think you have grown to like me a little. It's abrupt, I know, but I may not remain here long."

"Why," she exclaimed, rising in some confusion and consternation, "I thought you were to have charge of the hotel all summer."

"The owner's about to return. I have just received a cablegram from Naples."

"Didn't he send any message to me?"

"N-no," in some surprise. "He asked about Gracie."

"Gracie? Father doesn't know her."

"Father!"

Her eyes opened a little. Then she comprehended and smiled.

"Yes. Didn't you know I was Miss Blackwell? Gracie is an unpromising child in my mission class, picked up from the street. I brought her down this summer in hope of reforming her."

Phil changed color, then collected himself.

"About my question?" he insisted.

An hour later a cablegram was on its way to Naples.

"Girl all right. Everything all right. Anxious to meet you. PHIL."

Nicaragua.

Nicaragua, wedged in between Honduras and Costa Rica, is triangular in shape, its base of some 280 miles resting on the Caribbean sea. Its area is about 58,000 square miles and its population somewhat less than a million, mostly Indians, mestizos negroes and mulattoes. The whites of pure blood constitute but a small part of the people. The main products of the country are rice, cocoa, coffee, Indian corn and hides. Like most of the South American states, Nicaragua is noted for its military "pronunciamentos," popular revolts, revolutions, etc., by which the land is almost constantly troubled to the verge of ruin.—New York American.

Mrs. Albert Howard is quite ill with grippe.

Mrs. Harry Moore has returned from her visit at Painesville, Ohio.

The B Y P U, have divided themselves into four committees, one for each month for the next four months. These committees are each striving to furnish the best program. Tuesday evening they met in the chapel and Mrs. Anna Moore and her committee presented an excellent program and the other committees will have to hustle if they do any better. At the close of the program, refreshments were served. The judges in the contest are, Lester Heesen, Percy Bowen and Mrs. Dr. North. They will report at the end of the four months, the losing com. having to furnish another program.

We would like to comment on each number, but space forbids, and will only mention the quartette by Messrs. Camp, Ruthruff and Mesdames Roberts and Ruthruff, which was certainly fine, also the recitation by little Gerald Roberts and the closing song by the colored quartette.

The Missionary meeting to have been held yesterday afternoon was postponed on account of the illness of the leader.

Mrs. Robert Moore sang a solo Sunday morning which was enjoyed by all.

SPARED THE CHIEF.

Jackson Admired the Bravery of the Famous Indian.

Andrew Jackson was magnanimous in his treatment of Weatherford, the famous Creek chieftain, when that warrior surrendered. Weatherford had done all in his power to prevent the horrible massacre at Fort Mims, but most of the frontiersmen were bitter against him, and Jackson himself had sworn to put him to death if he were taken.

One day after the power of his people had been utterly broken Weatherford came riding into Jackson's camp on his famous gray horse and stopped in front of the general's tent.

"How dare you ride up to my tent after having murdered the women and children at Fort Mims?" demanded Jackson in astonishment.

The chief denied the truth of the charge, but said he: "You may kill me if you will. I come to get aid for the women and little children who are starving in the woods. If I could fight you any longer I would do so, but my warriors are all dead. Send for the women and little children. They never did you any harm. But kill me if the white people want it done."

The troops, crowding about, began to cry menacingly: "Kill him! Kill him!"

"Silence!" ordered Old Hickory sternly. "Any one who would kill as brave a man as this would rob the dead."

The general treated the chief kindly and even gave him permission if he desired to depart and continue the war. The chief afterward settled on a plantation, where he resided for many years, honored alike by white men and red.—Chicago Tribune.

SOLVING A PROBLEM.

The Green Country Brakeman Who Introduced the "Saw By."

Many years ago a green country boy applied to the superintendent of a western railway for work and, somewhat against the superintendent's wish, on account of the danger to life and limb attendant upon such occupation, was given a place as brakeman of a freight train.

On one of his first trips it happened that his train met another freight train at a station where the sidetrack was not long enough to accommodate either of them. The conductors were debating which train should back up to a point where they could pass when the new hand ventured to suggest that neither should back; that they could pass each other by means of the short sidetrack if the thing was managed right.

The idea excited a good deal of laughter on the part of the old trainmen, but the boy stood his ground.

"Well, how would you go about it?" asked one of the conductors, confident that the lad would soon find himself against a stump.

The boy took up a stick and traced in the sand a diagram to illustrate his plan.

"Good gracious!" said the conductor. "I believe that will do it!"

And it did do it. Today every trainman in America probably knows how to "saw by" two long trains on a short sidetrack, but it is not so generally known that the thing was never done until an inexperienced country boy who became the manager of a great railway line worked out the problem for himself.

The White Shark.

The shark of sharks, the real "man eater" and the one most dreaded, is the white shark. This variety reaches a length of thirty-five feet and a weight of 2,000 pounds. Its head is long and flat, and the snout far overhangs the mouth. Its six rows of teeth are sharp as lancets and notched like saws. Its mouth is very large, so that one has been known to cut a man's body completely in two at a single snap of its cruel jaws and another to swallow one at a gulp. Near Calcutta one of these sharks was seen to swallow a bullock's head, horns and all. From the stomach of another a bull's hide was taken entire, and the sailor who made the discovery insisted that the bull had been swallowed whole and all except the hide had been digested. From the stomach of another was taken a lady's workbox filled with the usual contents, scissors and all. It is commonly the white shark which follows the vessel at sea day after day and week after week.

The Dear Friends.

Miss Thin—Don't you think my new dress is just exquisite? Fannie—Oh, lovely! I think that dressmaker of yours could make a clothes prop look graceful.

His Chance.

Little Boy—I want a dose of castor oil. Druggist—Do you want the kind you can't taste? Little Boy (anxious to get even)—No, sir; it's for mother.

Silence is one of the hardest arguments to refute.—Billings.

To Rest His Eyes.

The people who quit reading "just to rest their eyes" might take a hint by inference from the reply made by an old illiterate. A passing man found him apparently deeply interested in a paper.

On looking close it became apparent that his paper was upside down, and he was asked forthwith why he held it thus.

His reply almost knocked the questioner out. It was:

"Just to rest my eyes!"

No Beggars in Copenhagen.

Copenhagen is a city of 500,000 inhabitants. During a week's stay I have seen no seller of matches or boot laces, no gutter merchant, no blind or other afflicted persons about the streets asking for alms—not one single sign of distress due to poverty. I have explored the artisans' quarters by day and late at night. There is not a single spot in the whole of Copenhagen that could be compared even remotely to the slums in our large towns. There are no unemployed hanging about the street corners, no unkempt women standing idly at the doors, no ragged and dirty children playing in the gutter. There are no dirty houses, with dirty or broken windows, mended with bits of paper, and a ragged apron or a torn bedcloth doing duty for a curtain.—Denmark Letter in London Express.

An Ancient Greek Relic.

As a memorial of their victory in their final and desperate struggle at Palatea to hurl back the invading east the ancient Greeks made a tripod from the golden cups of the Persians' table and the bronze of their soldiers' armor. It bore on its sides the names of every city whose soldiers fought and fell in the supreme moment of a nation's life. That tripod still exists at Constantinople, a national relic which has endured longer than the states whose deeds it consecrated.

U. S HISTORY CENSUS FOR TECUMSEH.

Ed. Herald: Tattended a civil service examinat on on Saturday, Feb. 5 at the new High School building in Adrian as a candidate for the position of census enumerator for the village and township of Tecumseh.

The test, while somewhat long and tedious, was fair and not difficult. About fifty candidates from all over Lenawee were present. Perhaps a dozen of them were women. Mrs. R. W. Cole and Mrs. Almeda Russell were the other candidates from Tecumseh. The census must be taken during the thirty days following the 15th day of April. In view of the sliding scale of compensation and the pressure of my garden work and the fact that the school census must be taken the last half of May, I have decided to withdraw from the contest. The census will be taken in Tecumseh by either Mrs. R. W. Cole or Mrs. Almeda Russell. Either lady is energetic and fully capable, so that the census will be well and accurately done.

87 YEARS OLD

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1910, IS LUCIUS LILLY'S BIRTHDAY.

He is Fond of Stories and Meeting His Friends. Helping those in Need, and Interested in the Doings About Town As Ever.

Before we go to press again Mr. Lilley will have celebrated his 87th birthday which occurs Feb. 21 and we take this way on congratulating him on reaching this mile stone on the journey of life so successfully. His has been such a pleasant personality, he has always been so ready to extend a helping hand to those in need, has always had a kind word for all, and his cherry smile has won for him many friends in all the walks of life.

Though he has reached this advanced age, yet his is the same cherry nature, and he enjoys visiting with his friends as much as ever, and is interested in all that is going on in our village. We hope that each return of his natal day may be full of comfort and good cheer.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

Scenes as they Appeared 40 Years Ago or More

I wonder how many realize the changes that have taken place in the last 40 years on Chicago street. As I sit at my desk and look across the way, I am led to reconnt a few of them, as I now see them:

In the store now occupied by Fred Rosacrans & Sons, E. A. Tribou and Bidwell Bros., kept a fine line of Staple and Fancy dry goods, boots and shoes, hats, caps, trunks, etc., and a few choice groceries.

Lemuel Saviers had a shoe store where now is the so-called Smokehouse, and did a thriving business.

Wm A. Clark had a large stock of hardware, consisting of carpenter's tools and everything connected with the business, where D. L. Withenack is now dealing in the same line of goods.

The bank was then known as the National bank of Tecumseh, with P. R. Adams, President; Perley Bills, Vice Pres.; Lucius Lilley, cashier. At that time this was the only bank in Tecumseh.

George Heesen, merchant tailor and dealer in ready-made clothing, etc., and Henry Nyland, boot and shoe store, were in the store now occupied by the barber shop of Holdway, and the harness shop of Will VanAntwerp. At that time it was not divided.

Fisher & Baker had a first-class drug store, where now is the Candy Kitchen, and George Merritt was in the same store lately vacated by him and now occupied by B. J. Pulver as a drug store.

Frasier & Sweet run a bakery and grocery, where S. J. Kerr is now located.

The other building west of the railroad on the south side of the street have been built since then, with the exception of the Agricultural Works, which whs then run under the name of McConnell & Raymond.

Below the railroad on the south side of the street, the first store was that of Geo. T. Ketcham, News Depot, Books and Stationery, as near as I can locate it, was where John Gaston now has his jewelry store.

The dry goods store of W. & H. E. Anderson was located in the first store west, now occupied by the Webster Anderson Co. Then E. B. Strickland & Co., dry goods and notions, followed next by Richard C. Moore, also in the dry goods business.

The next that I can remember was a saloon kept by N. H. Adams, with ice cream parlors up stairs. Since that time so many stores have been added to the street, it hardly seems the same. The Hewitt home was then in fine condition, with pretty lawn and fine shrubbery, and an ornament to the town.

Some day we will try to write up the north side of the street, if this meets with favor among our friends.

MRS. GILES CLEVELAND.

Mrs. Giles Cleveland of Nebraska formerly of Syracuse N. Y. and Tecumseh Mich age 99 years, died of bronchial trouble, Feb. 14, 1910. Burial at Tecumseh. The older residents of Tecumseh will remember her as "Aunt Terese" with her happy smile and unbounded good humor. Life always seemed more bright after a little chat with her.

MEN'S CLASS BANQUET

At the Presbyterian Church, Washington's Birthday.

On Tuesday evening, Feb. 22, at 6 o'clock the men of the Presbyterian church will hold their annual Banquet at the church. This is the fourth year of the banquet and promises to be one of the best ever held. Invitations have been sent and places will be provided for only 150. To avoid confusion and insure a seat, the committee has requested all who plan to attend to notify J. H. Smith before Saturday evening. After that time tickets will be sold to any of the general public who wish to attend.

The menu will be provided by the ladies society and they have promised the best ever. It will be in part as follows: Chicken pie, Potatoes, Brown gravy, Bread and Butter, Pickles, Cranberry Sauce, Doughnuts, Pie, Cheese, Coffee.

Frank R. Hurst, known to all, will lead the speakers with the evening's fun, acting as toastmaster. There will be four five-minute toast by P. W. A. Fitzsimmons, Dr. L. G. North, J. W. Dunning and F. B. Wood, also musical numbers by Duaine Service, violin; D. P. McAlpine, piano; and Messrs. Dickinson and Slater, vocal.

The address of the evening will be given by August F. Bruske M. S., D. D. president of Alma College on, "Our Country Rich In Memory." Dr. Bruske has been heard here before, but never as an after dinner speaker. He is considered one of the best preachers in Michigan, but excels in a graceful after dinner speech. The patriotic theme will be appropriate to the hour.

The committee has planned to make the whole affair bright, breezy, and entertaining and to close at 8:30. The reputation for successful banquet in the past will be more than equalled.

Break Up That Cold In A Day.

You can stop a cough or a cold as if by magic by just breathing soothing, healing Hyomei over the sore, raw and inflamed membrane.

This is from a man who knows: "Mrs. Mager and myself have used your inhaler faithfully when needed and it has always given instant relief and saved us from many severe colds. The above is voluntarily given and if in your estimation its use as a testimonial would help to get others to use it, I will gladly have you do so, as we consider it a wonderful discovery and recommend it whenever opportunity presents itself." F. W. Mager, Contracting Freight Agent, C. H. & D. Ry. Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 22, 1909.

Don't fool with stomach nostrums; try magical Hyomei at once; it relieves a stuffed up head in two minutes.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including inhaler and one bottle of Hyomei, costs only $1.00 at druggists everywhere and of C. A. Wright & Son. It is guaranteed to cure catarrh, croup, cough, colds, sore throat and bronchitis or money back. Extra bottles of Hyomei, if afterward needed, cost but 50 cents.

The world is full of trouble—made by those who mean to do right.

Best Stomach Remedy Free

It is an old saying that if the stomach is sound the whole body is safe, because so much depends upon the proper working of the stomach. Many persons find themselves with a disorder of the stomach which produces dyspepsia or a peculiar state of biliousness.

If you suffer from both stomach trouble and constipation you are on the way to a very serious disease. From just such conditions come appendicitis, rheumatism, skin diseases and similar disorders, because the waste matter that should have been discarded from the system through the bowels has found its way into the blood and vitiated it. What is needed at this point is not simply a violent cathartic tablet or salt, which usually does more harm than good, but a gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which people have been using for these ailments for nearly a quarter of a century. It cured J. C. Lanham, of Warrensburg, Mo., of stomach trouble of long standing, also William Voll, of 933 Ellinson St., Louisville, Ky., who had the trouble for fifteen years.

However, if you have stomach trouble you want to know from personal experience what Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do for you. If so, send your name to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you. You are urged to send for the free bottle, as the results from it will be the best recommendation of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Then you will do as over two million people did last year—go to your druggist and buy a regular bottle at 50 cents or $1, according to the size you prefer. We could mention hundreds and hundreds of families who are never without it. You can never tell when some member of the family will need a laxative, and then no time should be lost taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

A SAFEGUARD TO CHILDREN.

"Our two children of six and eight years have been since infancy subject to colds and croup. About three years ago I started to use Foley's Honey and Tar, and it has never failed to prevent and cure these troubles. It is the only medicine I can get the children to take without a row." The above from W. C. Ornstein, Green Bay, Wis., duplicates the experience of thousands of other users of Foley's Honey and Tar. Sold by all druggists.

A happy family is but an earlier heaven.

Took All His Money.

Often all a man earns goes to doctors or for medicines, to cure a Stomach, Liver or Kidney trouble that Dr. King's New Life Pills would quickly cure at slight cost. Best for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Billiousness, Constipation, Jaundice, Malaria and Debility. 25c at C. A. Wright & Son.

"I never felt so near my grave," writes Dewis Chamblin, of Manchester, Ohio, R. R. No. 3, "as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 115 pounds in spite of many remedies and the best doctors. And that I am alive today is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 160 pounds and can work hard. It also cured my four children of croup." CAN'T BE SEPARATED

Some Tecumseh People Have Learned How to Get Rid of Both.

Backache and kidney ache are twin brothers.

You can't separate them.

And you can't get rid of the backache until you cure the kidney ache.

If the kidneys are well and strong, the rest of the system is pretty sure to be in vigorous health.

Doan's Kidney Pills make strong, healthy kidneys.

William W. Shurtz, Kilbuck street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times for ten years and I have received such great benefit that I gladly endorse them. Whenever I feel that my kidneys are not doing their work as they should I get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and a short use brings me relief." HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Tecumseh Citizen Can Afford to Ignore

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1—comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or thick, red, illsmelling urine, full of sediment and irregular passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2—comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Tecumseh proof:

Elias C. Brisbin, N. Democrat St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I began to suffer from kidney trouble twenty years ago and all my efforts for relief were unsuccessful. I had severe backaches and the kidney secretions were highly colored and highly irregular in passage. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and they promptly relieved me. I have since kept this remedy in the house and whenever I have taken it, good results have followed." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. MASONIC HOME BURNS.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 17.—Fire early in the morning broke out in the Masonic home in East Grand Rapids, and before the flames could be gotten under control the building was destroyed.

The fire was first discovered in the attic, where there was stored a quantity of waste paper.

Sixty-eight inmates were removed in safety during the incipiency of the fire, but the contents of the buildings are consumed. Some of the furniture that was carried out took fire and was destroyed on the ground.

Rival McArthur, manager of the home, left at 7 o'clock the night before on an extended visit to Florida. A panic ensued following the discovery of the blaze, but no fatalities have been reported.

FISHERMEN GAVE A DEMONSTRATION

Convince Senate Committee the Treaty Is Unjust.

Washington, Feb. 17.—Three fishermen from the Saginaw bay region of Michigan walked into the room of the senate committee on foreign relations Wednesday armed with nets, bait and a few live lake herring in pails of water. They appeared before the committee in opposition to the ratification of the great lakes fishery agreement between Canada and the United States, recently negotiated by David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford university, and Commissioner G. W. Prince of the Dominion. After the fisher folk had given a little exhibition to illustrate their point, the committee by a unanimous vote decided not to report favorably on the agreement.

Messrs. Orr and Gillingham of Bay Port, Mich., and McCormick of Bay City were the fishermen. After they were recognized by Senator Cullom (Ill.), chairman of the committee on foreign relations, McCormick, the spokesman of the party, pulled out a piece of fish net of the mesh required by the agreement and some live lake herring that had reached maturity. He lifted the fish and dropped them into the net. They promptly slid through the meshes into a pan that had been placed on the table around which sat the dignified committeemen. This demonstrated to the satisfaction of the committee that in some respects at least the agreement won't do.

TWENTY-YEAR AGREEMENT.

American League Magnates Sign It at Chicago Meet.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—The American league, here, Wednesday, ratified the 154 game schedule prepared some time since and adopted a new twenty-year agreement, binding the present members of the circuit to a continuance of their relations for the period stated.

McCafferty claims to have lost part of his foot in an accident on a Pontiac car last summer. He states that the car started while he was boarding it, throwing him to the ground and passing over one foot.

Struck by Train; Dies.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 17.—Patrick Barry, aged fifty years, flagman at the Wabash railway crossing, Harbaugh avenue, Delray, was struck by a westbound C., H. & D. passenger train and sustained a fracture of the skull, from which he died later.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

BATTLE CREEK—Mrs. Mary Dempsey dropped dead of apoplexy while caring for her husband, who is ill with pneumonia.

SAGINAW—Margaret Schwender, aged seventeen, attempted self-destruction by swallowing a quantity of laudanum. She was taken to a hospital, where, it is said, she may recover.

TRAVERSE CITY—The six-month-old son of George Sarasine fell into a large dish of boiling soup while the family were at supper and was seriously burned.

COLDWATER—L. M. Bassett, seventy-nine, for fifty-six years a leading jeweler of this city, is dead, after a lingering illness. He had been a resident of Coldwater since 1850.

HOLLAND—E. E. Fell of Cairo has been engaged as superintendent of schools, to supply a vacancy made by the resignation of Superintendent Bishop. There were fifteen candidates for the position, and the salary is $1,000.

PLAINWELL—By jumping from a moving train here, Edward Batheler, aged sixty years, living at Kalamazoo, sustained a fracture of the skull and severe internal injuries. Because of his age his recovery is doubtful.

GRAND RAPIDS—Because he is alleged to have alienated the affections of Mrs. Charles Yungren, Sidney M. Vannamee, a Pere Marquette engineer, has been brought into court on a caplas by Charles Yungren, also an engineer on the same road, husband of the woman. Yungren wants $5,000

BATTLE CREEK INVADED.

Labor Unions Lay Seige to C. W. Post's Town.

Battle Creek, Mich., Feb. 17.—What seems to be a crisis in a union labor fight extending over seventeen years was reached here within the last three days, when eighteen labor organizers arrived in town to marshal the union men and make a final stand against the "open shop," which has obtained here since the strike of 1893.

The advent of these organizers has long been expected in Battle Creek as a result of the repeated bitter attacks on union labor.

The affair has plunged the Battle Creek papers into a fight that is reaching the white heat. And the controversy is extending to the city as a whole, business men and manufacturers finding their interests critically at stake.

Two papers and many citizens say that Battle Creek is not progressing as it should. They lay the trouble to the "needless fight against union labor," and they blame C. W. Post for that fight.

Not Long at Liberty.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 17.—Emmet Ryan, aged fifteen, of Saginaw and George Turner, aged sixteen, of West Branch escaped from the industrial school, at night, and were captured later by the police.

The lads were attending the night classes when, at the conclusion of their studies, they were given a key by their instructor and told to put things away for the night. Instead of complying with her request, they ran away.

Brothers Sent Up For Life.

Cadillac, Mich., Feb. 17.—Pleading guilty to slaying Herman Shaufala, at his shack, nine miles north of here, Jan. 24, Clinton and Allen Glassburn, brothers, were sentenced in circuit court to life imprisonment in Jackson prison. Money was the motive for the deed, although the brothers aver that they secured only $1.20. They will be taken to Jackson probably tomorrow by Sheriff Evans.

Teacher Becomes Nun.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 17.—Miss Josephine L. Stapleton, for many years assistant principal of the old Hough ton school and later principal of the Lyster school of this city, tendered her resignation some time ago and has gone to Washington to join the order of the Visitation nuns.

SPANKED 18 PUPILS.

Columbus (Ind.) Teacher Establishes a Record.

Columbus, Ind., Feb. 17.—Frank Taylor, principal of the East Columbus schools, holds the record for spanking in Bartholomew county, and local school officials are inclined to believe that he also holds the state record.

A few days ago a great many of the pupils became unruly, and Taylor ordered twenty of them to remain after school. He suspended one for two days, disposed of the case of another and then forced the remaining eighteen to bend over in their seats.

Armed with a paddle, Taylor administered punishment to each and every unruly pupil.

Declared Insane.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Feb. 17.—Mrs. Elizabeth F. Huntington, an inmate of Bloomingdale asylum, whose son, Arthur Huntington, is a paymaster in the United States navy, has been declared insane and incompetent to manage her estate by a jury in Part 1 of the supreme court by Justice Keogh at White Plains. Mrs. Huntington is fifty-nine years old and widow of a New York broker.

PLUMBER GETS VERDICT.

Claims Unions Made Him Lose Two Different Jobs.

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 17.—The supreme court has sustained a verdict for $250 damages received by Anthony S. Ruddy, a Newark plumber, who claimed he was discharged from two positions because he was a non-union workman. Ruddy sued the United Association of Journeymen Plumbers, Steamfitters and Helpers of the United States and Canada, local No. 24 of Newark, and William Ryan, a walking delegate of the local, whom he charged with being the agent directly responsible for his discharges. Ruddy's employers were warned that unless he was discharged the union men would quit their jobs.

The Clinching Argument.

A young man representing a well known make of motorcar had called, discussed intelligently the points of the automobile he was endeavoring to sell, had given a flawless demonstration—

But the prospective amateur motorist before mortgaging his house still wanted to be thoroughly convinced, and so he said: "What you say about your car may be all right. The engine runs very nicely, and it looks good to me, but tell me one thing—have you ever sold any of these cars to your own personal friends?"

The salesman smiled. "Have I? Why, three months ago I was engaged to a girl, and I sold one of these identical cars to my prospective father-in-law!"

"Did you marry the girl?"

"Yes, indeed! I've now got the girl, a contented father-in-law and an enthusiastic customer as well."

He made the sale.—Life.

Mules and Kindness.

"In the fifteen years that I have been connected with societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals in this and other cities I never have received a complaint alleging cruelty to a mule," said the humane looking man. "That immunity of mules from harsh treatment is an interesting question. Why are they immune? There are plenty of mules, even in New York. Does nobody beat them? Does nobody underfeed them? If not, why not? Does a mule show such a decided ability for taking care of himself that his owner is afraid to abuse him, or do men beat mules and escape punishment because the persons who witness the beating think it is only a mule and not worth bothering about? What is the explanation of that phase of the mule question anyhow?"—New York Press.

It is taking the place of agate and enamel ware because while its first cost is a trifle more than ordinary ware, it is really much cheaper in the long run, as it is guaranteed for twenty-five years and will last practically a life time.

The genuine "1892" Ware, made only from pure SPUN (not cast) Aluminum, will not crack, scale, peel, break, scorch or burn.

It looks like silver but weighs only about one-quarter as much, is easily cleaned and handled, and will not rust, corrode or tarnish. Absolutely pure, non-poisonous and wholesome; saves money, time and doctor's bills.

Be sure you get the original and genuine ware stamped with the Maltese Cross. At your dealers.

GOVERNOR HARMON.

Will Probably Be Presidential Candidate For 1912.

HARMON MAY BE MAN.

Looms Up Strongly as Democratic Presidential Possibility For 1912.

Washington, Feb. 21.—There is more than local interest in the Jefferson day dinner to be given in Washington in April, at which Governor Harmon of Ohio, Governor Marshall of Indiana, Mayor Gaynor of New York and other Democrats whose names have been heard more or less conspicuously mentioned in connection with the presidential nomination will be present. The speeches at the dinner will sound a keynote for 1912, it is expected.

At the present time, Governor Harmon appears to be in most favor as a presidential possibility. Southern Democrats in congress, as a rule, are more favorable to his candidacy than they are to any other yet suggested. There was much Harmon talk on the occasion of the governor's conference in Washington in December. He made a good impression. Much will depend on the state campaign in Ohio. If Governor Harmon is re-elected this fall his chances for the nomination will be advanced almost to a certainty, say his rooters among the southern Democrats.

BOTH SHOW IMPROVEMENT.

Senator Tillman Is Resting Easily, and Senator Smith Is Recovering.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Senator Tillman of South Carolina, who was stricken with paralysis on Thursday last, and who for twenty-four hours was thought to be dying, was resting easily last night, according to a statement of his physicians. He has regained consciousness, and members of his family feel considerably encouraged. Senator Tillman is still completely paralyzed on his right side.

At the Homeopathy hospital, where Senator William Alden Smith was operated on Friday for appendicitis, it was said that the senator was doing well, nd if no unforeseen complications arise he will rapidly recover.

Origin of "Watered Stock."

The expression "watered stock," which describes so well the expansion of the stock of a company beyond the value of the property, originated, it is said, in connection with Daniel Drew, who was once the wealthiest and most unique manipulator in Wall street. Drew had been a drover in his younger days, and it was said of him that before selling his cattle in the market he would first give them large quantities of salt to make them thirsty and then provide them with all the water they could drink. In this way their weight was greatly increased, and the purchaser was buying "watered stock."

The Seventh Son.

"Yes," said the despondent man, "I was a seventh son."

"And didn't it bring you luck?" asked the superstitious one.

"Well, if being obliged to wear the castoff clothes of six other brothers is luck it did," replied the despondent man.—Philadelphia Record.

MANY HURT DURING RIOTS

Car Strike In Philadelphia Becomes Vicious Affair.

HOSPITALS ARE OVERCROWDED

Question of Dispute Is the Matter of "Open Shop"—Leaders of Both Sides Declare They Will Fight to Bitter End—Police Force Unable to Cope With Trouble.

Philadelphia, Feb. 21.—The hospitals are overcrowded with persons who were shot or beaten in car strike riots that spread viciously all over suburban Philadelphia Sunday. At least 100 got in the way of bullets or bricks or paving stones, and half of these were hurt seriously. The outlook was so alarming late in the afternoon that the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company withdrew every one of its cars from service and sent them to the barns, and Mayor Rayburn authorized Henry Clay, the director of public safety, to recruit 4,000 extra policemen at once if possible. The regular force of 3,300 has been utterly unable to smother the trouble.

Give Them All Fight They Want.

The indications are plain that the Rapid Transit company intends to give C. O. Pratt and the striking conductors and motormen all the fighting they want, and sober-minded citizens are considering the advisability of asking the governor to lend a hand with the state constabulary. There was never a day in the strike of nine months ago when things looked so ugly as they do now.

Indicative of the company's attitude and of its determination to stand firm against the closed shop demand, D. T. Pierce, executive assistant to President Kruger of the Rapid Transit company, said:

"Every one of those thousands of bricks that were thrown Sunday adds to the determination of officials of this company to spend every cent in the treasury and use every bit of power they have to keep the system in operation without the use of these men who struck. The men were treated fairly, and the conductors and motormen that were discharged had been proved guilty of dishonesty or evasion of duty."

On top of Mr. Pierce's flat-footed statement came another from C. O. Pratt, the national organizer, who is bossing this strike in person. He said that a meeting of the Central Labor union's executive committee had been held last night in the home of President J. J. Murphy, and that the committee, with Murphy's approval, decided to call a general strike if the Rapid Transit company persevered in trying to run cars with non-union men. Murphy, who is thoroughly in sympathy with the striking conductors and motormen, confirmed Pratt's statement. Murphy says he has the power to call out 100,000 men, which would tie up or cripple every industrial establishment in the city practically.

How frequent and generally distributed was the rioting Sunday may be judged when it is known there was a call for policemen every four minutes from early morning until late in the evening.

In All Parts of City.

The area of rioting was so immense that the police had a desperately difficult problem on their hands. Several times during the day there were fights in which more than a thousand persons were taking part occurring simultaneously in a dozen far separated localities.

The outcome of all the fighting and disorder was that four persons were injured fatally in all likelihood, about 100 were sent to the hospitals, 297 cars were more or less damaged, and three cars were burned. There were more than 160 arrests made. Both Pratt for the strikers and Pierce for the company claimed the advantage of the day.

SENATOR ROOT.

COMPEL CONGER TO TELL ALL HE KNOWS

Attempt Will Be Made This Week at Allds' Trial.

Albany, Feb. 21.—When the trial of Senator J. P. Allds is renewed before the senate committee of the whole on Tuesday morning, a determined fight will be made by Lewis E. Carr to compel Senator Conger to reveal all he knows about the distribution of the $4,000 he claims was given to Assemblyman Burnett. Counsel for Allds have been led to believe that Burnett acted as the disbursing officer who distributed portion of the $4,000 where results would be most effective. In the event of any additional names being brought into the case in connection with the boodle fund of 1901, the investigation will be prolonged.

The expectation that Mr. Carr might be successful in bringing out the names of men other than Nixon, Burnett and Allds as beneficaries of the bridge company's corruption funds gave the closing hours of the trial on Friday a sensational tinge. It was the belief that if any other names were brought into the scandal the trial of Senator Allds would continue two or three weeks longer. If Senator Conger is unmoved from his statement made on direct examination that he did know what became of the $4,000 after Burnett got it, the supposition is that the limit has been reached as far as exposures are concerned. If no other names are brought out, counsel on both sides feel that they can sum up their case and have the trial over by the middle of next week.

The most sensational incident of the trial to come this week will be the cross-examination of Senator Allds at the hands of James W. Osborne on behalf of Senator Conger. Mr. Osborne will use but little delicacy with Senator Allds, and he hopes to break the air of sublime confidence which the senator has maintained since the opening of the trial.

Died in Church.

New Brunswick, N. J., Feb. 21.—Mrs. John Waldron, aged seventy, wife of a manufacturer, dropped dead in the Second Reformed church Sunday morning as the collection was being taken. Rev. F. B. Payson dismissed the congregation after a hymn and prayer for Mrs. Waldron's family.

Was Actress In Local Theater In Flint—Apparently Took Her Life During Fit of Despondency Resulting From Infatuation of Flint Young Man—Manistee Man Shoots Self.

Flint, Mich., Feb. 21.—Miss June Trombley, eighteen years old, who has been a member of the Cook Stock company playing at a local theater, has committed suicide here by taking carbolic acid in a room on East First street. It is alleged that Exra Gordon, a local young man, was in the room with her at the time, and that the girl, infatuated with him for some weeks past, ended her life in a fit of despondency.

Dr. W. H. Taylor, coroner, was called in the case, but did not consider an inquest necessary.

Miss Trombley came here from Bay City, where her parents reside. It is likely that a further investigation will be made in the case.

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 21.—Miss June Trombley, who committed suicide in Flint, was formerly employed in a local hotel as a waitress. Some time ago she went to Flint with a young man, but it appears they had some trouble, and she returned here. Recently she again went to Flint with another young man and joined the theatrical troupe. Her parents live a short distance south of the city and have gone to Flint to bring the body of their daughter back here for burial.

Manistee, Mich., Feb. 21.—F. W. Dunlap, aged seventy, old resident of Manistee, has committed suicide by shooting himself. He ran a grocery store on River street for a number of years until forced to retire on account of ill health, and he became despondent. A widow and married daughter, Mrs. Charles Stronach of Tolleston, Ind., survive him.

NOT A CITIZEN.

Although Saginaw Man Had Enjoyed Privileges For Years.

Saginaw, Mich., Feb. 21.—Although he has lived in America sixty-one years, the entire time a resident of Saginaw, and has always believed he was a citizen of the United States, Frank Herrig, chairman of the board of county auditors and one of the city's prominent men, received the startling intelligence the other day that he is an alien, with none of the rights of American citizenship.

Merton A. Sturges of Detroit, chief naturalization examiner, challenged Herrig's right to appear as a witness for two brothers who had applied for naturalization, and declared he was not a citizen of the country himself.

He produced the county records to prove it. These showed that Herrig's father, the late Nicholas Herrig, took out his first papers in 1854. He did not take out his second papers until November, 1856, which was two months after his son had attained his majority. Herrig always supposed his father's naturalization made him a citizen, but Sturges says the old law only admitted children not yet of age.

Egypt's Prime Minister Wounded

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 21.—Prime Minister Boutres Pasha, while leaving the ministry of foreign affairs, was fired at five times by a Nationalist party fanatic of the name of Wardani. Three of the shots inflicted severe wounds. Boutos Pasha was taken at once to a hospital, where the physicians said his injuries are serious. His assailant was arrested.

Four Killed; Four Hurt.

Fredericktown, Mo., Feb. 21.—Four men were instantly killed and four others were seriously hurt when the brick wall of the burning Keyes building here fell upon them Sunday.

BEWARE OF CATARRH

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

THE GATE THAT WON JANE.

Story of a Young Inventor Who Made a Success.

By MARY G. BENTLEY.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Farmer Tillson hadn't a generous hair in his head. He kept every cent he got and never gave out a cent.

Jane was as open hearted as Tillson was close. She was the life of the young farmer people round about, and not one of them but loved her. Her uncle did all he could to impress her with the fact that, having some capital, she should look upon marriage as a sort of partnership in which her partner should furnish an equivalent to her own means.

One day there came to Tillson's farm a young man who asked for work. He was rather intellectual looking than muscular, a fact that did not favorably impress Tillson. But he offered to work for very low wages, and as it was harvest time Tillson employed him.

Now, Jane no sooner saw young Zeke Freeman doing the hardest work there was to be done on the farm, which her uncle put upon the young man, than she pitied him. Pity being akin to love, she loved him. She was bright enough, however, to keep the situation from her uncle, who never suspected it till Freeman one day went to him to ask for Jane's hand.

"No; ye can't have Jane," snarled old Tillson ungraciously. "She's my brother's daughter an' has money of her own, an' you ain't nothin' but a hired man with no prospects. I don't see what Jane was thinkin' on to say ye could ask me. Ye can't have her, an' that's all there is to it."

Zeke opened his mouth as though to protest or to strengthen his case by further argument, but Tillson's face was grim and forbidding, and he knew the old man too well to weaken his chances by causing useless irritation. He turned away.

That afternoon they were near the farmyard gate. Zeke digging post holes and old Tillson patching up a wheelbarrow, when the drummer of an agricultural warehouse appeared. But, instead of going straight to Tillson, he stopped at the gate and began to examine it curiously.

"Queer contrivance that," he said presently. "Good idea, though—grand, good idea. How did you happen to think of it?"

"It's some of my hired man's dilly-dallyin'," replied Tillson gruffly. "He's forever up to something of that sort. Wastes half his time."

Zeke flushed a little, but did not look up.

"No wasted time about that," declared the drummer emphatically. "It's a valuable idea. There's money in it."

"Money?" questioned Tillson eagerly. Then he saw one of the horses squeezing his body through the open doorway of the corncrib, and he rushed off. He would have sent Zeke, only he preferred him to continue at the post hole digging.

"So it's your idea, is it?" said the drummer as he crossed to Zeke's side. "Going to have it patented, of course."

Zeke laughed. "Patented!" he echoed. "That foolish thing? Why, it's nothing but a lot of stones and two hinges placed so the gate will shut of itself."

"But that's just the sort of thing which usually proves valuable," persisted the drummer. "The simpler the device, if it's useful, the better. You'll make a mistake if you don't protect the idea."

"Then I guess I'll make the mistake," said Zeke carelessly. "Patents cost money, and I haven't any. Besides, if I had I wouldn't risk 50 cents on that foolish thing."

The drummer regarded him thoughtfully. "Look here," he said suddenly, "how would you like to make a [illegible] I could appropriate the idea for myself if I did business that way, [illegible] don't. Still, I like to make [illegible] wherever I see a chance. My [illegible] does a good deal in patents [illegible] and I can generally guess pretty [illegible] whether there's money in an[illegible] not. Now, if you say so, I [illegible] this through at my own expense and keep half the profit. What do you say?"

"You mean use stones like that and all?" asked Zeke skeptically.

"No; it's only the idea I want. We would find some substitute for the stones."

Zeke's indifference began to vanish. "If you really think it's worth anything," he said doubtfully, "I'll be glad to have you fix it up. But I don't want you to lose money." Then, a little wonderingly, "I thought patents were made of pulleys and springs and—and such things and that 'twas geniuses who got 'em up who studied years and years to make 'em all right."

The drummer smiled. "It is that way sometimes," he said, "but not always. I have known inventors to have their ideas come to them in a moment, in a flash of thought. But suppose we fix this thing now."

He opened a notebook and wrote for some seconds, then tore out the leaf and handed it to Zeke.

"It's a sort of agreement for you to put your name to," he said. "Read it first, though. Never sign anything until you know what it is. Later I will have regular papers made out for both of us."

Zeke read the paper and signed his name with the pen which the drummer held ready. Then he resumed his digging. A few moments later Tillson came hurrying back.

"The dratted horse ate a full peck of good corn," he began wrathfully. "No supper 'll be get this night. Now, what is it 'bout that gate bizness? How's there money in it?"

"By getting the invention patented," answered the drummer carelessly, "but Zeke and I have fixed that up. Well, I must be going."

"But, look here!" exclaimed Tillson. "Ye must talk with me 'bout that gate. It's mine! Zeke ain't nothin' to do with it."

"Oh, I don't want the gate," said the drummer coolly. "It's only the idea, and that, I believe, belongs to Zeke. Goodby."

Tillson stared at him as he walked away, the wrath deepening on his face. Suddenly he swung round to Zeke. "What did ye get?" he demanded. "Come, hand it over."

"I didn't receive anything in money," Zeke answered.

"Stop!" roughly. "Don't tell any yarns. Didn't I hear the man say you an' him fixed it up? Now, how much money did he give ye for my gate? Look at me straight."

Zeke did so, with a half smile. "He's to pay for getting out a patent," he replied, "and have half what we make."

"An' ye didn't get any money?"

"Not a cent."

Tillson looked at him sharply, but there was no deceit in the straightforward face. Even he realized the fact. "Then ye're an idiot!" he snarled. "The man was set on the idee; I could see that from the way he spoke. Ye could have got fifty or a hundred dollars jest as easy as nothin'. Mebbe we could have made a trade for a lot of his tools. An' now—huh!—ye'll never hear from him agin."

Zeke did not answer, and presently Tillson went toward the barn grumbling. But his words did not disturb Zeke in the least. He scarcely expected to hear from the man again. In spite of what had been said, he could not bring himself to believe that the simple contrivance was of any value. Even when the "regular papers" came, with imposing seals and blank places for him to sign his name, he regarded them more as interesting novelties than as anything that would affect his future.

But one day a letter came which caused his eyes to open—wide with amazed delight and which after a half hour of hard thinking carried him into the house after his Sunday clothes. It was nearly dark when he returned from the town. Old Tillson met him at the barn door, his face dark.

"What d'ye leave work for without my say so?" he demanded.

"Business," replied Zeke. "I heard you say t'other day the mortgage had run by and that if you didn't raise the money soon they'd be selling you out. So I've been to a lawyer and had it fixed over in my name, to save you trouble. You can pay me whenever it suits. You see." In answer to the look on Tillson's face, "I got a check for two thousand on the patent and am likely to get as much more every year. I think I'll buy Dickson's big farm that joins ours."

Tillson stood looking at the young man with mouth and eyes wide open. The expression on his face was a study. One would expect to see some shamefacedness there, but there was none. There was not even gratitude. For the moment there was surprise mingled with a feeling of suspicion that Zeke had assumed his debt that he might make something by it. One who always acts from mean motives suspects every one else of doing the same thing. His first words indicated that such was the condition of his mind.

"What interest you goin' to charge me?"

"Never mind about the interest. You can pay whatever rate you please or nothing at all."

"Waal, I suppose you've got to be paid suthin'. What is it you want?"

"Jane."

"Oh, that's the pay you're after!"

The moment the old curmudgeon's interest came to the front he was less concerned about that of his niece.

"You and she can settle that. I suppose. As long as she's satisfied I suppose I'll have to be."

Jane was perfectly satisfied, and before long there was a wedding.

But Zeke didn't buy Dickson's farm. He drifted into the employ of a firm engaged in the development of mechanical contrivances and is now a very rich man.

HENRY BICE

On Monday, all that was mortal of Henry Bice was laid away in Brookside and the family and friends turn back to the routine of work with sad hearts.

For a number of years Mr. Bice resided in Tecumseh and was engaged in business on our street but even then disease was at work and a change was thought advisable. They removed to Coldwater where they have since lived. It is about nine years since he began to fail but only for the last year has been confined to his home. He passed away Saturday morning to his final rest. Had he lived until Feb. 24, he would have completed his 70th year. He is survived by his wife and three sons Frank, Harry and Bert all well known in Tecumseh. We tender them our deep sympathy in their hour of sorrow.

How Roberts Won the Victoria Cross.

Roberts noted that a sowar of the squadron with which he rode was in great danger from a sepoy with a fixed bayonet. The contest of sword against bayonet would have ended disastrously had not Roberts intervened and disposed of the bayonet. That was barely done when he noticed in the distance two sepoys fleeing with a standard. He galloped after the rebels and overtook them, and then he had a close fight for the possession of the standard. He cut down its chief bearer. While wrenching the staff from the man's grasp with both his hands the other sepoy turned his musket on him and fired. The muzzle was within a few inches of Roberts' person, and there would certainly have been an end of him had not the musket refused to go off. As it was, he rode away unhurt with the standard, and for those two courageous and gallant acts in close succession Roberts got the Victoria cross.—Cobban's "Life of Roberts."

The Cows of Muscat.

Muscat is famed as the hotbed of smugglers in the Persian gulf, the nearby desert tribes being regularly supplied with arms despite the efforts of the British patrol. But to the writer, reared on a Missouri farm, the odd antics of the cows of Muscat seemed nothing short of freakish. They actually eat fish. No grass grows, so the wily Arab teaches his family cow to subsist on dates and dried fish. The milk tastes queer to a foreigner, which is probably why the Arab likes it. He also claims it is richer and makes more butter, but most ridiculous of all is the deception practiced on cows when the calves are "weaned." A calfskin or sometimes a goatskin is stuffed with rags and tied not far from where the mother cow is anchored. This effigy of her late lamented offspring soothes her nerves and keeps her from "going dry," according to Arabic tradition.—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Surprised Lion.

The man eating lions did not always get their own way. Five Sikh carpenters made a staging eight feet high, and on this they fixed their sleeping tent. Each night they ascended by means of a ladder, which they drew up after them. They were warned that it was not high enough, but were content to believe that God was all powerful. One night they left the edge of the ladder projecting beyond the end of the staging. A hungry man eater on the prowl observed this and, thinking he could not find a meal more conveniently elsewhere, determined to try how a carpenter tasted. Calculating his spring, he leaped lightly on to the projecting ladder, which, unfortunately for him, instantly tipped up and toppled over, both falling heavily to the ground. The lion bolted; so did all the men, making for the nearest trees.—From "In the Grip of the Nyika," by Colonel J. H. P. Patterson.

TOASTS

For Feb. 22 1910 Washington's Birthday.

To Washington and his little ax
A toast we now demand:
So let's admire who tells the truth
With a sharp ax in his hand.

To the memory of George Washington, the childless father of millions.

TO THE AMERICAN EAGLE.

Here's to the American Eagle,
Proud bird of freedom all hail!
That nobody can inveigle
Or put salt on his beautiful tail.

OUR COUNTRY.

Our country—Whether bounded by the St. John's and the Sabine or however otherwise bounded and described and be the measurements more or less; still our country, to be cherished in all our hearts and to be defended by all our hands.

Our country, our whole country, and nothing but our country.

The Union—No north, no south, no east, no west, but one and indivisible.

Our Native Land—May it ever continue the abode of freedom and the birthplace of our heroes.

THE UNITED STATES FLAG.

Your stripes of red throb with the life of thousands; your stripes of white sigh with the women's tears; your field of blue breathes the steadfastness of a country firmly united; and your stars sing of a union that is welded together by the mighty hand of an Almighty God.—Madame Merri.

HARD ON ADRIAN

The Detroit News Tribune is rather hard on our sister city of Adrian for instead of telling of its good qualities, the work it has done and is doing for the betterment of the community, it goes on at length to present all the short comings it could rake up. It does seem strange that every one is ready to see the imperfections, and speak of them rather than the good and give praise rather than blame.

May of Tecumseh; and Prof. Forest Knapp of North Adams. BRONCHIAL TUBES ALL STUFFED UP

While a resident of Washington, D. C., I suffered continually and intensely with a bronchial trouble that was simply terrible to endure. I would have spells that I could hardly breathe, I would choke up, fill up in my throat and bronchial tubes, and the doctoring that I did and the remedies used were of no benefit to me whatever. I heard about Booth's Hyomei being so beneficial in catarrhal and bronchial affections and procured an outfit. I received relief from the first by its use. I continued with it and received a cure. It is about two years since I have suffered at all from my former trouble.—Mrs. R. L. Pannell, 404 N. Augusta Street, Staunton, Va., March 26, 1909.

Hyomei is guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son to cure catarrh, croup, bronchitis, coughs, colds and sore throat or money back.

A complete Hyomei is (pronounced High-o-me) outfit costs $1.00 at druggists everywhere. This includes a hard rubber pocket inhaler and bottle of Hyomei; extra bottles Hyomei cost 50c. Free sample bottle and booklet from Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Sometime a man is as badly frightened by an imaginary snake, as a woman is by a real one.

A WOMAN'S TACT.

The Actress Spoiled a Scene, But Soothed the Angry Star.

There is a pretty story of Modjeska and a new leading woman who was to play the part of Elizabeth in Schiller's dreary play, "Mary Stuart."

The new leading woman, who was to assume the part of the red haired sovereign, was a beautiful young person whose acting experience had been limited to a few seasons in modern society plays. On the nigh of the first performance, in the most important scene of the drama, where the captive Mary confronts Elizabeth in Fotheringay park, all was not well. The new leading woman, wearing a wig for the first time in her career and looking uncomfortable in the high Elizabethan ruff, was ill at ease in the beginning, and, losing one of the chief words and thereby the meter from her opening lines, she began to flounder and soon "dried up" completely.

This left Schiller's unhappy Mary standing in the center of the stage waiting to be adequately insulted. But Elizabeth's mind was a blank, madam could see that, and, jumping to her last speech, the curtain was brought down. Everybody on the stage was distressed. But instantly the beautiful young woman, disguised as the irate Elizabeth, rushed to the star's side and said:

"Dear madam, I am so sorry, but you know you do look so loyable in this part it was impossible for me to say those terrible things to you!"

For a second there was a mixed expression on Modjeska's face, and then she forgivingly patted the speaker's cheek and walked away.—Metropolitan Magazine.

THE STAGE DRINK.

Some Sarcastic Comments Upon Its Terrific Potency.

What we have always noticed about the stage drink is its terrific potency. That there are other points of interest in this thing we do not deny, and we are inclined to agree with a writer in one of the weekly papers who says that "our actors, even the best and most experienced of them, haven't the faintest notion of how to drink naturally and with the air of men who are enjoying the process." And we have frequently noted that curious unspillable quality in the musical comedy drink. In this particular type of potation, which is set to music and which we may call the gay drink, the careless gestures of the flagon holders, who do not actually drink until they have waved the goblet upside down, have been known to make strong and thirsty galleryites burst into tears, commingled with reproaches. When falsely accused Frederick suffers a momentary attack of depression and decides to set out for territories exclusively canine he pours into a small liquor glass a little very pale brandy and, with a desperate cry of frenzy and despair, drinks it at one go. Sometimes it is half a glass of noncorporeal claret. But the result is the same. Falsely accused Frederick instantly starts his Apache dance with the grand pianoforte, and friends who believed in him, entering at that moment, say, "Good heavens, he's drunk!" The drink is potent. It cannot always be a case of weakness of head.—London Globe.

He Told Her.

"What is it, do you suppose, that keeps the moon in place and prevents it from falling?" asked Araminta.

"I think it must be the beams," replied Charlie softly.

Caught the Old Sailor.

It was a clever lawyer in a Boston court who took advantage of the nautical knowledge he possessed to work upon the mind of a juryman who did not seem to show much comprehension of a case of suing a street railway for damages.

The dull member was an old sailor, who, though doubtless very keen of perception along some lines, was nevertheless rather slow in his understanding of the points involved in the case being tried, says the New York Journal. The lawyer noticed this and made his strike with this particular man. Approaching the jury box, he addressed himself to this one juryman and said:

"Mr. Juryman, I will tell you how it happened. The plaintiff was in command of the outward bound open car and stood in her starboard channels. Along came the inward bound closed car, and just as their bows met she jumped the track, sheered to port and knocked the plaintiff off and ran over him."

The sailor was all attention after this version of the affair and joined in a $5,000 verdict for the injured man.

Jeweled Monsters.

In the upper cretaceous deposits at White cliffs, New South Wales, two skeletons of plesiosaurian reptiles have been found, both of which were completely opalized, like the tree trunks found in Arizona and other western localities. In the first example of these jeweled monsters that were unearthed the color was rich and striking. The second was less brilliant of hue, and precious opal occurred only here and there on the specimen, especially in the transverse process of the neck. The plesiosaurs are an extinct race of very long necked creatures which swam in ancient seas.—Harper's Weekly.

What Eskimos Think of White Men.

The Eskimos' opinion of white men is sometimes as uncomplimentary as the white men's opinion of them. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, who was the ethnologist in company with the recent Anglo-American polar expedition, writes in Harper's Magazine of his experiences in the arctic while living with Eskimo families, and he reports with Eskimo as saying that white men are as bad to travel with as babies. Indeed, they go further and say that white men are worse than babies, because though babies cry they don't argue, and white men are always "giving directions about things they don't understand."

Trials of a Host.

"I suppose you will give some elaborate entertainments this season?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox; "I think we'll improve on those of last season."

"Weren't they all successful?"

"Nope. It was my fault. I tried to make everybody have a good time, and the first thing I knew mother and the girls were complaining because they weren't sufficiently high class and formal."—Washington Star.

Why He Stopped.

"You used to be an awful spendthrift."

"Yep. But I ain't any longer."

"Ah! Reformed?"

"No; spent it all."—Cleveland Leader.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

About 40 friends and neighbors enjoyed a sleighride to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Rentschler, Saturday evening, taking them by complete surprise, also bringing with them baskets of goodies for the occasion. Well if you could only have taken a look you would have decided that, that crowd, when they start out for a good time, complete it to a finish. Even an egg came to settle the coffee; nothing was missing exsept the friends who were unable to be there. Mr. and Mrs. Rentschler wish to thank each and every one of the friends for being so pleasantly remembered.

G. A. R. MEETING.

There was a fine attendance at the meeting of the G. A. R. and auxiliary in their rooms on the evening of the 21st. Washington and Lincoln were the subjects for the evening's entertainment. The meeting opened by singing, and invocation by Rev. J. Wirt Dunning. Dr. Hartzog then gave a short tribute to Washington, the father of his country. His address was full of rich thoughts, and everyone listened with close attention and were sorry that he was obliged by previous engagement, to make it so short.

Rev. Dunning then followed with an eulogy on Lincoln, so perfect a tribute, so forceful in every sentence, every point so clearly marked out, his audience followed him with wrapt attention to the very end. Surely he had a noble theme, and handled it in a masterful manner. We hope that all of the young men of the country may be led to feel as Mr. Dunning has done, the worth and grandeur of Lincoln and other men of his time, and the debt we owe them, for the deeds they wrought for our country's good.

Miss Bush gave two most delightful solos, the first of which touched the heart with its pathetic longing for home.

Mrs. Virginin Halliday, gave a selection—"The Yankee," in her usual fine style.

Mrs. Collins recited "All quiet along the Potomac to-night," in a very pleasing manner.

Mrs. Barnes being present made a few remarks, and the committee passed popcorn to all, Mrs. Barnes having provided the same.

Mrs. Halliday then gave another of her fine recitations,—a tribute to Lincoln.

Mr. Daniels made a few pertinent remarks, after which, Miss Edyth Shull gave a fine instrumental selection. The audience joined in singing America, and all went home pleased with the evenings' entertainment.

Good News.—Just as we were going to press, we are informed that through the personal exertions of our postmaster, Col. Saviers, we shall, after this date, have two mails per day, each way. This is an important item to our business men, as it will enable them to transmit and receive orders and answer their correspondence the same day. The mails going south will leave at 8:40 a. m. and 3:33 p. m. This is another grand addition to the business facilities of Tecumseh, and one that will be appreciated by business men especially.

And today Feb. 22, 1910, we have twelve mails in coming and the same out going every day. Truly the march of progress is evident in every business relation in our beautiful village.

Fine Banquet—Work in 1st Degree by Jackson Lodge. Pleasant Evening for All.

The K. of P's. about 31 strong left Tecumseh at 5 o'clock Monday eve for Jackson where they hac been invited to a 6 o'clock dinner and fraternal visit with a number of other lodges. On their arrival they were conducted to the lodge room of the Jackson lodge and were banqueted in the most elaborate manner. There were about 600 present, ten lodges being represented among which were Adrian, Ysilanti, Tecumseh, Albion, Marshall, Mason, Ann Arbor and Leslie. One lodge with a membership of only 60, sent just half their number. At roll call Jas. Elliot made the response in a very pleasing style. EASIEST of all cultivators to guide, raise and lower—that's saying a good deal, but it's true.

The Olivers now make a Riding Cultivator. When you see it you will say they should have done it before.

It was used two years in all the big corn states before they said much about it.

Now they say—and it's a fact—that this new OLIVER implement absolutely guides, raises and lowers easier than any other cultivator on earth.

That it does better, easier, slicker work in all soils and conditions. and—

That it comes nearer making a day's cultivating seem like a picnic than any other cultivator.

Best Stomach Remedy Free

It is an old saying that if the stomach is sound the whole body is safe, because so much depends upon the proper working of the stomach. Many persons find themselves with a disorder of the stomach which produces dyspepsia or a peculiar state of biliousness.

If you suffer from both stomach trouble and constipation you are on the way to a very serious disease. From just such conditions come appendicitis, rheumatism, skin diseases and similar disorders, because the waste matter that should have been dispelled from the system through the bowels has found its way into the blood and vitiated it. What is needed at this point is not simply a violent cathartic tablet or salt, which usually does more harm than good, but a gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which people have been using for these ailments for nearly a quarter of a century. It cured J. C. Lanham, of Warrensburg, Mo., of stomach trouble of long standing, also William Voll, of 903 Ellison St., Louisville, Ky., who had the trouble for fifteen years.

However, if you have stomach trouble you want to know from personal experience what Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do for you. If so, send your name to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you. You are urged to send for the free bottle, as the results from it will be the best recommendation of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Then you will do as over two million people did last year—go to your druggist and buy a regular bottle at 50 cents or $1, according to the size you prefer. We could mention hundreds and hundreds of families who are never without it. You can never tell when some member of the family will need a laxative, and then no time should be lost taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

A SAFEGUARD TO CHILDREN.

"Our two children of six and eight years have been since infancy subject to colds and croup. About three years ago I started to use Foley's Honey and Tar, and it has never failed to prevent and cure these troubles. It is the only medicine I can get the children to take without a row." The above from W. C. Ornstein, Green Bay, Wis., duplicates the experience of thousands of other users of Foley's Honey and Tar. Sold by all druggists.

A happy family is but an earlier heaven.

Took All His Money.

Often all a man earns goes to doctors or for medicines, to cure a Stomach, Liver or Kidney trouble that Dr. King's New Life Pills would quickly cure at slight cost. Best for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Billiousness, Constipation, Jaundice, Malaria and Debility. 25c at C. A. Wright & Son.

Hundreds of orphans have been helped by the President of the Industrial and Orphan's Home at Macon, Ga., who writes: "We have used Electric Bitters in this Institution for nine years. It invigorates all vital organs, purifies the blood, aids digestions creates appetite. To strengthen and build up pale, thin, weak children or rundown people it has no equal. Saved From Awful Peril

"I never felt so near my grave." writes Dewis Chamblin, of Manchester, Ohio. R. R. No. 3, "as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 115 pounds in spite of many remedies and the best doctors. And that I am alive today is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 160 pounds and can work hard. It also cured my four children of croup." Infallible for Coughs and Colds, it is the most certain remedy for LaGrippe Asthma, desperate lung trouble and all bronchial affections, 50c and $1.00. A trial bottle free. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son.

If your wife is the best woman in the world, tell her so; it will keep her young and lengthen her life.

CAN'T BE SEPARATED

Some Tecumseh People Have Learned How to Get Rid of Both.

Backache and kidney ache are twin brothers.

You can't separate them.

And you can't get rid of the backache until you cure the kidney ache.

If the kidneys are well and strong, the rest of the system is pretty sure to be in vigorous health.

Doan's Kidney Pills make strong, healthy kidneys.

William W. Shurtz, Kilbuck street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times for ten years and I have received such great benefit that I gladly endorse them. Whenever I feel that my kidneys are not doing their work as they should I get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and a short use brings me relief." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Tecumseh Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1—comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or thick, red, illsmelling urine, full of sediment and irregular passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2—comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Tecumseh proof:

Elias C. Brisbin, N. Democrat St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I began to suffer from kidney trouble twenty years ago and all my efforts for relief were unsuccessful. I had severe backaches and the kidney secretions were highly colored and highly irregular in passage. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and they promptly relieved me. I have since kept this remedy in the house and whenever I have taken it, good results have followed." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

BYRON AND THE BALLOON.

How the Poet in 1822 Predicted the Airship of Today.

Those who have read the fiction of Edgar Allan Poe will recall his wonderful story of the balloon with a propelling rudder, which, crossing the Atlantic from Europe in three days, landed on the coast of South Carolina. This story was published in 1838, preceding the flight of Bleriot from Calais to Dover more than seventy years. And now it is remarked that as early as 1822, sixteen years before Poe, Byron foretold the motor.

It was in 1822 that Byron lived at Pisa, Italy, where he had rented for a year the Lanfranchie palace, and it was there that he entertained a Captain Medwin, who on his return to London published his "Conversations With Lord Byron." One of these conversations is to this effect:

"Who can but regret," said Byron, "that he has been born two or three hundred years too soon. Here is a letter from a savant of Bologna who claims to have discovered the secret of guiding balloons by means of a rudder and who assures me that he is ready to disclose this secret to the government. I imagine that we are soon to make journeys through the air instead of sea voyages, at last to find a way to go to the moon despite the lack of atmosphere that Fontanelle has discovered there. There is not as much madness in this idea as one may suppose. The sciences are now in their infancy."

Medwin left Pisa in March, 1822. It was near the close of that year that Byron published the latter parts of his "Don Juan," in which the poet shows that he had been inspired by the discovery of the Bologna savant. See the second stanza of the tenth cante:

Man fell with apples and with apples rose,
If this be true, for we must deem the mode
In which Sir Isaac Newton could disclose
Through the then unpaved stars the turnpike road,
A thing to counterbalance human woes,
For ever since immortal man hath glowed
With all kinds of mechanics, and full soon
Steam engines will conduct him to the moon.

Byron's "Don Juan" was translated into French by Amedee Pichot in 1825; but, daring as was that translator, he did not venture to put "Don Juan" into rhyme, and today the foregoing stanza done in French prose is supposed to be a prediction of aviation by motor, though Byron's suggestion goes no further than steam.—London Globe.

The Size of Raindrops.

Raindrops do not always have the same size or weight, and this is primarily due to the fact that they are not formed like the drops of water that fall from a wet cloth or the spout of a pitcher or the drops that rush out of the small holes in a garden sprinkler. In all these latter cases a solid stream of water is broken up into drops. But the raindrop is formed in the cloud by the accumulation of minute atoms of water drawn together into one drop and sometimes by the melting of a large snowflake or a solid little icy hailstone. When a drop is thus formed in the clouds it begins to fall, no matter whether it be large or small, and observers in balloons state that all sizes of drops are to be found within the clouds themselves, from the finest fog and drizzling mist up to the heavy rain. It is commonly said that the bigger drops fall faster than the smaller ones and overtake them and grow bigger. This sounds reasonable, but no one has really proved it.—St. Nicholas.

SITUATION IS NOT YET CLEAR

Republicans Not Agreed on Postal Savings Bank Bill.

SMOOT MAY YIELD TO TAFT

Chief Executive, Root and Other Lawyers Say His Amendment to Postal Savings Bank Bill Makes Measure Unconstitutional—"Insurgent" Republicans Insist on Having It.

Washington, Feb. 21.—The situation in the senate surrounding the postal savings bank bill is still involved. It is expected that some action will be taken today by the senate leaders in the way of composing differences on the Republican side by which the course of this legislation may be determined. It is expected that Senator Smoot will yield to the request of the president and ask for the re-consideration of the vote by which his amendment was adopted.

Senator Smoot's amendment directing that postal savings funds shall be invested only in government securities has been abandoned. Senator Smoot was reluctant to yield. He said only yesterday that he was willing to defer to the judgment of the president, Senator Root and the other able lawyers who contended that the bill would be rendered unconstitutional if the Smoot amendment was allowed to remain in. The senator is not a lawyer. He expressed doubts, however, whether the senate would pass the bill if his amendment were eliminated.

The "insurgent" Republican senators will not accept the bill, it is said, without the Smoot amendment. Their votes added to the Democrats, who, with two exceptions, are opposed to the measure on general principles, and will vote against it, augmented by the votes of those regular Republican senators, like Gallinger and Heyburn, who are opposed to any postal savings bill, will give the president's measure a close shave. The senate leaders are confident, however, that they can pass the bill by a majority from five to eight votes. They will endeavor to reach a vote on the measure before the end of the week.

BRITISH ISLES SWEPT BY FIERCE GALE

Estimated Fifty Lives Have Been Lost at Sea.

London, Feb. 21.—An exceptionally violent southwest gale, which has prevailed over the British isles for two or three days, reached hurricane force Sunday, the wind some times reaching a velocity of eighty miles and hour. There have been several wrecks on the coast and a number of disasters ashore, resulting in the aggregate of nearly fifty deaths.

The steamer Queen, from Boulogne with 129 passengers, vainly tried to enter Folkestone. She finally succeeded after five fruitless attempts. The Cunard line steamer Mauretania was compelled to lie off Queenstown for nine hours before she was able to enter and embark mails and passengers from New York. When she resailed she was unable to drop the local pilot at Roches Point and is taking him to New York.

Severe thunder and lightning and heavy rains accompanied the gale in many places, causing floods. Miles of telephone wires are down, and communication between London and many of the northern and western cities has been stopped. Three hundred lines are down in London.

Counterfeiters Taken to Prison.

New York, Feb. 21.—Ignazio Lupo, Giuseppe Morello and the six other Sicilian counterfeiters who were sentenced in the United States circuit court to long terms in the federal prison at Atlanta were transferred from the Tombs Sunday. Marshal Henkel, anticipating a demonstration by the friends of the men, had twenty-six deputies at the Tombs, besides the four policemen that came with two patrol wagons. But apparently the friends decided to disperse with the leave taking. Six deputy marshals accompanied them south.

Discover Large Ore Body.

Negaunee, Feb. 21.—George J. Maas and his associates, who have been operating diamond drills on lands west of the American mine for some three years past, have located the largest body of ore that has been found, on the Marquette range since the discovery of the Maas mine in this city. The drill hole in which the recent discovery was made was located 425 feet west of M. A. Hanna & Co's American mine line.

PRISONER SHOT HIM.

Saginaw Policeman May Be Fatally Wounded.

Saginaw, Mich., Feb. 21.—While the streets were filled with a crowd of shoppers, Policeman Louis Kenning was shot by a prisoner whom he had just arrested. Moses La Boeuf, who did the shooting, fled, but was captured an hour later.

The shooting occurred at 7:30 p. m., at the corner of South Hampton and Court streets, in the heart of the west side business district. Kenning had just arrested La Boeuf and was taking him to the station. La Boeuf made an attempt to get away, and in the struggle that followed the officer's revolver fell from his pocket to the sidewalk. La Boeuf picked it up, placed it against the officers hip and pulled the trigger. The weapon was a high-powered 38 caliber special, and the ball ploughed clear through Kenning's hip. Kenning was taken to Saginaw general hospital to be operated on. If blood poisoning does not develop, he will live.

As Kenning sank to the sidewalk La Boeuf fled. An hour later he was captured.

Five thousand granite cutters, who have been idle at Barre, Vt., since Nov. 13, last, have returned to work.

President Taft has consented to attend the Ohio Valley exposition at Cincinnati, which opens on Aug. 29 and closes Oct. 1.

George Stephens, son of a prominent mine operator in Birmingham, Ala., shot and killed three of his little children, shot and fatally wounded their colored nurse and then turned the pistol on himself and ended his own life.

A contract, the value of which is between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, has been given to German industrial concerns in Berlin and Stettin by J. M. Schwab of the Bethlehem Steel company for the erection in South Bethlehem, Pa., of a large battery of coke ovens.

Governor Hughes has been advised that President Taft has decided definitely to visit Albany, N. Y., on March 19. He will attend a dinner at the University club in the evening and will be the guest of the governor at the executive mansion during his stay.

Believing that American naval and army officers should have a better understanding of the Japanese people, the customs and language, the state department, in Washington, has obtained the consent of the Japanese government to station a number of such officers as attaches of the American embassy at Tokio.

The body of John F. Johnson, former president of the State National bank of Logansport, Ind., was found floating in the Wabash river. Johnson served six years in prison following his confession that he had embezzled $550,000 of the bank's funds. Recently he had been a grain broker. It is presumed he committed suicide.

GILDER REMEMBERED.

Memorial Services Held, With Governor Hughes Presiding.

New York, Feb. 21.—Governor Hughes presided Sunday afternoon at a meeting in Mendelssohn hall, held in commemoration of the life and work of Richard Watson Gilder. The meeting was under the auspices of seventeen organizations to which Mr. Gilder belonged. Hamilton W. Mabie presented the governor as the president of the meeting, and in doing so paid his own tribute to Mr. Gilder. Governor Hughes, among other things, said:

"A singularly beautiful and fruitful life has ended. Such was the range of its activity that we cannot adequately define its power. We are here to nourish our best resolves by the study of this life. We must remember that the varied expressions of the talent, the force and the spirit of Richard Watson Gilder were but the expressions of individuality, of his indivisible, virile, strong personality. He cannot be divided into poet, critic, philanthropist. He was what he was in each line of effort because of what he was in all."

SOLDIER WITH A RECORD.

Was Colonel Perrin V. Fox, Who is Dead in Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 21.—Colonel Perrin V. Fox, one of the oldest war veterans in the state, is dead of pneumonia, aged eighty-eight years.

Colonel Fox, during the civil war, was a member of the First Michigan engineers, and Oct. 26, 1863, performed an engineering feat that probably saved the army of the Cumberland, under General Rosecrans, from capture. Hard pressed by the Confederates, it was necessary to cross the Tennessee river, and Colonel Fox volunteered to build a pontoon bridge, which he did in three hours, between Bridgeport and Chattanooga, with three companies under his command. For this feat, accomplished under a heavy fire from the enemy, he was highly commended by Major General Thomas.

A Test of Friendship.

A gentleman tried the following peculiar way of probing the ties of friendship. He sent letters to twenty-four intimate friends asking for a loan of a pound. Thirteen of the two dozen friends did not reply at all, five declined to lend the money, two promised to send it on the next day and did not do it, one sent his "last 10 shillings," and only three sent the full sum asked for. The supplicant and all the "friends" he had written to are well off.—London Mail.

The news of the sudden death of Mrs. Bryan came as a shock to her many friends. Her illness was so brief, that not even those nearest her knew of it. Her's was such a lovely nature, that it endeared her to all who met her, and her cheerful uncomplaining life through all the years of her widowhood, caring for her little ones, and bringing them up to manhood and womanhood so bravely, won for her the respect and true friendship of all who knew her. And now with her life work fully done, she was called home Sunday, Feb. 20, 1910. And all that was mortal was brought to Tecumseh for burial by the side of her husband who was taken from her so many years ago.

CALIFORNIA

THE LAND OF SUNSHINE AND FLOWERS AGAIN HEARD FROM.

You Might Know It's From Our Good Old Friend and Former Resident, W. P. Stocking.

Many moons have waxed and waned since I knocked at your sanctum door with a message from this land of sunshine and flowers, the mecca of thousands, who have found our mild winter climate more desirable for an all-year-round home than in the more frigid sections of the East, and have come here to spend the remainder of their days.

Whether many or few—they can enjoy out-of-door life, nine-tenths of the time during the year. Especially is this the case with those who are in their declining years.

At any public gathering, one can not help noticing the great number of white and gray heads. Probably it would make the readers of the Herald shiver to even think of taking a bath in your mill ponds, or creeks, or old swimming holes, but here at Long Beach, people are even now bathing in the ocean, almost daily. They sport in the surf for a while, come out and roll in the warm sand, then back into the surf, then for a plunge in the bath house.

Some days this winter I have seen bathers passing along the street in their bathing suits on their way home after a "dip in the surf" and this too when it is pretty generally considered that it has been the coldest winter here for many years.

Several states besides Michigan, have formed state societies and some of them hold semi-annual picnics, in mid-winter and mid-summer. The former at some one of the beautiful parks in Los Angeles, and the latter at some one of the several branches around Los Angeles.

The state organizations that I can call to mind are Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Colorado and Kansas.

It was our pleasure to attend the Michigan picnic held at East Lake Park, Los Angeles, last Saturday, the 12th.

As you sit by your comfortable fireides, with the ground covered with snow, perhaps icicles hanging from the eaves, the artistic frost-work on your window panes, with a possible blizzard in full blast; just close your eyes and ears and imagine yourselves in a beautiful park—of many acres, and surrounded by many blooming flowers. In the shade of a great variety of trees, new to you, where you see mountains, lakes, rustic bridges, hot-houses full of hundreds of varieties of rare flowers and shrubs, a large collection of animals and birds, and then find yourselves mingling with about 2,000 Michiganders from nearly every county in the state, pay a paltry 10 cents for membership, which will entitle you to a button and badge, and all you can drink—of excellent coffee.

Take a look at the loaded tables, listen to the friendly greetings on all sides, passing back and forth through the throng of people, you cannot fail to note the total absence of any kind of roughness; note the intelligence, and the cleanliness of all ages and then straighten up and be proud that you are a Michigander.

Now, who have we found among these good people from Tecumseh? Who? Well, we met and shook hands with Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge, Miss Marietta Thorp and her sisters, Mrs. Barker and Mrs. Lula Monagan Wolcott. We are indebted to Miss Marietta Thorp for the following names of those we did not meet:

Marja Monagan, Mrs. Bigelow, 2, Mrs. Graham, Mrs. M. Woodard Amstrutz and her two little daughters, Dr. Guernsey Waring, O. G. Garlinghouse, Mr and Mrs. Frank Benedict and her mother, Miss Smith of Britton, George Griswold of Adrian.

As I left Tecumseh in August, 1858, and returned but a few times for short visits, these people were all strangers to me, but having once lived in dear old Tecumseh, they seemed like old friends, especially if they knew my brother and dear sister, Fannie. I hope that I may meet all of those whom I met there today, and those I did not meet.

Representative Moss shows that the government paternally gives away mustard seed, and then, with equal solicitude, follows them up with a bulletin telling the farmer how to eradicate the product when it threatens to overrun his garden.

The Ballinger-Pinchot investigation will fill that uncomfortable void between now and the opening of the baseball season.

60 YEARS MARRIED.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Hoag Married 60 Years Ago Feb. 21 st.

Walter B. Hoag and Miss Bellnay H. Blair were married at Burlington N. Y. Feb. 21, 1850 and came to Mich. in Jan. 1863. For about forty years Tecumseh has been their home. Until within a few months they have lived in their own home and been active workers, but Mr. Hoag's failing eyesight made it necessary for them to go to the home of their daughter, Mrs Wm. Owens. Mr. Hoag is now at Ann Arbor having treatment for his eyes. He is very feeble but we hope that he may soon return to his family and the enjoyments of life.

BEWARE OF CATARRH

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

IN TIME OF PERIL.

A Story of Russian Love and Adventure.

By ARTHUR D. BRADFORD.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

It is a wild country northwest from Ust Ussa, toward the Oldorsk mountains, with poor roads and few stopping places for travelers and deadly cold to fight.

At sunset it was below zero, and at midnight, when they were a hundred and fifty miles on their journey, it had fallen 20 degrees more.

With the speed at which the automobile was going the wind was like needles at first and then paralyzing into numbness.

But Helga Plenavik was covered deep in the furs, and her man Ivan bent his fur capped head, and urged the machine forward at reckless speed in view of the desperate nature of the journey. Since starting they had not once spoken.

As they climbed the mountains the snow that at starting had been only a white blanket grew deeper and yet deeper, but with a crust which at their high rate of speed bore up the machine.

As they flew on particles of ice and snow were thrown to either side and trailed out into a whirling cloud behind.

Then suddenly, an hour or so after midnight, as they were nearing the summit of one of the lower ranges, there came a solitary howl, a long distance away apparently, but sounding clearly across the snow. Ivan's bent head rose quickly, but it was not until an answering howl came from a different direction that he stopped the automobile and sprang to the ground. Helga uncovered her face from the furs.

THE MUSCULAR ARMS ROSE AND FELL.

"What is the matter, Ivan?" she asked. "Is the machine broken or the snow too deep?"

Ivan did not answer for a moment. When he spoke his voice sounded hoarse and unnatural.

"No, Miss Helga," he mumbled. "I am only giving the machine its full power. It has been going several hours, you know, and the running is hard."

"Yes, I know that," looking at him curiously. "But why have you stopped at this bleak spot to power up? There must be at least fifty more miles in the machine."

"We may need a hundred, with power for a terrific spurt of speed if necessary."

"But why?"

"Listen!"

A third howl quivered menacingly through the silence of the solitude and night, nearer, yet from still another direction. Ivan's voice, even in its muffled indistinctness, had seemed strangely tense, and she had wondered. The howl, sharply re-enforced from the same direction as the first and second, explained.

"Wolves!"

There is no sound so calculated to strike terror into a stout heart as the howl of a wild animal crying from hunger. Men who have escaped from prison, flying for their freedom and for their lives, subject to every danger, have said that this cry, especially in the nighttime when all is still, has gone further to take away their courage than any other cause. The cry of the wolf has in it a dismal wail that renders it more dreadful even than the deep roar of the lion.

"Timber wolves, starving and so fierce and gaunt that the fastest race horse in the country would be only a tortoise in their path. You"—

He was interrupted by a startled exclamation, stifled. For a moment the voice had forgotten its disguise.

"Alexiff!"

The man bent a little lower over his work; then he rose suddenly, erect. Concealment was no longer of use.

"Yes, Helga," he said.

"Why are you here?"

"To serve you. Ivan is a brave man, but he has his own interests. My only interest is you."

"But"—

"I have not the courage and hardihood for a desperate undertaking, you would say," simply. "You intimated that when you refused me. I have been a society man, true, with no apparent object but to spend my income, but you are more to me than society, Helga—more than estate, everything.

"When I suspected this fearful journey your father is sending you on, in which he dared not trust your own man with the secret, I determined to substitute myself in Ivan's place and be near.

"You are a brave girl, Helga, for that is in the blood of your race, but you may thank God that we have the best automobile in the country and that the summit of this ridge is only ten miles away. On the other side it will be down grade, and the roads will be less obstructed by snow. Better the risk from terrific speed than from hungry timber wolves. I believe we shall escape the animals, but it will be against a hundred possible accidents. There, now, we are ready."

He sprang into the automobile and threw it forward with a bound, as a race horse touched by the spur. And as he did so there came a wild series of howls circling them from all sides.

Helga raised a fur robe to shield her face. Alexiff bent forward to the cutting wind and flying particles as before, but with ears open and eyes keen.

A mile through the hissing wind—two miles—five—and then shadowy forms were seen sweeping toward them on either side and even gaining on them from behind.

The snow was deeper here, and in some places the crust gave a little, causing them to sway from side to side, losing speed.

A dark form rushed down upon them in front, bounded into the air, and the speed at which both were going carried the car entirely under him before the animal touched the ground, clawing impotently into the snow to check himself.

Other dark spots appeared and in an instant seemed to sweep down upon them and passed. One got his claws upon the box in front and tried to scramble into the car. Alexiff struck him off with his fist.

"Helga," he cried, "you must take charge of the machine now and give her speed, speed, speed. Never mind risk."

He caught up a short iron headed staff and swung it to the right, the left, in front, and with every blow a wolf fell back struggling upon the snow.

He was a powerful man, and it required but a single blow accurately placed.

Another five minutes, with his arms rising and falling like pendulums, or, rather, like steam hammers, and then the automobile swept over the summit and dropped upon the down grade.

"Now speed, Helen," he yelled as he struck a wolf back upon the snow even before its feet had touched the car. "There are a hundred of the brutes crowding upon us. Faster! More speed! More speed!"

A wolf was climbing into the car from behind, another on the left, a third rising into the air in front. The muscular arms rose and fell three times.

Thwack, thud — thwack, thud — thwack, thud—and the three wolves were lying struggling and disabled up on the snow, with the snapping teeth of their companions closing upon them.

The automobile was now rushing down the slope at fearful speed. An other wolf was struck away; two more, and then the animals began to fall behind. A mile farther, and Alexiff's hand touched Helga's shoulder.

"Slow a little now," he said. "We have distanced them, I think, so will just try to keep ahead. You may get back under the furs."

She returned to her seat, covered herself with the furs and for a time was in a partial swoon.

The danger she had passed was too much for her. She could not get the savage beasts, their long jaws and sharp teeth, their hungry eyes, out of her mind.

Again she saw them climbing into the automobile and again she saw the brave man who had fought them raining blows upon them.

It had seemed to her every moment that he would be overpowered, and that meant a frightful death, not only to him but to her.

All this made him to her what he had never been before. He was not only a hero, he was her protector—he had saved her life.

Six hours later they swept into Akakin, through the turbulent streets and on to where a mass of Russian cavalry and infantry were about to reduce a monastery which had advocated revolt. Policemen sprang forward to stop the automobile, soldiers moved in front, but Helga held up something which glittered in the sun, and at the sign they all fell back. She went straight to the officer commanding.

He turned at her appearance, his face darkening.

"I have no time for visitors now," he said harshly. "Wait until I punish these rebels."

"You have time for this," replied Helga, giving him a paper and raising her hand, where shone the sign of her authority.

The officer muttered something and took off his hat. Then he read the paper.

"Very well," he said sourly. "I will wait twenty-four hours, and then"—

"You will do well to wait," interrupted Helga sternly. "This is a time for compromise, not slaughter. Within twenty-four hours you will receive confirmatory orders through the regular channels."

Then she said something to Alexiff, and he turned the automobile, and they swept back on the return journey. But her hand rested on his arm for a moment, and he understood. She acknowledged that he was a brave man as well as a strong one, and he might come to her and ask again.

The Order Pleased the Cook.

The following story is told on a missionary of the China inland mission, a bachelor keeping house for himself in the southern part of China: One morning in ordering his dinner he wished to tell his cook to buy a chicken. Instead of saying "ye" for chicken he aspirated the word, saying, "Buy me a 'che.'" His cook thought that was an eminently proper command and went about his marketing in high good humor. At noon the missionary found no chicken cooked—in fact, no dinner at all, for his cook had not returned. About dark the man came back, saying: "This was not a good day for buying wives, and I have been all day looking for one, but at last I found one for you. She is rather old and not pretty, but you can have her cheap. I have promised $10 for her."

B. FRALK

A Quick Witted Doctor.

A French surgeon who was once attending a sultan resorted to an expedient which, although efficacious, might have resulted in his own death. He had been commissioned to bleed the grand seignior and either through timidity or nervousness had met with an awkward accident. The point of the lancet broke off in the vein, and the blood would not flow. That point must be got out somehow. Without stopping to consider the consequences to himself, the surgeon gave his highness a violent slap in the face. This produced the desired effect, for surprise and indignation on the part of his august patient put the blood into violent circulation. The vein bled freely, and the lancet point came out.

The bystanders were about to lay hands on the surgeon when he said, "First let me finish the operation and bandage the wound." This done, he threw himself at the feet of the sultan and explained his action.

The sultan not only pardoned him, but gave him a handsome reward for keeping his wits about him in a critical moment.

A Knockout.

A young lawyer was engaged in a case when a witness was put in the box to testify to the reputation of the place in question.

This witness in answer to a query as to the reputation of the place replied, "A poor shop."

The lawyer inquired, "You say it has the reputation of being a 'poor shop?'"

"Yes, sir."

"Whom did you hear say it was a 'poor shop?'"

The witness did not recollect any one he had heard say so.

"What!" said the lawyer. "You have sworn this place has the reputation of being a poor shop and yet cannot tell of any one you have ever heard say so?"

The witness was staggered for a moment at the words of the lawyer. The lawyer was feeling triumphant when the witness gathered himself together and quietly remarked, addressing the lawyer:

"Well, you have the reputation of being a poor lawyer, but I have never heard any one say so."

Romance of an Inkstain.

Pens and furniture used in the signing of famous treaties and documents recall Archibald Forbes' experience after Sedan. After witnessing Napoleon's interview with Bismarck at a wayside cottage and his subsequent surrender Forbes and a fellow war correspondent slept at the chateau which the fallen emperor had occupied the night before. The bedroom was just as Napoleon had left it and by the bed the open book with which he had read himself to sleep. It was Lytton's "Last of the Barons." Sitting at the adjoining writing table, Forbes wrote his dispatch, while his companion gnawed at a ham bone, their sole remainder of food. Irate at the little eating it furnished, he flung it across the room and upset the inkstand into which Forbes was dipping. When Forbes revisited the chateau a month or so later the inkstain was pointed out as caused by Napoleon's rage on learning the German terms of peace!—London Chronicle.

MICROBES IN THE SCALP

The Latest Explanation is That Microbes Cause Baldness

Profesor Unna of Hamburg, Germany, and Dr. Sabourand, of Paris, France, share the honor of having discovered the hair microbe.

Baldness is not caused through a few weeks' work of these hair microbes, but is the result of conditions brought about by their presence. Baldness may not occur until years after the microbes began work, but it is certain to come sooner or later.

The microbes cut off the blood supply. They feed on the fatty matter about the roots of the hair, through which the blood is absorbed. Finally the fatty matter is consumed, the food supply of the hair is gone and it starves and finally dies.

Resorcin is one of the most effective germ destroyers ever discovered. Beta Naphtol is a most powerful, yet absolutely safe germicide and antiseptic, which prevents development of germ matter, and creates a clean, healthy condition.

Pilocarpine, although not a coloring matter or dye, is an ingredient well established for its power to restore natural color to human hair when loss of color has been caused by a disease.

Borax, because of its well-defined softening and cleansing properties, is most useful in the treatment of scalp and hair diseases. Glycerine acts as a stimulant to the hair bulbs, and has a soothing, healing and nourish- influence. Alcohol is indispensible in medicine because of its antiseptic, stimulating and preserving qualities.

We want every one who has scalp or hair trouble to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, which contains all these ingredients. If it does not give you complete satisfaction in every particular, we will return every penny you paid us for it, for the mere asking and without question or formality.

Of course you understand that when we say Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will grow hair we do not refer to cases where the roots are entirely dead, the pores of the scalp closed, and the head has the shiny appearance of a billiard ball. In cases like this there is no hope. In all other cases of baldness Rexal "93" Hair Tonic will grow hair, or cost the user nothing. Two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Rochester only at our store,—The Rexall Store. The C. J. Pulver Drug Store.

LOCAL OPTION IN TECUMSEH

Witherell's hall was filled with men last night to hear the local option issue discussed after a brief exhibition of facts with the use of the stereopticon by Rev. J. W. Dunning. Dr. Hartzog, chairman of the Tecumseh local option committee, explained that the meeting was held under the direction of that committee. He stated that they desired to conduct a fair campaign of education.

That they were not against the saloon keeper but against public drinking places.

Mr. Hartzog came from Ohio where 62 out of the 88 counties are dry and was secretary of the organization of wood county that led the forces and won a majority of 1400. He announced that every resident pastor would speak on this issue next Sunday. Mr. B. Hurry was then introduced as chairman of the evening and after a few remarks introduced the speaker Mr. J. B. Field of Jackson.

Mr. Fields address was listened to with intense interest. Almost every phase of the drink problem was discussed. The local situation in Jackson was explained. He stated that there was but one vacant store room on Main street in that city.

One of the leading business men of that city gave him a written statement which reads: "The business men are quite unanimous in the view that were the question of saloons or no saloons to come up again the country would go dry by a larger majority."

The most telling item from Jackson is the statement in the Jackson year book 1910 publish by the Chamber of Commerce, consisting of 200 men who pay $100.00 to become a member, and $10.00 dues annualy.

That book states "Absence of Saloons, Jackson county is dry. The absence of saloons has worked no injury. Workingmen are content with the results.

WOMEN'S MEETING.

A simultaneous meeting for women was held in the M. E. church which was well attended in spite of the fact that it has by mistake been announced for Friday. Mrs. Jackson president of the W. C. T. U. presided. Mr. Field addressed them briefly at the outset showing that the real burden of this movement after all rested on the women. He was followed by Rev. Walter H. Smith of Manchester who gave a masterful address full of inspiration which aroused every woman present to a sense of the far reaching importance of the next six weeks and in which he pointed out some of the practical things they might do. It was evident that the women intend to be a real factor in this campaign and when we remember the history of the temperance movement and what they have done in the past, we all know that when they take hold in earnest things are done.

BRONCHIAL TUBES ALL STUFFED UP

While a resident of Washingtou, D. C., I suffered continually and intensely with a bronchial trouble that was simply terrible to endure. I would have spells that I could hardly breathe, I would choke up, fill up in my throat and bronchial tubes, and the doctoring that I did and the remedies used were of no benefit to me whatever. I heard about Booth's Hyomei being so beneficial in catarrhal and bronchial affections and procured an outfit. I received relief from the first by its use. I continued with it and received a cure. It is about two years since I have suffered at all from my former trouble.—Mrs. R. L. Pannell, 404 N. Augusta Street, Staunton, Va., March 26, 1909.

Hyomei is guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son to cure catarrh, croup, bronchitis and hoarseness or money covered there. There is not as madness in this idea as one may suppose. The sciences are now in their infancy."

Medwin left Pisa in March. It was near the close of that year Byron published the latter parts his "Don Juan," in which the shows that he had been inspired the discovery of the Bologna sav See the second stanza of the te cante:

Byron's "Don Juan" was translat into French by Amedee Pichot in 182 but, daring as was that translator, did not venture to put "Don Jua into rhyme, and today the foregoi stanza done in French prose is sp posed to be a prediction of aviation motor, though Byron's suggestion go no further than steam.—London Glob

The Size of Raindrops.

Raindrops do not always have the same size or weight, and this is due not formed like the drops of wa that fall from a wet cloth or the spo of a pitcher or the drops that run out of the small holes in a garden sprinkler. In all these latter cases solid stream of water is broken into drops. But the raindrop is form ed in the cloud by the accumulation minute atoms of water drawn togeth into one drop and sometimes by melting of a large snowflake or solid little icy hailstone. When a dr is thus formed in the clouds it beg to fall, no matter whether it be lar or small, and observers in balloo state that all sizes of drops are to found within the clouds themselv from the finest fog and drizzling m up to the heavy rain. HINTS FOR FARMERS

The Care of Farm Tools.

All machinery neglected produces heavier draft and retards progress, besides worrying horses and men, writes an Ohio farmer in the New England Homestead. Hands get out of humor operating such machinery, and those following it to finish the work lose time at the expense of the farmer. A good, cheap shed saves all this trouble and will prolong the life of implements sufficiently to actually pay interest on the cost of the shed. Corn planters, riding plows, cultivators, grain drills, mowers, hayrakes, tedders, potato planters, wagons and, in fact, almost every tool but the binder, can be brought to the barn at night and unhitched in the shelter, hitched up in the morning and taken to the field as quickly and easily as the team itself can be moved.

I use lubricating oil or lard on plow points and moldboards to prevent rust if they are to be idle any great length of time or if weather is rainy or damp for a few days at a time. The binder is always well covered at night. It is also taken from the field and placed in dry quarters as soon as the harvest is off.

Shelter For Hogs.

The ordinary hogpen is a low, dirt floored affair with one opening big enough for a good sized hog. It is almost impossible to clean out such pens thoroughly, and so they seldom are well cleaned. Then the quarters are often too small to accommodate the number of hogs that are supposed to sleep in them. The air becomes foul and unhealthful. A mighty good test is to crawl right into the pen after the hogs have been sleeping in it some time. If the air is bad an opening for ventilation should be made at the top of the pen. An opening can be made that will admit plenty of air and still will not let the storms drive in. Bad sanitary conditions are always conducive to disease. Too many stockmen pay no attention to the details of stock raising till something goes wrong and then call their misfortune bad luck. Cleanliness, warmth and good ventilation are the requirements of desirable hogpens. Good care is the best preventive for any disease and also is necessary for the most economical gains.—National Stockman.

Horses Afflicted With Worms.

Treatment differs somewhat according to the kind of worm to be destroyed, but for the usual worms of horses, the large, long white ones known as Ascaris megalocephala, dried sulphate of iron is quite effective. For an adult horse either mix in the feed night and morning for a week a tablespoonful of a mixture of equal parts of dried sulphate of iron, salt, ground gentian root and flowers of sulphur and then skip a week or ten days and repeat, or every night for a week mix in the feed one tablespoonful each of flowers of sulphur and salt and one dram of the iron. For mares in foal omit the iron. For colts lessen the dose according to age and size.—Rural New Yorker.

Feed and Breed.

In too many instances the breeder is a poor feeder. To spend money for pure bred animals of any kind and not feed well is folly. The Wisconsin experiment station says: "In all pure breeds the original 'scrub' blood at the foundation is ever seeking to reinstate itself. In short, there is a tendency in all pure bred animals to degenerate or retrogress toward original and less perfect types, and nothing will more surely and speedily stimulate this tendency than lack of nutritious food. In the absence of sufficient nutrition the possibilities of perfection inherited from pure bred sires or dams but partially materialize or wholly fail to assert themselves."

Treatment For Shoe Boil.

The tumor comes from the horse lying upon the elbow on a bare floor, not from the elbow lying on the heel of the shoe, as commonly supposed, says the Rural New Yorker. Tie horse up so he cannot lie down. Have the tumor cleanly dissected out. The wound may then be perfectly healed by wetting twice daily with a lotion composed of one ounce of sugar of lead and six drams of sulphate of zinc in a pint of water. Label the bottle "Poison" and shake well before applying. The tumor cannot be removed by applying medicine to it. The knife is the only perfect cure.

Deepen the Plowing.

A writer of authority says: Soils that have always been plowed shallow could be deepened gradually by setting the plow to go about one inch deeper each season until a depth of eight or nine inches has been reached. If this deepening is not done gradually the soil will be injured and poor crops result for several seasons.

Poultry Notes.

Fill the hen's crop right if you would have her fill the egg basket.

Even the hen needs a balanced ration if she is to lay well.

On cold nights the hens should have warm protection.

Winter eggs mean close application and careful handling and feeding, but it all pays.

The Farm Wood Lot.

The wood lot deserves your attention. It can be made both an economically and a profitable part of the farm. If you have no natural timber start that fall from a artificial growth upon the poorest or the land that has a tendency to wash. You will be surprised at the results you will obtain.

The great theatrical hit of last season, "Classmates," with Norman Hackett as the star, will be presented at the Bradley Opera House on Thursday, March 10. The play is by Wm. C. DeMille and Margaret Turnbull.

The Gasser Coffee Co., will serve coffee at our store Saturday.

Mercury Laden Swords.

Inserting running mercury in the backs of swords was a comparatively common practice among the Italian, French and Spanish swordmakers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, but it was more of a fancy than anything else, for it never came into general use. It was not, of course, used for rapiers or the lighter kind of swords, but for the heavier cutting swords. The method was to cast the blade rather broader at the back than usual, with a hollow running down it. This was half filled with quicksilver and sealed up. The idea was that when a blow was struck with such a sword the quicksilver would fly to the point and so increase the weight of the blow. This theoretical advantage, however, did not at all counterbalance the general clumsiness of the weapon and its unhandiness in guarding, and so the mercurial swords, as they were called, from which their ingenious inventor hoped so much, were rather military curiosities than practical successes.

Tale of Two Fish.

A story is related of a Manchester fisherman who once tried to lure the dainty trout from some of the nearby brooks. The fisherman did not get a bite in the brooks. He drove back to Manchester rather disheartened and went to a restaurant to get something to eat. He asked the restaurant keeper if he had any trout and received an affirmative reply. He ordered some of the trout for his supper and then told the proprietor that he might put two or three of the uncooked fish in his fish basket out at the door, as he didn't care to go home and receive the raillery of his friends. The proprietor of the restaurant told one of the clerks to carry out the order, and it was supposed to have been done faithfully.

But the clerk was not very alert, and when the fisherman got home and opened up the fish basket to his astonished wife there reposed two fine salt mackerel, and the fisherman has not got through explaining yet.—Manchester Union.

A Little Too Much.

"A wife has a right to expect much of her husband," remarked the philosophically inclined person musingly.

"Yes, I suppose she has," replied the meek appearing man with wilted looking whiskers. "I suppose she has, but when she expects him to live up, steadily and without swerving, to the motto on her first husband's tombstone I somehow think she is expecting more than she really ought to expect from a common, everyday, earthly man."

Her Nationality.

When small Sigrid made her first appearance in an American school, says Harper's Magazine, she was asked the usual puzzling questions, one of which was:

"What is your nationality, Sigrid?"

"Sigrid tossed her flaxen braids. "I'm an American of Norwegian design," she said promptly.

Discretion.

"You say you left the house this morning and then went back. Don't you know that's unlucky?"

"It would have been a blamed sight unluckier for me if I hadn't gone back."

"Why so?"

"My wife called me."—Lippincott's Magazine.

A Family Affair.

Casey's wife was at the hospital, where she had undergone a serious operation a few days before.

Mrs. Kelley called to inquire as to Mrs. Casey's condition.

"Is she resting quietly?" Mrs. Kelley asked.

"No, but I am," said Casey.—Exchange.

Exchange of Courtesies.

One of the keenest of journalists and wits, Moritz Gottlieb Saphir, had the better of the irate stranger against whom he ran by accident at the corner of a street in Munich. "Beast!" cried the offended person without waiting for an apology. "Thank you," said the journalist, "and mine is Saphir."

The Thorn.

Caller—How pleased you must be to find that your new cook is a stayer! Hostess—My dear, don't mention it. She's a stayer all right, but unfortunately she's a [illegible] Boston Transcript.

Men's Class Banquet

Men of Presbyterian Church Hold Fourth Annual Banquet Tuesday Evening.

Once a year the men of the Presbyterian church gather at the church parlors for a banquet and fellowship together. The banquet is held in the patriotic month of February and this year came on Washington's birthday.

One hundred and fifty places had been provided, and at 6:15 one hundred and fifty men marched from the auditorium and sat down to a delightful chicken pie supper, provided by the ladies society. The tables were very prettily decorated with flag napkins and red hatchets, with a unique program at each place. The walls were lined with large flags. The banquet was served by the ladies society assisted by the young ladies of the church.

After the banquet a program was given, which was declared by all who heard it to be the best yet given.

Frank R. Hurst, former secretary of the Y. M. C. A. presided as toastmaster, and was at his best. As usual he had a fine equipment of new stories that kept the crowd in an uproar and introduced the crowd in a witty manner. He was introduced to the men by Mr. C. A. Slayton.

The first number was a delightful piano solo by Mr. McAlpine, which was so heartily appreciated that he was compelled to respond to an encore.

Dr. L. G. North was detained by professional duties, and his pastor Rev. W. B. Hartzog gracefully responded to the toast "The Hardshells." He denied all connection with said hardshells and told several excellent stories to illustrate his point.

The second musical number, "What no! Ye Grey Beard Mariners," was sung by the quartette, Messrs. Slayton, Slayter, Ellis and Dickinson with their usual excellence, and they too were encored.

John Wirt Dunning spoke on "what is a man," taking that the inscription on the tomb of "Gen Chinese Gordon," who at all times and everywhere, gave his strength to the weak, his substance to the poor; his sympathy to the suffering and his heart to God." He introduced the talk with several stories and closed by reading Robert F. Coyles famous poem written at the first brotherhood convention, "God's Call for Men."

Frederick B. Wood was at his best in the toast "The Flags." He spoke first of the relation of north and south, and the part the flag played in it. The origin of flags, he said was in the standard the ancient soldier carried. The idea of individual standard was transferred to the nation. He then drew a unique figure to account for the origin of the stars and stripes. The field of white to indicate the pure ideals of the republic; the stripes of blood-red by which they are to be won; the blue to indicate the heavenward look of the nation and the stars the emblems of our eternal hope in God. The toast was greeted with very enthusiastic applause.

In introducing Dr. A. F. Bruske of Alma college, Mr. Hurst spoke of the Doctor's great and useful life and the love in which he was held by all students. Dr. Bruske spoke on "Our Country Rich in Memory" and his address was a masterful effort. He based his thought upon America's three sacred shrines of liberty, Plymouth Rock, Mount Vernon and the tomb of Lincoln in Springfield. He told the story of visits to these and the patriotic memories that clustered around them. He urged every American to visit them for their inspiration and patriotic interest.

Dr. Bruske when a mere lad was a soldier in the union armies, and was one of the fortunate ones, who escorted the body of Lincoln to its last resting place, after his unfortunate death.

All were inspired by this eloquent and patriotic address and Dr. Bruske was heartily cheered as he sat down.

The duet by Mr. Ellis and Mr. Slater from "Faust" was excellently rendered, and the meeting closed with a prayer by Rev D. S. Shaw.

All the men present declared the banquet to be the most successful in the history of the class and the whole was hugely enjoyed by everyone.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

WIT AND WISDOM

The Wit and Wisdom Club met Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. F. Rosecrans in their pleasant home that is so well adapted to meetings of this kind. Three very fine papers were given, among which was one by Dr. Hartzog on Mahommed. As he had just finished an address on Geo. Washington at the meeting of the G. A. R. we wondered if he would get the two diverse characters mixed up. A musical program was given which was thoroughly enjoyed. Refreshments of Maple Monssl and wafers were served. A hatchet hunt was then indulged in and Mrs. J. J. Orr receive 1st. prize for finding the greatest number and Lillis Howard the 2nd. prize. Mr. F. Hurst who was present gave a very fine talk on Alma College and work. Mr. and Mrs. Hurst of Alma and Miss Ella Primrose of London Ohio were the out of town guests.

SOCIAL PARTY.

46 couples participated in the married people's dance Tuesday night. Mame Kaiser, C. Witherell and W. L. Coller furnished the music. Of course they had a good time, they knew how to put in a good evening. A luncheon was served.

On Monday evening, about thirty young people met at Albert Gamble's to help him and Ned Wood celebrate their birthdays. The guests were attired in overalls and big aprons, and certainly they left all formality at home. Dancing and cards were the diversion and a big supper was served by Mr. Gambles sister, Mrs. Smith. Snap shots of the gay company were taken by Lester Coller after which the guests wished the host and Mr. Wood a lot more such pleasant celebrations.

A sample of Foley's Kidney Pills that I tried, so benefitted me that I bought more. I continued to take them until now I can safely testify they have made me a sound and well man." Best Stomach Remedy Free

It is an old saying that if the stomach is sound the whole body is safe, because so much depends upon the proper working of the stomach. Many persons find themselves with a disorder of the stomach which produces dyspepsia or a peculiar state of biliousness.

If you suffer from both stomach trouble and constipation you are on the way to a very serious disease. From just such conditions come appendicitis, rheumatism, skin diseases and similar disorders, because the waste matter that should have been dispelled from the system through the bowels has found its way into the blood and vitiated it. What is needed at this point is not simply a violent cathartic tablet or salt, which usually does more harm than good, but a gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which people have been using for these ailments for nearly a quarter of a century. It cured J. C. Lanham, of Warrensburg, Mo., of stomach trouble of long standing, also William Voll, of 903 Ellison St., Louisville, Ky., who had the trouble for fifteen years.

However, if you have stomach trouble you want to know from personal experience what Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do for you. If so, send your name to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you. You are urged to send for the free bottle, as the results from it will be the best recommendation of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Then you will do as over two million people did last year—go to your druggist and buy a regular bottle at 50 cents or $1, according to the size you prefer. We could mention hundreds and hundreds of families who are never without it. You can never tell when some member of the family will need a laxative, and then no time should be lost taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 509 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

A SAFEGUARD TO CHILDREN

"Our two children of six and eight years have been since infancy subject to colds and croup. About three years ago I started to use Foley's Honey and Tar, and it has never failed to prevent and cure these troubles. It is the only medicine I can get the children to take without a row." The above from W. C. Ornstein, Green Bay, Wis., duplicates the experience of thousands of other users of Foley's Honey and Tar. Sold by all druggists.

A happy family is but an earlier heaven.

Took All His Money

Often all a man earns goes to doctors or for medicines, to cure a Stomach, Liver or Kidney trouble that Dr. King's New Life Pills would quickly cure at slight cost. Best for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Billiousness, Constipation, Jaundice, Malaria and Debility. 25c at C. A. Wright & Son.

It invigorates all vital organs, purifies the blood, aids digestion, creates appetite. To strengthen and build up pale, thin, weak children or rundown people it has no equal. Best for female complaints. Only 50c at C. A. Wright & Son.

The best way to manage a wife is to keep yourself always her lover.

Saved From Awful Peril

"I never felt so near my grave," writes Dewis Chamblin, of Manchester, Ohio, R. R. No. 3, "as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 115 pounds in spite of many remedies and the best doctors. And that I am alive today is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 160 pounds and can work hard. It also cured my four children of croup." Infallible for Coughs and Colds, it is the most certain remedy for LaGrippe Asthma, desperate lung trouble and all bronchial affections, 50c and $1.00. A trial bottle free. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son.

If your wife is the best woman in the world, tell her so; it will keep her young and lengthen her life.

CAN'T BE SEPARATED

Some Tecumseh People Have Learned How to Get Rid of Both.

Backache and kidney ache are twin brothers.

You can't separate them.

And you can't get rid of the backache until you cure the kidney ache.

If the kidneys are well and strong, the rest of the system is pretty sure to be in vigorous health.

Doan's Kidney Pills make strong, healthy kidneys.

William W. Shurtz, Kilbuck street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times for ten years and I have received such great benefit that I gladly endorse them. Whenever I feel that my kidneys are not doing their work as they should I get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store and a short use brings me relief." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Tecumseh Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1—comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or thick, red, illsmelling urine, full of sediment and irregular passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2—comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Tecumseh proof:

Elias C. Brisbin, N. Democrat St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I began to suffer from kidney trouble twenty years ago and all my efforts for relief were unsuccessful. I had severe backaches and the kidney secretions were highly colored and highly irregular in passage. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and they promptly relieved me. I have since kept this remedy in the house and, whenever I have taken it, good results have followed." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. The Victorious One.

An Indianapolis business man was marooned on election night in 1904 in an Illinois village, says the Saturday Evening Post. Naturally he was interested in the election. He wanted to find out whether Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Parker had won. He began investigating and discovered that the telephone girl quit at 6 o'clock and that the telegraph agent at the station knocked off work after the evening train went through, which was rarely later than 6 p. m.

At 8 o'clock the landlord shut up the hotel, telling his guest to take the room at the head of the stairs when he was ready to go to bed. No news was to be had, and the business man went to bed, that being all he could do.

Next morning he was awakened by the heavy tread of boots on the plank sidewalk. He threw up the window and asked the passerby, "Say, who was elected?"

"I was, by heck," replied the man proudly. "Third term for constable."

He "Dassent."

The selection of the right word to convey one's meaning is sometimes more important than the rules of grammar. So it appeared to the bridge policeman, who is an alert sociological student. An east side resident of foreign birth was taken before the magistrate in one of the police courts charged with a trivial offense.

"Tell him he must not do it again. He is discharged," the magistrate said to the policeman on the bridge.

"The judge says you dassent do it. Understand?" almost shouted the policeman to the prisoner.

"Hold on, officer; I didn't dare him to break the law again. I said 'must not.'"

"That's all right, your honor. He understands what I said better'n he would what you said," explained the policeman. And the prisoner seemed to think so too.—New York Sun.

Riding Away With the Bride.

In many of the border counties of England the quaint old bridal customs of hundreds of years ago are still in vogue. The parents carefully abstain from appearing at the marriage ceremony, clinging to the idea that the bridegroom still rides away on a foaming steed with his bride behind him as in the good old days. The brides prefer the custom to the modern method of being given away at the altar in the orthodox fashion.

Wanted the Proof.

"You look sweet enough to kiss," says the impressed man.

"So many gentlemen tell me that," coyly answers the fair girl.

"Ah! That should make you happy."

"But they merely say that," she replies. "They merely tell me the facts in the case and never prove their statements."

FRENCH DETECTIVES.

They Are Trained For Their Duties in a Regular Police School.

In Paris aspirants for positions in the detective force are taught in a regular school where day after day they are put through various exercises until they become proficient and receive appointments or show that they have not the detective instinct in them.

The students first are trained in the use of their eyes and their hands. One of the lessons consists in placing the pupil in a brilliantly lighted room full of furniture and ornaments. Then he is taken to another room and required to make a sketch of the room he just has left, indicating the position of all the objects in it. He is allowed to look at a face for a minute and then required to describe the color of the hair, the eyes, the general form, etc. He afterward is required to pick out a photograph of the face from among several hundred others.

In educating the hand the student is placed in a dark room in which are many curious and unusual objects. These he feels over and then writes a description of them. He must remember even the slightest details. One test is to set him handle gems in the dark and then tell what they are, whether diamonds, rubies or what not. This is of course, an exercise for the more advanced pupils.

CHINESE PRINTING.

The Compositors Are Staid and Dignified and Never Rush.

A font of type in the Chinese language requires 11,000 spaces, and in the large and spacious rack each word instead of each letter, as in English, has a place by itself. There is also a peculiar grouping or classification of symbols into groups to further facilitate the mental labors of the typesetters. Thus in the immediate vicinity of the symbol for fish would be found the symbols of scales, net, fins, tail, gills. This simplifies the labor, which in any event must be so strenuous that it is evident that the compositor's end of the Chinese newspaper should, if perfect justice ruled, be the highest paid.

The compositor is a staid and dignified individual, and as he slowly walks from symbol to symbol, picking up those which he requires with provoking calmness, the American compositor might well wonder when the work would be completed, and to set up the type required for a small four page daily paper the constant labors of eight or nine skilled Chinamen are required for twelve or thirteen hours, the entire work in every department being the antipodes of the rush and whirl and marvelous celerity of the modern American publication.

He Obeyed Orders.

Old world domestics make the best possible servants because they work like machines, never forgetting an order and doing exactly as they are told, without presuming to think for themselves. But once in awhile this literal adherence to duty produces some awkward results. An American woman living in India, with native servants, once told her butler to see that there was always a napkin at the bottom of the fruit dish, cake basket, etc., when these were brought to the table. The napkin was thereafter always seen in its place. But one day a tureen of vegetable soup was served, and the hostess began to wield the long, old fashioned silver ladle about in it. Something very like a fringed rag made its appearance in the first plateful. The butler was summoned to remove the dish. "It cannot be that the mem sahib found no napkin at the bottom," he hazarded, much distressed because of this unexplained disapproval, "for I myself placed there the largest one I could find."

Queer Goldfish.

Beautiful and most interesting of all goldfish is a native of Japan, and it is noted for the beauty of its tail and the abnormal length of its fins. The tail resembles a delicate veil, and the fins are developed to such an extent that it is impossible for the fish to make rapid progress in the water. It is therefore solely on account of its beauty that it is prized and because in this respect it differs widely from other varieties of goldfish, such as the "telescope fish," the eyes of which bulge out of the head in most unsightly fashion; the "celestial eyed fish," which is also uncomely because its eyes are bullet shaped and are ever turned skyward, and the "egg fish," which is so called because its body is somewhat amorphous, but resembles an egg more than anything else.

His Impartiality.

Lord Lansdowne once congratulated Lord Crewe on an eloquent speech in the house of lords. "I have followed it," he said, "with earnest attention, not only on account of the importance of the subject, but also on account of the noble lord's judicial attitude. I admired his earnestness and his eloquence, but what impressed me most was his impartiality." A pause. "Yes, until the last minute I did not know on which side of the fence his lordship was coming down."

Thoroughly Broken.

"Subster is a perfect husband."

"I never heard he was so wonderful."

"Well, every time he sees a mail box he feels in his pockets."—Buffalo Express.

Hypocrites.

"I despise a hypocrite," says Boggs.

"So do I," says Clogge. "Now, take Knoggs, for example. He's the biggest hypocrite on earth. I despise that man."

"But you appear to be his best friend."

"Oh, yes. I try to appear friendly toward him. It pays better in the end."

The Color of Water.

The waters of the seas, lakes, rivers and streams in general are very often colored. For instance, the water of the Mediterranean sea is not colorless, but green-blue; also there is a brilliant red river in South America. The St. Lawrence, in Canada, is pale green and the Ottawa golden brown. Where these two rivers meet quite frequently whole broad patches remain unmixed. Here is a gold patch and there a green one. Otherwise than this water reflects the colors of its surroundings, and a so called "Emerald pool" in the White mountains is green because the birches on its borders in early summer are brilliant green. The Blue grotto, in Capri, Italy, shows a remarkably rich color, near to green-blue, because all the light received in that grotto comes through the water at its entrance, and, as has been said, the Mediterranean is green-blue. The water of the geysers in the Yellowstone park are also colored by natural mineral dyes. You can dye your own glass of water by a piece of the bloodroot plant. Try it. That will be a vegetable dye.—St. Nicholas.

Paderewski's Distinction.

There was a day when Paderewski's English was not fluent. One evening before a choice company in his elegant apartments in New York he was showing a few highly tattered callers how to do this, that and t'other on the keys of his grand piano, explaining in bad English as he went. Of course the man was present who is ever ready to supply a word when a speaker hesitates. The famous artist, landing with both hands as if he had just dropped from the ceiling, exclaimed, "Harmony!" All applauded the perfect concord. He shot down again like a tripbammer and would have exclaimed again, but the word refused to come. "What you call—er—er"— "Discord," put in the supplier of words. Paderewski's hair stood straight out, and his face was white and red with anger. Jumping up from the stool, he sputtered: "Deescort! No! With me a deescort iss eempossible!" He would not be persuaded to touch the instrument again that night. The unintentional insult struck deep.

No Sense of Humor.

"Fog Eye" Smith of northwest Wyoming bore an appalling facade. His style of beauty was a blight. Depending upon his horrific exterior, he was in the habit of trying to awe newcomers. On one occasion, affecting some displeasure at the manner in which a pallid stranger watered his liquor, Mr. Smith announced, frowning, that unless he detected immediate amendment he would send the neophyte home in a market basket. "Which I'll sure tear you up a whole lot," said Fog Eye. Half an hour later Mr. Fog Eye was found groping about on the floor under the poker table hunting for his glass eye and muttering to himself. The stranger asked with some evidence of impatience what new line of sentiments Mr. Smith was now harboring. That injured resident, glaring malevolently from beneath the furniture, replied, "Which I sure do hate a man with no sense of humor."—Argonaut.

A "Hoodoo" Buddha.

Lady Dorothy Nevill in her "Reminiscences" records an example of the so called "malevolent influence" of an inanimate object upon the fortunes of its possessors similar to that said to have been exerted by the Hope diamond, now sunk beneath the waves. From the day a miniature Buddha from Burma of charming workmanship entered her house everything went amiss. Its installation in the drawing room "was followed by a perfect avalanche of catastrophes." Within a week a son failed in business. Household pets came to tragic ends. A favorite pony was suddenly paralyzed, "and this on the very eve of an election in which it was to assist by conveying Conservative voters to the poll," from which it is inferred that the Buddha was not favorable to the Tory party. A few days later a neighboring chimney crashed down upon a wing of Lady Dorothy's house, doing much damage. Shortly afterward the Buddha was sent on loan to the Indian museum, where, after some minor disturbances, it settled quietly down and has since remained.

Postponed Her Bath.

Miss Flora Shaw as correspondent of the London Times was once traveling through Africa in a bullock wagon. The sun was blazing; the bullocks were slow; the dust was indescribable. She was making for a frontier town, where she anticipated the comforts of a bath. At the entrance to the place Miss Shaw, dead beat, dusty and irritable, found herself confronted with the ordeal of a public reception. The officials read her a welcome. She was as civil as she could be. Then she bolted for the hotel. She gave but one order—"Hot water, quick!"

She sat on the edge of the bed and waited. Some minutes passed. At last a black servant entered with a tin vessel, in which there was something steaming. Seizing it, Miss Shaw poured out a milky, odoriferous liquid. She turned to the servant for an explanation.

The hotel was very short of water. As a distinguished guest a point had been stretched for her. They had sent her the water in which the fish had just been boiled!

An Anecdote of General Jackson.

General Jackson while on one of his journeys to Tennessee about the time of the nullification excitement arrived at a Virginian village in a very impatient state of mind, both with public affairs and with the state of the roads. The president was entertained as a guest at the house of a lady in the village, and, although he tried to be polite, the state of vexation which he was in affected him visibly.

His hostess at the supper table was much alarmed to see the general swallowing with great rapidity a cup of almost boiling hot tea.

"Wait—wait, general!" exclaimed the lady. "Let me give you some cold water."

"No, thank you, ma'am," said the general, continuing to drink.

"But I don't see how you can drink that boiling hot tea without scalding yourself."

"No wonder you can't, ma'am," said Jackson. "I am scalding myself."

"But, sir, why do you"—

"Good gracious, ma'am!" exclaimed the general. "Don't you see that I want to scald myself?"

The lady refrained from making any further suggestions as to her distinguished guest's comfort.

The Final Transaction.

"Father," said little Rollo, "what is the ultimate consumer?"

"He is the last person, my son, that an article reaches in its commercial existence."

"I know what you mean. He's a man who goes into a hotel and orders chicken hash."—Washington Star.

AN INNOCENT VICTIM.

The Original of Squeers Died of a Broken Heart.

The grossest injury which Dickens ever inflicted on a fellow being was his too accurate portrait of an innocent man in his Squeers. That Yorkshire schoolmasters were, as a rule, cruel and wicked enough it is true, but the particular schoolmaster who was recognized and who recognized himself as the original Squeers seems to have been an exception to the rule.

It will be remembered that Dickens and his illustrator traveled together to the north of England for the purpose of collecting material for "Nickleby" and especially for the Dotheboys esplsode. At Great Bridge they visited a boarding school known as Bowes academy. The master, William Shaw, received the strangers with some hauteur and did not as much as withdraw his eyes from the operation of penmaking during the interview.

Phiz sketched him in the act; Dickens described the act. The personal peculiarities of William Shaw were recognized in Squeers. Shaw became a butt of popular ridicule, lost his pupils and finally died of a broken heart. Yet there is abundant evidence to prove that he was a really excellent and kind hearted man, who was made to suffer for the misdeeds of his neighbors.—Exchange.

BOTH WANTED TO KNOW.

But the Beautiful Daughter Got the Better of the Contest.

"Maria," said the choleric father of a beautiful daughter, "who was that young fool who called on you last night and stayed until midnight? I want to know at once."

"You shall know in due time," said Maria, "but first I want to know something. Was he a young fool simply because he called on me?"

"What"—

"Or was he a young fool because he thought me attractive enough to talk to until midnight?"

"Why"—

"I suppose you think that any young man who comes to this house at all is a young fool, but, why?"

"Now, see here"—

"Is it because there are so many girls who have sensible fathers that any young man who calls on the daughter of an ill natured old curmudgeon is a young fool?"

"For goodness' sake"—

"But I suppose—(sob)—I ought to—(gurgle)—be grateful—(sob)—because you didn't call him a fool to his face for coming to see me. I know you despise me (boo-hoo-hoo), but"—

But Maria was talking to space. The choleric father had fled to the cyclone cellar.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Thirteener.

A nervous little man stepped briskly into a Euclid avenue jewelry store the other morning with a medium sized clock under his wing, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. He placed the chronometer on the counter, turned the hands around to about one minute of 12 o'clock and told the expert behind the counter to listen. "It keeps perfect time," the customer said, "but I want to find out if you notice anything wrong with the way it strikes." The jeweler listened. "There's nothing wrong," he replied, with a grin, after the clock had struck, "except that she strikes thirteen instead of twelve. That can easily be remedied." The customer looked as relieved as if he'd just awakened from a bad dream. "That's just what I've always thought ever since we've had the clock," he burst forth. "I've always felt sure it struck thirteen. But no one else in the family ever spoke of it, and I was afraid to say anything about it for fear there was something wrong with my own works. Well, it's worth the price of having the thing repaired just to find out I was right."

The Tears In Books.

It is not hard to understand why, when a book makes you laugh, you want to read it, and to read it over and over again. But it is rather puzzling to find that one also enjoys reading and rereading books that make one want to cry. What can there be in us that likes to be made to feel unhappy? In real life we don't try to do things that will make us suffer—not at all. But there are books that you cannot think of once you have read them without tears coming to your eyes, and yet you will find that you love those books perhaps more than any others.

To feel deeply is one of the best things in life, and there maybe lies the explanation of why we do love sad stories. They make us unhappy in a way, but they do not leave behind any bitterness or sense of personal loss. And they usually have a special beauty of their own.—St. Nicholas.

He Got It.

Eva—As we strolled along he wagered a box of chocolates that I couldn't say the word "kiss." Belinda—And did you try? Eva—Yes, but he took the word from my very lips.

A Big Shadow.

We are told that the "smallest hair throws a shadow." And so it does. It throws a shadow over your appetite when you find it in your food.—Exchange.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

A Kentucky Statesman.

Representative Ollie M. James of Kentucky, one of the minority members of the joint committee to investigate the Ballinger-Pinchot affair, is one of the best known of the younger statesmen on the Democratic side of the house. A native of the Blue Grass State and thirty-nine years old, Mr. James is serving his fourth term as a national lawmaker. He is a typical son of the state that claims him. More than six feet high and built on massive lines, he has the voice and presence for oratory, and his looks do not belie him. A couple of years ago William J. Bryan, it is alleged, predicted that Mr. James would be the leader of the Democratic party inside of a decade. Many stories have been told of the Kentucky statesman, who is "Big Ollie" to his intimates and plain "Ollie" to every one else. There are no frills about him, no affectation, and he is easy to approach.

OLLIE M. JAMES.

Not so long ago Mr. James was driving through a hilly section of Kentucky on a pleasure jaunt and, happening to notice a well beside a farmhouse, pulled up and asked the farmer if he could give him a drink.

"No, sah. As much as I would like to 'commodate you, sah, I can't do a thing for you. But if you'll pull in at Jones', 'bout foh miles ahead, you can get something," said the farmer.

"But I thought I noticed a fine well here on your place?" said the big congressman.

"Why, I didn't know you wanted water. I thought you wanted a drink," said the farmer, who thereupon invited Marse James in to help himself from the ironbound bucket.

A Sociable Senator.

Uncle Ike Stephenson of Wisconsin is a great hand to "go visitin'" around the senate. He does not like to stay in his seat any more of the time than need be. Often when the session is in progress he goes over to one of his neighbor senators and whispers in his ear burning thoughts about what happened back in 1860.

Some of the statesmen like it, and others are disposed to have urgent business when Senator Stephenson heaves in sight.

The Word "Mile."

The word "mile" is derived from the Latin "mille," a thousand. A thousand paces of a marching soldier made the old Roman mile.

The Stormy Petrel.

A bird of immense wing power is the tiny stormy petrel, the smallest webfooted bird known. It belongs to every sea, and, although so seeming frail, it breasts the utmost fury of the storm, skimming with incredible velocity the trough of the waves and gliding rapidly over their snowy crests. Petrels have been observed 2,000 miles from nearest land.

A Pauper Prince.

In a guidebook of Venice, compiled for strangers, is this notice: "When visiting this palace strangers should show themselves especially generous in their tips, as the prince who occupies this palace has no other means of support than to share in the money given to his domestics."

Village Government and Societies 40 Years Ago

Thinking it would be of interest to some of our subscribers more especially the older ones. We give below a few items that we have culled from various sources. At that time the following were the village officers:

President—Horace Brewer.

Trustees—John J. Adams, Abraham Hanford, Horatio Keyser, Jeremiah Root, Jacob Totten, Giles Turner.

Recorder—Charles Burridge.

Treasurer—Thomas Cummins.

Marshall—John F. Hall.

Assessors—Salmon Haight and Hiram Raymond.

Board of Education—E. B. Wood, P. Bills, A. D. Hall, H. Brewer, M. A. Patterson, David McNair.

Moderator—M. A. Patterson.

Director—D. McNair.

As we read the list we are impressed with the fact that time has wrought many changes, and of all those mentioned only two remain this side the Mystic river—Horatio Keyser, who is still seen upon our streets, and John F. Hall who is in one of the eastern states and made us a call about a year ago. The only secret societies we find any mention of are the Masonic Hall in Bidwell's block, No. 69, F. & A. M., G. T. Ketcham W. M. and Thomas Cummins, secretary. Tecumseh chapter, No. 42, R. A. M. P. J. VanVleet, H. P. and Thomas Cummins, secretary. Odd Fellows Hall, over Blood & Brewers. Tecumseh Lodge No. 14, I. O. O. F., S. C. Stacy, N. G., P. J. Farley, V. G. E. C. Norris, Sec'y, Albert Hayden, H. P.

The church directory was well filled

Baptist church—Rev. J. Moxom, Pastor.

Methodist—Rev, L. H. Dean.

Presbyterian—Rev. W. J. Stontenburg.

Episcopal church and Friends church were without a pastor at that time. These churches all held services in those now occupied by the various societies except the Friends. They then had a little church on the Adrian road They held their meetings then in the good old Quaker way each speaking as the spirit led, and one of their silent meetings was a heavenly benediction.

In comparing the then, and now, we wonder what the years have in store for Tecumseh. We hope that the tide of improvement will sweep along and Tecumseh be the pride of her people.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

SURPRIZE PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Gove were very happily surprized last Friday night, when three sleigh loads of their neighbors and friends dropped in upon them. They brought their oyster supper with them and an abundance of it. The only regret was that so many were on the sick list and unable to attend.

MONDAY CLUB

The Monday Club held an open meeting Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert Moore. The reading of a story, "Frithof's Saga" by Mrs. B. J. Garinghouse, interspersed by readings from poems connected with the story by Mrs. G. N. Stacy, came first, followed by a musical program consisting of solo's by—Mrs. McAlpine "Good-night," Mrs. Moore—Norwegian Echo Song, Mrs. Ruthruff "The Day is Done," Bonnie Brown—Snowflakes, Alice Bradley—Instrumental music. Hiawatha was in attendance at the door to welcome the guests. A lunch was served under the supervision of Mrs. Dolph Heesen, consisting of chicken salad, brown and white bread, sandwiches, olives, coffee and maccaroons. There was a fine attendance and the afternoon was passed in a very pleasant manner. The house was beautifully decorated with pictures of Longfellow and his home and others illustrating his poems.

Myron Conklin was the victim of a birthday Monday and as a result a fine dinner was served to the Conklin family. A social visit made the time pass pleasantly.

MERRY-GO-ROUND.

The Merry-go-round met at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. John Combs Monday evening. Eight tables of progressive pedro were played, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mead winning the two first prizes. Dainty refreshments were served and a merry time was enjoyed by all.

The Roast-beef dinner given by the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. on Monday evening was quite well patronized considering the disagreeable state of the weather and the other social events of the evening. About 100 partook of their fine spread. We bespeak for them brighter skies and a full crowd for their next venture.

Mrs. Chas. Bidwell and Mrs. Will Eccles entertain at the Tecumseh Club to-night. A roast pig dinner will be served.

JOLLY 16

A very pleasant evening was that spent by the jolly 16, at the home of Mrs. Lavern Hopper on Thursday evening. Cards were the leading amusement. Mrs. O. G. Hunt carried off the first prize, Edna Belding second. Their next meeting will be with Mrs. Ziehr on Thursday evening of this week.

RUBBER SOCIAL.

The Royal Neighbors will give a rubber social at Woodman's Hall Thursday March 3rd 7:30 p. m. All Woodman and their families, Royal Neighbors and their families are cordially invited. Admission—a pair of old rubbers.

Chief Aerie No. 5 63 held their meeting Monday night Initiation of candidates followed by a musical program, banquet and speeches for the good of the order. A very pleasant time was enjoyed by all.

Mr. Martin Frayer and wife entertained the Kilbuck pedro club last Friday evening it being their 18 wedding anniversery. Five tables of progressive pedro were played. At the end of the tenth game seven were tied for the first prize. Fred O'Dell won the highest cut, winning first prize, Mrs. James Updyke the consolation. The members of the club presented Mr. and Mrs. Frayer with some silver spoons and some china pieces, after which the club was served with a dainty three course supper. The company left for home in the wee small hours of the morning wishing their hosts many more such anniversaries.

Let the Baking Board Become your BOARD of EDUCATION

The principle of all baking powder is simply this: Certain elements are combined which, when they come in contact with moisture and heat, undergo a chemical change or reaction.

This reaction causes a gas which makes the baking puff up or rise.

Now the very small part of the baking powder which remains in the food is entirely different from the original substance. And it is this remaining part that you eat, and not the original contents of the can.

For instance: In a Cream of Tartar Baking Powder—the Trust Brand—you do not eat Cream of Tartar in the baking, because the chemical reaction turns it into Rochelle Salts—an injurious drug.

So what concerns you most is what you really eat and not what you get in the can.

In Calumet Baking Powder the elements are such that the chemical change leaves no impurities in the food—it is chemically correct. Having leavened with it contains no Tartaric Acid, Rochelle Salts, Alum, Lime or Ammonia.

Then you should use Calumet Baking Powder—and no other. It is not only more healthful but it is more reliable. Your baking will be lighter, sweeter and more delicious.

It does not cost as much as the Trust brands and is also more economical in use. It is a little higher in price than the cheap brands, but it is very much higher in quality.

Guaranteed under every pure food law—both State and National. Ask your Grocer—and insist on

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

CHILDREN

In disorders and diseases of children drugs seldom do good and often do harm.

Careful feeding and bathing are the babies' remedies.

Scott's Emulsion

is the food-medicine that not only nourishes them most, but also regulates their digestion. It is a wonderful tonic for children of all ages. They rapidly gain weight and health on small doses.

CORN KING SPREADERS.

Have the largest sale of any spreader. If you will look them over, you will see why. A few points:

Frame and Axle are heavier and better supported.

Return bottom decreases draft, friction, weight and end freezing and will reverse at the will of the operater.

Narrow front truck will not whip the team as a wide truck spreader, rake or drill.

Would you buy a wagon without a reach? No, why then a spreader? Just compare.

Car load of 1910 patern just received, come in.

An Indigestion Remedy Free

Many people who are otherwise healthy suffer from indigestion, or dyspepsia. When you consider that the stomach and allied digestive organs are the most important organs of the body, it would seem that a disorder there is to be taken very seriously.

Dyspeptics cannot eat the things they like; food sours in the stomach; then chronic constipation begins, or, as is often the case, you have been constipated all along, and the stools are forced and irregular.

But there is no use letting indigestion go until it becomes chronic and undermines your health. It is good advice to suggest to you that you go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the wonderful cure for stomach, liver and bowel troubles. That is what C. Fowler, of Carson City, Mich., did and he is well today. Others who did the same and are cured are Ida A. Fortune, of Grand Junction, Tenn., B. F. Thompson, of Shenandoah, Ia., who actually considers that it saved his life. You can obtain a 50-cent or $1 bottle of the druggist, and, taken according to directions, it will probably be all you need. It is a liquid, acts gently, never gripes, and besides the laxative effect, contains exceptional tonic properties which tone the stomach, and that is what is especially needed in indigestion.

All sufferers from indigestion who have never used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can obtain a free test bottle by writing the doctor. It will be sent direct to your home without any charge. In this way thousands have proven to their own satisfaction Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the very remedy they needed to cure indigestion. When once you use this grand remedy you will throw violent cathartics, tablets, salts, etc., away.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 100 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

Before I used Foley's Kidney Pills I was subjected to severe backache and pains in my kidneys with suppression and oftentimes a cloudy voiding. While upon arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and once more feel like my own self. All this I owe solely to Foley's Kidney Pills and always recommend them to my fellow sufferers. Avoid Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation; they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money, but it's not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a very small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as it does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acrid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and often unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same time moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

THE SPORTING WORLD

Rector Really Out For Good.

Recently reports were sent out that Jim Rector, the former sensational sprinter of the University of Virginia, who had announced his retirement from the game early last year, would once more don the spike shoe and try to show his heels to his rivals. Such is not the case, however, for Rector has informed the athletic world that he is through with the game forever and will in the future practice law in Rector was picked to win the hundred yard event, but was beaten a few inches by Reggie Walker, the South African speed marvel.

Training to Make Great Swim.

William J. Glover, the Baltimore distance swimmer, has begun training in Baltimore for a swim from Charlestown bridge to Boston light, in Boston harbor, next summer. Glover's training at present consists of gymnasium work. Later he will take up running to strengthen his wind, and just as soon as the weather permits he will do considerable long distance swimming.

As a distance swimmer Glover bears a good reputation. On July 17, 1905, he swam from Fiat rock to Lewiston in the lower rapids of Niagara river, a distance of nearly five miles. It was a feat never before accomplished and extremely daring on account of its attendant danger. In 1901 Glover swam from Tolchester to River View park, which is located not far from Glover's home in Baltimore. The distance was about twenty-six miles.

Sonder Boat Races.

Yachtsmen the country over have become interested upon learning that a series of international sonder boat races will be held off Marblehead, Mass., next September between yachts of that type representing Spain and America. The Eastern Yacht club committee some time ago sent a formal invitation to the San Sebastian Royal Yacht club, of which King Alfonso is the head, asking that three Spanish boats be sent to this country in 1910 to race against three American yachts for suitable trophies. An acceptance was received within a day or two, and the committee of the Boston Yacht club will proceed at once to make arrangements for the races with a committee of the Spanish Yacht club.

Motorboat Carnival.

The American power boat races, which are held annually on the St. Lawrence river, Canada, promise to be more interesting this year than at any time since the inauguration of the event. Challenges have been received from the Chippewa Bay Yacht club and the New York club. It is expected that the races this year will bring together some of the fastest craft ever in competition. As yet no date has been set for the event.

Cornell's New Athletic Field.

To equip the field as originally planned will cost $350,000.

Browning lent Lord Coleridge one of his works to read, and afterward, meeting the poet, the lord chief justice said to him: "What I could understand I heartily admired, and parts ought to be immortal. Browning replied, "If a reader of your caliber understands 10 per cent of what I write I think I ought to be content."

Keeping Tally With Sticks.

Many correspondents have dug into their memories for the survival of the notched stick as tally, which the exchequer, has now renounced. "While staying with some friends not far from Rouen," writes one, "I noticed that the baker brought with him a number of sticks, tied together at one end, one for each customer. The customer had one also, and, producing the stick, the baker put it with its corresponding stick and notched it." So the accounts were kept. They are kept in a similar way by the tallymen in the Kentish hop gardens.—London Chronicle.

A Monarch of Many Beds.

One of the Emperor Menelik's weaknesses is the matter of beds. In his sleeping palace there are a number of rooms, and each possesses a different bedstead, either of wood or iron, built high or low. It is the emperor's practice to sleep in one or the other, just as the fancy takes him. Since his last serious illness he has considerably changed his mode of living. He was accustomed to take violent exercise, but he has renounced this for a sedentary life.

THE AMERICAN HEN.

A Wall Street Valuation of the Great Egg Producer.

It is claimed that the average production of a hen is 200 eggs per annum, but is safe to assume that the actual is much below this figure. Adopting the very conservative figure of 120 eggs per hen per annum, we find on the above basis of production there are 150,000,000 laying hens in the United States responsible for the production of 18,000,000,000 eggs.

At the farm price of 20 cents per dozen the total income derived from each hen annually would amount to $2. Allowing 40 cents for maintenance and 10 cents for depreciation, which latter would wipe out the market value of the hen in four years, irrespective of salvage when the period of production is over, the net profit per hen per annum amounts to $1.50.

This profit, according to Wall street standards, capitalized on a 5 per cent income basis, would place a nominal value of $30 on each hen. For the 150,000,000 hens this would amount to the enormous total of $4,500,000,000.

That the American hen can return a yield of 5 per cent per annum on a capitalization of $4,500,000,000 appears nothing short of remarkable, but such is the case. The entire outstanding capital obligations of the railroads of the United States in 1907 were less than four times this amount, or $16,082,146,033, while the total paid out in interest and dividends represented but 4.05 per cent of this amount.—Wall Street Journal.

Daniel Webster's Carriage.

Captain Albert Hartge of Shadyside, Anne Arundel county, owns a carriage which was once the property of Daniel Webster and which is still a highly serviceable vehicle. Captain Hartge has been using it for several years and says it is far more roomy and comfortable than those built nowadays. The carriage is a phaeton, built on high springs, being as good and strong now as the day it was built. It is constructed of white hickory, and the great lamps, dashboard, rails, handles, etc., are of solid copper, heavily silver plated. The old carriage was the favorite vehicle of Webster at his home near Marshfield, Mass., and was sold to a Marylander several years after his death at a sale in Boston. The purchaser brought it to Baltimore and stored it away in a stable, intending to ship it to his country place in Howard county. Before doing so he died, and the old carriage was again put up under the hammer. Captain A. S. Byus, an oyster packer of this city, happened to attend the sale and bought the old vehicle for a very small sum and later gave it to his friend Captain Hartge, who prises it highly.—Baltimore Sun.

Airships and Fogs.

The Germans are considering the problem of how aeronauts are to determine their location at night or in a fog. An ingenious engineer has proposed for the convenience of those traveling at night a very complete network of signal lights which will enable any aeronaut at some little distance above the earth's surface to determine his location with considerable precision. To such special signal lights naturally signals by bell or siren can be added to be used in case of fog. Dr. Bidlingmaier of the imperial observatory at Wilhelmshaven has, however, proposed a very simple adjunct for the equipment of the aeronaut which will enable him to locate his position with some measure of accuracy without the use of eye or ear as dependent upon terrestrial signals. The instrument in question is the so called "duplex compass," devised by Dr. Bidlingmaier and used by him lately during the explorations of the German antarctic expedition.

Zoological Puzzle.

Italian zoologists have a puzzle to solve, owing to the discovery on Mont Blanc of the body of a white bear, which has been taken to Aosta. It was thought at first that the bear must have died some 300 years ago and must have been preserved by the ice, since it has always been held that white bears vanished from the Alps three centuries ago. But it has since been demonstrated that death could have taken place only a few days previous to discovery. As this would seem to show that there are still white bears in the Alps, expeditions are now to be sent to test the theory.—Dundee Advertiser.

Washing the Capitol's Face.

The United States capitol receives its annual bath a short time before congress convenes, the toilet articles used consisting of about 2,600 feet of hose in the expert hands of one company of the fire department. Powerful streams of water at high pressure remove dust, spider webs, insects of all kinds, birds' nests and other foreign substances from the many crevices.

ONE MAN HOLDS UP ARBITRATION

Otherwise Peace Might Soon Follow In Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, March 3.—The directors of the Rapid Transit company have determined to smash the car men's union if they have to fight the whole city of Philadelphia and throw their company into the hands of the received in doing it. All pretense of conciliation has been thrown aside. On the other hand, the 124 unions that have pledged themselves to strike in sympathy with the car men next Saturday are massing their forces for a battle which will make or break union labor in this city. Union men that have been on the most friendly terms with their employers notified them last night that, alhough they were sorry, they would quit work when the strike gong sounds.

This is the situation after days of effort on the part of influential merchants and citizens' associations to bring about peace. Their failure is due to the remarkable implacability of one man, George H. Earle, president of the Real Estate Trust company and one of the city's three representatives on the board of directors of the street car company.

At present the directors are unanimous. Mr. Earle's influence has been nowhere more manifest than upon Mayor Reyburn. There has been a good deal of curiosity as to why Earle set himself so stubbornly against all propositions to bring the company and the men together. He does not believe that the results of arbitration could possibly be permanent. He believes that the company would have to make the same fight all over again with men who have no respect for agreements.

The hope of intervention seems so remote now that employers of labor are preparing to make the best of things when trouble comes to town on Saturday. Many plants expect to shut up absolutely, others expect they will be able on run on half time. It looks as if the theaters will be dark. Managers were notified by representatives of the Theater Mechanic' association that a walk out was coming. Of course, there are countless factories that are not at the mercy of unions, but even these expect desertions. The walking delegates of the unions have been busy proselyting all week. The union officials insist that their missionary work has been successful and that they have put thousands of former non-union men on their lists.

Just how many men will quit work on Saturday is all guess work. J. J. Murphy, president of the Central Labor union, boasts that he can crack the whip over 150,000 workmen.

WIDE SCOPE OF PHILANTHROPY

s Plan of Rockefeller In New Foundation Fund.

LIMITED ONLY TO MAN'S NEEDS

So Explains Starr J. Murphy, One of Incorporators—Proposed to Pursue Practically Same Plan as That Embraced In General Education Board. Latter Has Fund of $53,000,000.

New York, March 3.—The scope of the philanthropic activity to be pursued under the Rockefeller Foundation is to be limited only by the needs of mankind, according to a statement made by Starr J. Murphy, one of the incorporators named in the bill. Mr. Murphy, in explaining the aims and scope of Mr. Rockefeller's newest elemosynary vehicle, said that so general was to be its province in conducting philanthropic works of all kinds that he believed the only way to characterize the work purposed to be done by the Foundation was to say that it would be humanitarian.

"The details of the amount of endowment which Mr. Rockefeller will bestow upon the Foundation had not yet been worked out," Mr. Murphy said, "nor has the personnel of the entire board of directors, which may number twenty-five and at no time less than five, been determined

Like Educational Charter.

"The charter of the Rockefeller Foundation is almost word for word, identical with that of the General Education board, which Mr. Rockefeller established in 1903 and which Mr. Rockefeller caused to be incorporated in 1903," said Mr. Murphy, "and to which he has contributed almost $53,000,000. The only change in the wording is that necessary to broaden the scope of the Rockefeller Foundation over that of the General Education board.

"His experience with the General Education board has been so successful that Mr. Rockefeller now wants another board, to give the same flexibility and scope over subjects not covered in the limited field of the earlier organization. He has found it not altogether wise to tie up money meant to be devoted to philanthropic purposes in narrow channels. Hence his wish to have this board with general philanthropic powers to undertake anything which it might be deemed wise to do. The Rockefeller Foundation is not designed to meet any present or special situation."

ACCEPTED A BRIBE.

Brooklyn Police Magistrate Has Been Convicted.

New York, March 3.—A jury in the supreme court in Brooklyn Wednesday found Police Magistrate Henry J. Furlong guilty of accepting a bribe in his official capacity, and the defendant was locked up after a formal motion to set aside the verdict had been denied. Justice Kapper has announced that he would pass sentence on Friday. The maximum penalty is ten years' imprisonment or a fine of $5,000, or both.

Would Honor Roosevelt.

Chicago, March 3.—Chicago is without a Roosevelt street, and Alderman Otto J. Movak proposes to call on the city council to honor the return of the notable hunter by changing the name of State street to that of the former president. He says that he will introduce a resolution in the council at its next meeting, so that the city can take proper official action to show its appreciation of the return of Colonel Roosevelt.

Prominent Mason Dies.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 3.—Frank Dietrick of this city, one of the leading Masons of the United States and a prominent business man here, is dead, after a long illness. He was the illustrious potentate of Irem temple, Knights of the Mystic Shrine, of this city.

DIFFICULT TO GET TO THEM

Those Buried by Avalanche Are Far From Aid.

SIXTY PERSONS PERISHED

Two Trains Swept Into Canyon 200 Feet Deep—Twenty-three Bodies So Far Recovered—Relief Trains Encounter Obstacles—Most of Dead Were on Spokane Limited.

Seattle, March 3.—An impassable snow barrier of fifteen miles lines between the trains swept into Wellington canyon, on the Great Northern, and Scenic, the nearest relief point. Only the railroad men not killed at Wellington are as yet on the ground. Though some of the survivors have reached Scenic, which is at a 1,500 feet lower altitude than Wellington, none who have gone up that dangerous slope are known to have reached the scene of the disaster.

The avalanche was a mile long, and it started 2,000 feet above the little town of Wellington, the scene of the disaster.

Everett, Wash., March 3.—Sixty persons perished in the avalanche that swept down the Cascade mountains at Wellington and hurled two trains into a canyon 200 feet below, according to official reports. Superintendent O'Neill of the Great Northern road, in charge of the relief work, wired the information. Twenty-three bodies were recovered, and several persons were rescued alive, and the work is being pushed with feverish haste in the hope of saving many more. Two relief trains have left Everett for Wellington, 100 miles away, but have encountered many obstacles. One train carried physicians and nurses, while the other, the second to start, carried undertakers, wrecking outfits and laborers. The trains and a portion of the village were hurled from the narrow legde to the bottom of the canyon, 200 feet below.

Twenty-five of the victims are believed to have been passengers who were sleeping in the cars of the Spokane express, which had been stalled at Wellington since last Thursday. No passengers were carried by the other train—the Transcontinental Fast Mail.

At Portal of Cascade Tunnel.

Wellington, near where the slide occurred, is at the western portal of the Great Northern tunnel through the Cascade mountains. The town is in one of the wildest mountainous sections of Washington, being in the valley of Stevens pass, at the foot of Mt. Howard.

The two trains that were carried away by the great wave of ice and snow were the westbound Spokane Limited and the westbound Transcontinental Fast Mail. The mail carries no passengers.

Most of the dead and injured are believed to have been passengers on the Spokane express, forty of whom were on the train at the time of the disaster. Besides these, thirty workmen, who had been engaged in the battle against the drifts that has been holding the two trains imprisoned in the mountains since Feb. 24, were sleeping in the day coaches.

BILL IS KILLED.

No Statewide Local Option For Maryland.

Annapolis, March 3.—By a vote of 50 to 48, the house of delegates has killed the statewide local option bill and put an end to temperance legislation at this session. The measure came from committee without recommendation, four of the members favoring it and four opposing it. The ninth member refused to vote. When presented to the house the galleries were crowded. Among others occupying a seat on the floor was Superintendent Anderson of the Anti Saloon league.

Baltimore city voted almost solidly to kill, only one of the twenty-eight votes favoring the bill.

One Killed and Three Injured In Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 3.—One man was killed and three others injured, one perhaps fatally, when a street car on the Lafayette-Stocking line jumped the track and turned turtle last night. The motorman was unable to check the car at a curve on account of the icy condition of the rails. The dead:

GROVER C. BROWN, conductor. of the car.

The injured are David Zylstra, motorman, may die; Cornelius Statt, badly cut about the head; Miss Eva Studebaker, cut by flying glass.

Jailed For Abduction.

Kalamazoo, Mich., March 3.—William Schuster, thirty-two years old, was arrested on a charge of abduction and brought back from Ohio, after eloping with Margaret Whittenburg, fourteen years of age, of Sturgis. The two left Sturgis a week ago and went to Monroe, where they were married Feb. 23. The couple were located at Wauseon, O., through a letter received from the girl. She wrote to her parents that they were married and "not to blame Will," as she did all the swearing when the marriage license was secured. She gave her age as eighteen years.

College Gets $500,000.

Boston, Mass., March 3.—Tuft's college benefits to the extent of $500,000 under he will of John Everett Smith of Norwood, which has been allowed by Judge Flint in the Norfolk probate court.

PREACHER WAS MARRIED.

Villagers of Howells, N. Y., Learn Why He Acted So Queerly.

Middletown, N. Y., March 3.—The people of Howells, N. Y., were surprised on Tuesday, when the Rev. V. M. Patterson, pastor of the Congregational church, tendered his resignation and left the village. He assigned "purely personal matters" as the cause of his resignation. Mr. Patterson had been pastor of the church only four months and had not yet been ordained finally. The congregation was mystified at his action, but accepted his resignation.

Mr. Patterson is about thirty years old and had become popular in the village, despite the fact that he only spent his Sundays there. The rest of the week he spent in Brooklyn. The mysery concerning the resignation apparently cleared up later by this New York dispatch:

"The Rev. Victor M. Patterson up to two months ago was engaged to Miss Mabel Ronke, the daughter of H. E. Ronke, a salesman of 721 Cortelyou road, Flatbush. Patterson disappeared so far as Flatbush was concerned two months ago, and a few days later Mr. Ronke heard, through the Rev. H. L. Pyle, pastor of the Perkville Congregational church, that Patterson had a wife and child in the west. Miss Ronke was prostrated by the news and is still very ill, having recently undergone an operation."

"Old Jed Prouty" Dies.

Boston, March 3.—John L. Hyde, one of the best known men in Maine and believed to have been the original "Old Jed Prouty," is dead at the Maine General hospital, in Portland, Me. He was seventy-three years old. For more than forty years Hyde had been a commercial traveler. He served during the civil war, and after his return to Maine went west and took part in several stirring political campaigns.

Need Not Produce Their Books.

New York, March 3.—Supreme Court Justice F. J. Swayze decided to refuse the application made by Prosecutor of the Pleas Garvan of Hudson county, at Trenton, on Tuesday, for an order to compel the National Packing company, Swift & Co., Armour & Co. and Morris & Co. to produce their books and minutes for inspection by the grand jury in its cold storage investigation.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. A MESS OF POTTAGE.

The Surprise That Was In Store For Self Satisfied Fred.

By H. S. FRANK.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

The lilacs were in bloom, and above them upon the limb of the big elm an oriole had hung her nest, and every day in the sunshine her troubadour mate sang to her of love and companionship and airy journeyings. From across the fields came the odor of freshly plowed ground and the breezy calls of men to their horses. In the barnyard were the cacklings of hens and the peeping of many chickens, while from the pasture below came the lowing of cows to their calves. It was mid-May, and the wheat heads were still green with their thriftiest glowing, and the fence corners and roadsides were cheery with their golden offerings of dandelions.

Elsie came to the kitchen door and looked out. The orioles were singing, and she ran lightly down the steps and round the house to the front yard, her sleeves rolled above her plump elbows and her cheeks flushed with the exercise of dishwashing. Her eyes were bright with sympathy for the perfect day and the surroundings, and as she looked up at the oriole her lips parted in a rippling little song which she was to sing with her graduating class at the high school a few weeks later.

But at the front gate the song dropped to a lower key and then stopped altogether as a gayly dressed young man threw himself from his horse and came jauntily toward her, with hat in hand.

"Good morning, Elsie," he began. "I take the 10 o'clock train, but I had to come round and say goodby to you. I haven't much time, you know, but you'll write, won't you? And I'll write and tell you how I get along. Everything 'll be fine up there."

"Yes, I suppose so," Elsie answered slowly, "and I'll write." Her eyes had grown softer at his approach; now they looked troubled. They always looked troubled lately after a few minutes' talk with Fred. He was changing so. His people had taken summer

"MOTHER TOLD ME THERE WAS TO BE A PARTY OVER AT HULLS'."

boarders, and Fred was aping their manners. He wore cheap kid gloves and tried to imitate their way of walking and used as many of their phrases as he could in his conversation.

"Yes, I'll write," she repeated, "and tell you about everything going on here. But they'll be dull letters, for I'm just a farm girl and like farm ways. I wish I could be ambitious like you, but the country is so beautiful. I feel about it like the oriole singing up in the tree. I'm afraid you'll think we are dull, Fred, and grow away from us."

She watched him down the road to the corner of the next field, where he stopped for a moment to speak with Hank Burton.

When she went in her father was standing on the kitchen steps, lighting his pipe.

"Who was that fellow, El," he asked—"Fred Taggart?"

"Yes, father."

"I thought so. Come to say goodby, didn't he? Well, I'm sorry for old man Taggart. He sets the world by that boy. An' 'tis a pity too. Fred was the smartest fellow round here at one time for a young chap an' seemed to have the makin' of something uncommon. But the smartness has all frazzled out now in kid gloves an' squeakin' boots, an' he's goin' up to the city to work for $6 a week when his father's got the finest farm round here, an' Fred could have the runnin' of it in a few years if he'd stay. Well, well! Fools ain't all dead yet. But here comes Hank. Guess he wants to see you, El."

Elsie had been slipping into the house with heightened color, but turned back. Hank was the son of their nearest neighbor and was a good, whole souled fellow, with clear head and energetic habits, but woefully diffident and slow of speech. Elsie liked him, but had never cared to analyze what Hank's feelings might be toward her.

As he approached them the young man nodded to her father, who was moving away toward the barn, and then turned to her expectantly, with the color rising slowly to the roots of his hair. But not until her father was out of hearing did he speak.

"Elsie," he began then bashfully, "Fred just said goodby to me. He'll be gone a long time."

"Yes?" tentatively. "He said goodby to me."

"There's the rehearsal tonight—Saturday night, you know, Elsie," he went on. "It's quite a long walk, and—and you'll be needing somebody to go with you. I thought I'd better run over before any of the other boys got around."

"I can go alone just as well as not, Hank. It's bright moonlight."

"Yes, yes; I know 'tis," desperately. "But there's rehearsals next week, and church tomorrow night, and—and there's all summer long and all next winter. It won't be moonlight all the time. You'll need somebody to walk with you. Of course I ain't asking you to keep company with me," hurriedly, "only—only you'll need somebody till Fred gets back, and I'm handier."

"I'm not engaged to Fred," proudly.

"No, of course not. I know that—or thought so. But he sort of kept company with you, and—and I'm handiest, Elsie, and you'll be sure to need somebody, and—and you and I will understand."

She looked at him thoughtfully.

"Yes, you and I would understand, Hank," she agreed, "and maybe I will need somebody sometimes. I—yes, you may come for me."

The rest came about naturally. Hank became Elsie's "steady company," as the neighboring young people said, but Hank and Elsie themselves understood. And Fred when he returned home for a few days at Christmas understood, too, and he wrung Hank's hand and called him a good fellow for protecting his girl from the other boys.

Before the end of the next year there was a rumor that Fred's father was not quite satisfied. The firm had not advanced Fred as it should have. He was still receiving $6 a week, and money had to be sent from home to pay for his clothes. Then his letters were filled with theaters and the proper things in high life, with nothing about his work.

Then one day Fred suddenly appeared among them, jaunty as ever and home for good, as he said. The city was too crowded and unsatisfying, and, besides, his father needed him to manage the farm. And all he brought for his two years' work and the money sent him were a large diamond, which flashed upon one of his fingers, and experience.

The very night of his arrival he dressed himself with all the elaborateness of his city knowledge and went across to Elsie's home. She received him in the parlor in the pretty white dress which he remembered she was having made for her graduation. As she entered the room something in her bright, winsome beauty—so different from the chalky complexions of the shopgirls he had become acquainted with—made him step forward impulsively.

"Why, you're beautiful, Elsie!" he exclaimed. "I had no idea. It's fine to be home again. Ain't you glad to see me?"

"Yes, indeed, I am, Fred," she answered frankly as she gave him both her hands. "It will be nice to have you with us again."

Fred laughed complacently and settled himself comfortably in the easiest chair in the room.

"How do you like city life?" asked Elsie.

"Oh, I like the city, but there's no chance for a fellow there. I wish there was. The amusements to be had in the city are infinitely superior to those we have in the country. I used to go to the opera nearly every night in the season. Of course I always went in evening dress. No man goes to the opera in the city as he would go to one of our country parties. Everything seems very crude to me now I've got back."

"Indeed!"

"Oh, by the way, Elsie," he said presently, "mother told me there was to be a party over at Hulls' Wednesday night. Shall we go? I haven't got any invitation yet, but it'll come soon 's they hear I'm home."

"Yes, you'll get it all right," Elsie agreed. "But I can't go with you, Fred. I've promised Hank. He's got a cousin staying at his house, though—a nice girl. Suppose you ask her."

"No, thank you," smilingly. "I would rather have you. It'll be all right about Hank. I'll see him myself and tell him he's 'off duty.'"

The color deepened a little in Elsie's cheeks.

"I don't believe Hank will agree to that, Fred," she said demurely. "We are to be married at Christmas, and he doesn't seem to want me out of his sight a single evening. But he'll be here in a few minutes now. You can ask him and see."

They looked out of the window, and there came Hank, walking as if behind the plow, but with as honest a face as the sun ever shone upon. Fred glared at him, but said nothing.

"Fred will be at our wedding, Hank," said Elsie.

"We'll be glad to see him," replied Hank.

"I—I'm afraid I shall have to deny myself the pleasure," stammered Fred. "I've found, after all, I've become so much attached to city life that I can't stand the country any more. I'm going back."

"That's too bad," from Elsie.

The wedding came off at the appointed time, even though Fred was not there to give it eclat in a swallow-tail coat.

CHARLES SUMNER STRONG

A "Memorial" of Charles Sumner Strong written by Mr. Reed of Prairie Depot, Ohio has reached this office and will be of interest to many Tecumseh people as the subject of the sketch was a frequent visitor in our village and commenced his business career in the employ of Strong and McNair in the year 1874-5.

He was a son of Lyman Whitney and Ruth Dix Strong of Seville Medina Co. Ohio, and a nephew of the late John Strong of this town.

After leaving Tecumseh Charles Strong entered the employ of the well known merchant E. I. Baldwin of Cleveland Ohio.

Mr. Strong then went to Fremont, Ohio, and in 1881 was the proprietor of a large Merchant Tailoring and Clothing establishment in that city at the same time conducting a branch store at Clyde, Ohio. His father dying in 1881, Charles was appointed administrator of his estate, he was a large real estate owner and for a period of over forty years the leading Dry Goods merchant in Seville.

At twenty-five years of age C. S. Strong was a prosperous merchant, also identified in church work as an elder, church treasurer and S. S. teacher. This, with the extra care of his father's estate proved too much of a burden for his frail constitution and he was obliged to give up his business in Fremont and return to his home in Seville where he built a fine farm residence and commenced farming. Mr. Strong was greatly attached to Tecumseh and his former friends, the majority of whom have passed away. In speaking of my father he always said "Uncle Stoughton's lines had fallen unto him in pleasant places."

Among a class of Christian people, whose culture and refinement had been a daily incentive to him and who had contributed much towards his success in life whether in a religous, social or financial manner.

That Beef Boycott.

Now there comes the startling rumor that the ultimate consumer, in a grim and surly humor, rising up his piece to speak,
Says, b'jings, he's getting tired, the commandment has expired, and no longer he's required to present the other cheek!
So with gracious condescension you will kindly give attention while he makes his little mention of his purpose, which, in brief,
Is to make a speedy trial of a bit of self denial and, despite the trust's decrial, quit the vice of eating beef!
—Chicago Tribune.

She Understood.

She looked at the well filled shelves. "Are all these new books?" she asked.

"Yes," he answered.

"And how many are really worth reading?"

"Madam," he replied, "do you ask me as a bookseller or as a friend?"

She looked at him and understood and went away empty handed.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Handicapped.

The people in the flat next door
Are kindly, but
They harbor that decided bore,
A barking mutt.
But little peace are we enjoying.
A barking dog is most annoying.

The rules forbid it, as they know,
So says the lease.
If we complained he'd have to go.
And we'd get peace.
The landlord would uphold us, maybe,
But we can't kick; we have a baby.

The Country Store.

"There seem to be a great many captains among those loiterers around the stove," ventured the coffee drummer.

"Yes, stranger," laughed the old storekeeper: "they are all captains."

"And I suppose you could find all kinds of captains among them."

"Yes, excepting captains of industry."—Chicago News.

Aeroplane Fighters.

Will there be fighting aeroplanes
And deadly stuff that fiercely rains
On helpless cities far below,
On shattered ranks of fleeing foe?

Why, they are fighting even now—
They're mixing in a noisy row—
They fight for gold and not for fame,
About the patents each doth claim.
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

These Three.

"The world, the flesh and the devil!" gasped the shaggy haired pupil, taken by surprise and unable at the moment to get his mental bearings.—Chicago Tribune.

FOR THE CHILDREN

A Milk Giving Tree.

The cow tree of Venezuela yields a milk of good quality. It forms large forests along the seacoasts of that country. Its milk, which is obtained by making incisions in the trunk, so closely resembles that from the cow, both in appearance and quality, that it is commonly used by the natives as an article of food. Unlike many other vegetable milks, it is perfectly wholesome and very nourishing, possessing an agreeable taste, like that of sweet cream, and a pleasant balsamic odor, says the London Telegraph. Its only unpleasant property is a slight amount of stickiness. The chemical analysis of this milk has shown it to possess a composition closely resembling some animal substance, and, like animal milk, it quickly forms a yellow, cheesy scum upon its surface and after a few days' exposure to the atmosphere turns sour.

Hiss and Clap.

This is an excellent party game. One of the company goes outside the room, while the remainder of the players decide among themselves which of them he shall kneel to. When this is settled upon, the person who is outside is allowed to enter, and he kneels in front of whom he thinks is the right one. If he should make a correct guess the company clap their hands, and the person to whom he knelt goes outside. If, however, the guess is an incorrect one, the company hiss loudly, and the guesser has to go outside, come back and try again. Of course it will make more amusement if when a boy is sent outside the room a girl be chosen as the person to whom he has to kneel and the opposite if a girl be outside of the room.

How He Lighted the Candles.

When John Keats, the poet, lay dying in Rome the most faithful watcher at his bedside was his friend Joseph Severn. During the hours of darkness a solitary candle illuminated the room, and, in case, overcome by weariness, he should drop asleep and allow this candle to burn out, Severn devised a plan by which it would light others automatically. To the base of the burning candle he tied a piece of thin twine, the other end of which he attached to the wick of a new candle some yards away. As the old end died out the expiring flame caught the twine and, flickering up it like a fairy star, set light to the second candle. A third or a fourth was added, and the invalid's eyes never looked in vain for the cheering light.

THE BELLS

At Sunday Eventide

The following beautiful poem was written by one of Tecumseh's "shut ins" one who for many years has battled with pain and disease, has been called upon to part with father, mother and other near and dear ones and has always been the same beautiful Christian character, accepting the trials and the blessings of life in the same trusting faith. We hope these lines may breath comfort to other "shut ins" or those in the busy walks of life who need it as an anchor to their faith that sometimes seems in deep waters.

The Vesper Bell

A. M. R.

Through the strange sweet silence of the summer Sabbath air
I hear thy voice, sweet bell, in call to evening prayer,
"The Lord is in His temple holy."
In thought I see the crowd
Of worshipers with head bent lowly
Before the shrine invisible.
Within my quiet room I sit; the bonds of pain that hold me
I chafe at till I half forget the love that hath controlled me.
O vague desire, and sad unrest,
O questioning heart,
And sinful thoughts but half confessed,
O will unteachable!
And do I need the reverential crowd
and priestly word,
The chant of choir, and organ peal,
to tell me of my Lord?
Behold Thy temple, Lord is here,
The curtain of Thy holy place
Scarce veils Thy presence drawing near,
The grace and love ineffable.
Again I hear, "Let all the earth keep silence before Him."
And penitent, I bow to confess Him and adore Him.
Before Thy altar, Lord, I bring
My heart, O cleanse it pure
From sin, and make it meet for offering
A sacrifice acceptable.
Ring on, sweet bell, I lift mine eyes;
The beauty of the earth, the glory of the sunset skies,
Ever more shall speak to me
Of the temple's sacrifice,
Of other glories yet to be
By faith attainable.

Liver Trouble Remedy Free

Any intelligent person can be his own doctor in the ordinary case of liver trouble, for the symptoms cannot be mistaken. If the white of the eye becomes yellowish, if the skin becomes sallow, if pimples and blotches appear, if the bowels do not move, if you have sick headache, if you are bilious, you may be sure that your liver is torpid or inactive.

The quickest and surest remedy yet found for the cure of liver trouble or any of its symptoms is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the great herb laxative compound. This wonderful remedy is not only a laxative, but a tonic as well. It will start the flow of gastric juice, thereby soon enabling the liver to do its work naturally. A bottle of this great liver remedy can be bought of any druggist for 50 cents or $1, and in many cases a single bottle has cured a chronic case.

For example, John W. Lee, 419 S. Pennsylvania ave., Indianapolis, Ind., had a stubborn and very long-standing case of liver trouble, with pimples, blotches, jaundice, etc., and it cured him. Mrs. R. Pinchum, Jackson, Ky., says the same of it. Thousands of families keep it in the house against just such an emergency, as you can never tell when some member of the family will need a good laxative.

In order to have you or any other sufferer from the liver make a test of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin without personal expense, Dr. Caldwell will send you a free test bottle if you will send your name and address. The sample will show you how pleasant it is to take, how gently it works. It will start you on the cure of your trouble and convince you that you have found a cure. That is the object of the sample, and the doctor urges you to send for it today.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

An Awful Eruption

of a volcano excites brief interest, and your interest in skin eruptions will be as short, if you use Bucklen's Arnica Salve, their quickest cure. Even the worst boils, ulcers, or fever sores are soon healed by it. Best for Burns, Cuts, Bruises, Sore Lips, Chapped Hands, Chilblains and Piles. It gives instant relief. 25c. at C. A. Before I used Foley's Kidney Pills I was subjected to severe backache and pains in my kidneys with suppression and oftentimes a cloudy voiding. While upon arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and once more feel like my own self. All this I owe solely to Foley's Kidney Pills and always recommend them to my fellow sufferers. Sold by all druggists.

There are any number of men who, while ever ready to share their troubles with their wives, manifest a strong disinclination to share their pleasures with them.

Avoid Cheap and Big Can Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money, but it's not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a very small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as it does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acrid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and often unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same time moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

EGGS MUCH CHEAPER.

Should Sell For 25 Cents a Dozen In Chicago.

Chicago, March 3.—The kind of eggs which one month ago cost the consumer from 40 to 45 cents a dozen can now be bought for 25 cents, according to members of the butter and egg board.

"The prices of eggs," says a report of the press committee of the board, issued yesterday, "is down 2 1-2 cents a dozen. This will make the price to the grocery trade from 21 1-2 to 22 cents and means that the price to the consumer should be about 25 cents."

Another piece of news that should be cheering to the consumer is the cheap prices that potatoes are selling for. The condition in that market is the same as in the egg market. Country dealers are taking advantage of the milder weather to market some of their crop, and this has resulted in an abundance of supplies.

The Tumbling Egg.

Fill a quill with quicksilver. Seal it at both ends with good hard wax. Then boil an egg. Take a small piece of shell off and thrust in the quill with the quicksilver. Lay it on the ground and it will jump about till all heat is gone. If you put quicksilver into a bladder and warm it after you have blown it out and secured it it will skip about in the same manner.

The Falling Soldier.

This is an amusing play for little children. The whole company stand in a row like soldiers. The order is given to stretch the right arm forward, then the left one; next to kneel down on one knee with the arms still stretched out. Then the one at the end of the line must lean hard against his next neighbor, and the whole file will fall over like a house of cards.

The Old Dragon.

There was a bad dragon of old.
He had a forked tail, I am told.
His mouth spouted fire;
He was just full of ire
Until slain by a princely knight bold.

The Windmill Country.

There is a country, so they say,
Where windmills grow like trees,
Where arms instead of branches reach
To meet the coming breeze.
And all the little children there,
With clumping wooden shoes,
May seek their friendly shade to play
As often as they choose.

How strange 'twould be when winter comes
And all the other trees
Are shedding leaves of brown and red
To gather as we please
To see the windmills drop their arms
And all across the land
The little girls and boys come out
To find them on the sand!

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Ribbon Sandwiches.

Cut five slices of white bread about half an inch thick and spread each with softened sweet butter before slicing it from the loaf. Trim off the crust from the slices and shape the slices into squares of even size, about three by three inches.

Lay each slice, buttered side up, upon a pastry board. Spread the first one with cream cheese rubbed smooth with minced parsley and cress, the latter previously sprinkled very slightly with lemon juice; cover the next slice with a thin layer of smoked tongue freed from skin and gristle; strew the third with riced yolk of a hard egg seasoned with salt, pepper and a bit of dry mustard, and put a layer of smoked salmon or of roast ham on the fourth slice.

Pile the slices one upon the other evenly and in the order mentioned and top them with the fifth slice, laid with the buttered side downward. Wrap carefully in a cheesecloth binder which has been slightly dampened and weight with a book for an hour or so.

When ready to serve remove the cheesecloth and divide the little brick into thin slices, cutting downward with a keen edged carving knife. The result will be squares formed of half inch strips of bread pressed together and crossed by lines of green, red, yellow and pink. The same effect can be obtained by using brown and white bread with cream cheese

Pot Roast.

A piece of nice beef either cut in pieces or left in a piece. Fry out suet; put in the beef and brown; add an onion if desired after browning; pour in a pint of boiling water, cover and let cook slowly until tender; add more water, if needed, about thirty minutes before serving; have three large tomatoes skinned, cut in pieces and thrown in. If the water is pretty well cooked down and the tomatoes can cook in the fat it is better. When done add water and make gravy.

Prune Salad.

Wash, soak and cook a pound of large prunes until tender. Do not sweeten. When cold pit and fill the cavity with almonds or English walnuts. Make ten lettuce cups, either curving whole lettuce leaves into nests or shred the lettuce and curl into cups. In each of these cups or nests put three or four of the stuffed prunes, cover with mayonnaise made with lemon juice and serve on individual plates.

Milk Pail Holder.

Two New York men are the inventors of the milk pail holder herewith shown. The holder consists of a crossbar in two sections, which are adjust able relatively to each other and can be made to fit any pail. When the bar is joined the bent section encircles the rim of the pail and does not get in the way of the streams of milk, while clamp and hooks hold the receptacle to it. The milkman or milkmaid holds the pail between his or her knees, the crossbar bearing the weight, and is able to give all attention to the milking.

Patching With Machine.

Place two thicknesses of newspaper upon machine, put patch over that, then lay hole over patch; stitch around twice, one-quarter inch apart; remove paper, trim patch on one side and hole on the other close to stitching. When turning corners lift foot, leaving needle in the work, and turn the paper; the rest will follow without a wrinkle.

To Cool the Oven.

Do not open the door of the oven to cool it, especially if there is anything already cooking in it, as the rush of cold air is apt to render it unappetizing, but place in it a pan of cold water, leaving the door closed. It will quickly lower the temperature, and the steam arising from it will prevent the food from burning.

French Mustard.

Steep two or three onions (sliced) in a pint of vinegar for two days, then strain and add to the vinegar one teaspoonful of pepper, one and a half teaspoonfuls of salt, one tablespoonful of brown sugar and enough mustard to make it into a thick, creamy paste. Mix well until quite smooth, then boil for twenty minutes.

Salmon Salad.

Remove all bones and skin from a can of salmon and put through a meat chopper with one head of celery and a small bottle of olives stuffed with red peppers. Mix with salad dressing and serve on lettuce leaves.

Houses In France.

It has been estimated that there are fewer than a hundred wooden dwelling houses throughout all France. Stone and plaster are the usual materials.

A Month Without a Full Moon.

The month of February, 1866, was the most remarkable month in the world's history. January had two full moons, and so had March, but February had none. This had not occurred since the creation of the world, and, according to some astronomers, the same thing may not occur again for a period of 2,500,000,000 years.

FRITCH CASE TO THE JURY

Detroit's Famous Trial Draws to Close.

EXCITEMENT GROWS APACE

Fate of Dr. George A. Fritch Will Be In Hands of Twelve Men Before Day is Over—Prosecutor Completes His Argument Today—Close Observers Look For Disagreement.

Detroit, Mich., March 3.—Before the afternoon has passed the fate of Dr. Fritch, charged with the death of Maybelle Millman, will rest in the hands of the jurors who have been sitting for a month on the case in Judge Phelan's court. The closing chapters in the Millman case are drawing to a dramatic close, and a feverish excitement pervades the recorder's court.

Sentiment appears to weigh in favor of a long wrangle and a disagreement. If there is no disagreement there can be but one verdict—conviction. That is the opinion of those who have closely followed the case.

Prosecuting Attorney Van Zile is appearing for the people for the last time. All Wednesday afternoon and part of today he has argued.

One by one, he is taking up the arguments of his adversary, Attorney Frank T. Lodge. He is dodging no issues of this case. His words will be the final words before the judge charges the jurors. There was little venom in his attack upon Dr. Fritch.

J. Harris Heads Miners.

Saginaw, Mich., March 3.—Unofficial returns show that John Harris of Saginaw has been re-elected president of the Michigan Mine Workers by an overwhelming majority. William Diamond, formerly secretary and treasurer, has been elected member of the national executive board, and Joseph Smith of Bay City is believed to have won out for vice president. The race for the other offices probably will require the official canvass to decide them.

Musselman Quits Business.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 3.—That Amos S. Musselman is in the governorship race to stay, and that he intends devoting his entire time to working his campaign was made known Wednesday, when Secretary B. B. Cushman of the National Grocery company received a letter stating that Musselman has resigned from the company as its president and director. Mr. Musselman requests that his resignation be accepted as soon as possible.

Snowslide Didn't Get Him.

Ypsilanti, Mich., March 3.—"Am O. K. Escaped terrible snowslide," was the message from Mace, Ida., which told the local friends of Captain Andrew Stoll of this city that he was safe. Captain Stoll, who is a stationary engineer, has been working in the Idaho town, and it feared that he was killed in the snowslide of Monday.

Died on a Train.

New York, March 3.—George B. Anderson, United States consul at Martinique, died Wednesday afternoon, on a West Shore train, between Kingston and Weehawken. Rheumatism of the heart was the probable cause of his death. Mr. Anderson had come from Martinique on a vacation.

State News In Brief.

ANN ARBOR—The next meeting of the Michigan Schoolmasters' club will be held in Ann Arbor four days following March 30.

LANSING—The women of Ingham county will be asked to state their opinions in regard to local option in the county. The petition will, it is said, be similar to that circulated among the men.

MONROE—When William A. Wilson completes his term of thirty days in jail here for vagrancy he will be taken to Racine, Wis., where he is wanted on a forgery charge. When arrested he had a number of bank checks on his person.

MINDEN CITY—While temporarily deranged, Mrs. William Wehy, wife of a farmer one and one-half miles south of the village, swallowed carbolic acid and died shortly after. She leaves five children.

FLINT—Because he passed a forged check on William Street, a local butcher, two weeks ago, Roy McRae, a son of William McRae of Detroit, was sentenced by Judge Wisner to ninety days in the Detroit house of correction. He is sixteen years old.

OWOSSO—In the discussion of state affairs, the Shiawassee county Gleaners, at their winter banquet, on Tuesday, declared that many of the state junkets are unnecessary. It was urged that Shiawassee farmers use state twine instead of the outside product.

PORT HURON—Failure to receive an answer to any one of numerous telegrams sent from this city to Idaho since the recent snowslide, has been the cause of grave fears for the safety of George Balkwell, Charles Schell and their wives, who moved to that state from this city about six months ago.

FLINT DOCTOR HERO.

Several Important Incidents Enter His Life In Short Time.

Flint, Mich., March 3.—Traveling hundreds of miles, transformed into a hero, reaching his dead father at Warren, Minn., all within three days, is the record of Dr. W. H. Winchester of this city. Late Saturday afternoon Dr. Winchester resuscitated nine-year-old Clarence Thomas after the lad had been pulled from the Flint river and the coroner had been called. He then hurried away in response to a telegram from the Minnesota town that his father was dead.

While on a train four miles north of Fergus Falls, Monday, the engine left the rails and toppled over, pinning the fireman, John J. Pogbra, beneath it. He was discovered by Winchester, who, crawling under the engine, removed snow and dirt with his hands until the dead body of the fireman was removed. It is told that passengers on the train wired the Great Northern officials asking that the doctor be rewarded for heroism.

MAKE IT CORPORATION.

Bill Introduced Creates Rockefeller Foundation Fund.

Washington, March 3.—Steps have been taken to incorporate the Rockefeller Foundation in the District of Columbia. The bill for this purpose was introduced by Senator Gallinger and was referred to the committee on judiciary.

The purpose of the foundation is to provide for a general organization to conduct philanthropic work along all lines.

It is understood that the Foundation will be endowed largely by John D. Rockefeller and that he takes this means to dispose of a large part of his enormous wealth.

The incorporators named in the bill are John D. Rockefeller, John D. Rockefellar, Jr., Fred T. Gates, Starr J. Murphy and Charles O. Heydt.

The Rockefeller Foundation, according to the bill, is organized to promote the well-being and advance the civilization of the people of the United States and its possessions in foreign lands, and for the acquisition and dissemination of knowledge, for the prevention and relief of suffering and promotion of any and all of the elements of human knowledge.

Long Drawn Fight Apparent.

South Bethlehem, Pa., March 3.—The labor struggle between the Bethlehem Steel company and its employes has settled down to an apparently long drawn out fight. Trouble was expected when the funeral of Joseph Szambo, the dead striker, took place Wednesday morning, but there was no disturbance. A number of men who went to work yesterday was estimated at 3,500 and more departments were able to start up.

Magazine Quits.

New York, March 3.—Van Norden's Magazine, which for four years has been published by the Eastern Publishing company, with the backing of Warner M. Van Norden, has ceased to exist. The publishers of Current Literature announce that they were negotiating for the purchase of the subscription list, but that no sale had been made to them yet

The New Chief Forester.

Henry S. Graves, who succeeded Gifford Pinchot as chief forester of the United States, is splendidly equipped both by training and experience for the position. The new forester and Albert F. Potter, his recently appointed associate, are both known as Pinchot men.

Both have served under Mr. Pinchot, and both are in sympathy with his policy of administration.

It was largely through Mr. Pinchot's efforts that the Yale forestry school was established, and Mr. Graves went from the post of assistant chief of the division of forestry under Mr. Pinchot to become director of the school in 1900. He had served in the forestry division for two years.

Mr. Graves was graduated from Yale in 1892. He was trained in forestry in this country and in Europe and has had extensive experience in the west, having made the reconnoissance survey of the Black Hills in 1897.

Lincoln, Neb., March 7.—William J. Bryan is to launch a Prohibition newspaper in Nebraska and secure financial returns on the campaign which he has begun against the whisky interests. Bryan, his brother, refuses to either deny or to affirm the report, saying he would not discuss the matter until the election of Mr. Bryan.

As Mr. Merril is seventy years old, his recovery is doubtful.

ARREST MAIN LABOR LEADERS

Philadelphia Officials Decide to Do So.

MATTER IS KEPT QUIET

But Heads of Unions Are Regarded to Blame For Present Conditions. No Attempts at Riots During Day Sunday—Trouble Began as Soon as Night Fell.

Philadelphia, March 7.—The outcome of a conference Sunday evening between the city officers and Francis Brown, counsel for the Rapid Transit company, will be the arrest, for conspiracy, of the labor union leaders who brought about and who are directing the big strike. Neither Mayor Reyburn nor Director of Public Safety Clay, nor Mr. Brown, would breath a word of what took place in the conference, but the information is positive that the authorities have determined to arrest and clap into jail ten or a dozen men who are regarded as responsible for the present conditions. Clarence C. Pratt, captain of the striking car men, and J. J. Murphy, president of the Central Labor union, are under indictment already for inciting to riot, and it is known to be the intention of the mayor and his advisers to go down the line and corral every union chief who had a part in forcing 40,000 men to quit work.

Action is to be taken against these men under the common law of Pennsylvania, which broadly defines conspiracy as the attainment or attempt at attainment of a lawful thing by unlawful means.

The arrests are expected within the next twenty-four hours. So far, none of the union leaders has had a hint of the tactics to be employed by the city officials. It is not supposed that they will dodge, since hitherto they have tried to make capital out of the jailing of Pratt and Murphy for inciting to riot.

There was hardly a spark of trouble in the morning or the afternoon Sunday. The coming of night brought trouble. Outbreaks were reported constantly. Riot calls to the city hall arsenal, where automobiles were in readiness and squads of men with clubs and revolvers were on tip toe, told of cars stoned and wrecked, of men shot and of fierce fights the police were having with mobs in sections where the strikers were most in force.

Over 25,000 Sparrows Killed.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., March 7.—During tht past three months over 25,000 sparrows have been killed in this county, according to the bounty orders paid by the county treasurer. About $500 has been paid to the hunters, at the rate of two cents a head.

Will Roosevelt Be Treated by Pope if He Addresses Methodists.

Rome, March 7.—The Methodists are striving to obtain Colonel Roosevelt's promise to lecture in their church here. They tried to approach him directly and also through influential friends of Mrs. Roosevelt, who replied that her husband made his own personal engagements.

The matter has been left in obeyance until Colonel Roosevelt arrives here. Meanwhile the Vatican has decided, as in the case of ex-Vice President Fairbanks, to refuse Colonel Roosevelt an audience with the pope in the event of his lecturing to the Methodists.

EX-SENATOR PLATT DIES

Suddenly Was Demise of Veteran Politician.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE CAUSE

Would Have Been Seventy-seven Years Old July 15—Funeral Tuesday in His Old Home, Owego, N. Y. Brief Sketch of His Career—Began His Political Activity by Singing.

New York, March 7.—Former United States Senator Thomas Collier Platt, Republican leader of the state of New York for a score of years, and intensely interested in the Republican party from its organization in 1856, died unexpectedly Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in his apartments at 133 West Eleventh street. He would have been seventy-seven years old if he had lived until next July 15. The direct cause of Mr. Platt's death was acute Bright's disease. For a number of years he had suffered with a palsy of the legs which necessitated his occupying a wheel chair most of the time.

With Mr. Platt at the time of his death were Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Platt, Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Platt, Harry Platt and Dr. Outerbridge, his physician.

Receives Children Sunday.

Sunday mornings for a number of years had been given over to a reception of his sons and their wives and his immediate friends, and so Sunday morning Frank Platt and his wife, Edward T. Platt and his wife and Harry, whose wife died several years ago, visited Mr. Platt and chatted with him. He never appeared to be in brighter spirits to them until about 1 o'clock, when they noticed a change in their father's condition. Dr. Outerbridge was quickly summoned.

Mr. Platt was up and dressed at the time. He was put to bed, and at 4 o'clock he died without a murmur, without recognition of those about his bedside.

Late last evening, Mr. Pratt's body was taken to the home of his son, Frank, 272 West Seventy-fourth street, and on Tuesday his body will be taken to Owego, N. Y., where funeral services will be held in the Presbyterian church in that place, and Mr. Platt will be buried in the church yard beside the first Mrs. Platt, who was his cousin.

Thomas Collier Platt was born in Owego, Tioga county, on July 15, 1833. His father was William Platt, a lawyer, and a descendent of revolutionary stock, who practiced at Owego. His mother was Lesbia Hinchman of a Jamaica (L. I.) family with a revolutionary record.

Went to Yale.

Thomas C. Platt attended the public school academy in Owego and in 1849 entered Yale college. His scholarship was good, but he was obliged to give up his course because of ill-health. On July 29, 1876, Yale gave Mr. Platt, then a delegate to the national Republican convention, at Cincinnati, supporting Senator Roscoe Conkling's candidacy for the presidential nomination, the honorable degree of master of arts.

Forced to abandon his idea of taking a full collegiate course, Mr. Platt returned to Owego and started business as a country druggist. In 1854, when he was twenty-one years old, he married his cousin, Ellen Lucy Barstow. Miss Barstow was seventeen. They had three sons, O'Brien, now treasurer, and Henry, now vice president of the United States Express company, and Frank H., a member of the law firm of Boardman, Platt and Littleton. The mother of these boys died in 1901.

Mr. Platt was not sufficiently robust to enter the Union forces in the civil war, but at the opening of the war he offered his services in any capacity for which he was physically qualified, and Governor Morgan appointed him an auxiliary member of the war committee of the state, and he was active in raising funds for the maintenance of troops, his drug store being a headquarters for the work.

Had Interests in Michigan.

In 1872 Mr. Platt retired from the drug business. He had not confined himself in his business interests to the drug trade, and among other things he was a member of the firm of J. P. Brown & Co., lumbermen in Michigan, a director of the Muskegon and Big Rapids Railroad company, president of the Tioga Manufacturing company of Big Rapids and for many years president of the Tioga National bank of Owega. In 1873 Mr. Platt was made secretary and manager of the United States Express company. In 1879 he became its president.

Mr. Platt's start in politics was made, partly at least, through his singing. With more or less vocal training and experience, he organized a glee club to sing between the speeches at rallies of the party. Early in the 60's he became chairman of the Tioga Republican county committee and in 1870 was nominated for congress, but was defeated. In 1874 Mr. Platt was

CROSSING STREAM ON PLANK

Mrs. George Simmons of Ann Arbor Became Dizzy and Fell Into River, Pulling Husband In After Her—Doctors Attempted to Resuscitate Her, but Life Was Extinct.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 7.—Mrs. George Simmons, a bride of three months, was drowned in the mill race Sunday afternoon, and her husband almost lost her life in an attempt to rescue her.

Mr. and Mrs. Simmons started to cross the mill race on a 12-inch plank. Mr. Simmons startd first and was about three feet ahead of his wife. The current is very swift, and when she had reached about the middle of the stream she became dizzy, falling into the race and pulling her husband, who had run back to assist her, in with her.

Although Mr. Simmons came to the top with his wife, she slipped from his arms and was lost. Life was extinct when the body was recovered, although it had been in the water only a short time. Doctors attempted to resuscitate her.

BOY RESCUES COMPANION.

Ice Gave Way While Lads Were Walking Upon It.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., March 7.—The flood in the Clinton river here was the cause of a near tragedy at the sugar factory outside of the city. Charles Collins, a boy of twelve, was walking with several boy playmates on a jam of ice extending into the water at a bend in the stream.

Suddenly the ice gave way, precipitating the lad into the middle of the river. One of the lads, Reuben Jock, a fourteen-year-old boy, ran out on the cakes of ice and, seizing young Collins by the hand, managed to lif him upon the floating cakes. By jumping from one block to another, the two boys reached the shore in safety.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarah Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

OLD TIM AND THE POLLYWUMPS.

The Recipe That Cured the Aged Man's Fit of Blues.

By HOMER CROY.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Old Tim Culley slowly climbed the paper-padded stairs to his room on the second floor, with one hand on his knee and the other pulling at the baluster rail. At the landing he paused for breath. He did not mean to overhear the conversation between Mrs. Simonds and the man with the official badge, but the man's sharp words floated up, and Old Tim paused guiltily.

"It 'tain't my fault," explained the gas bill collector. "Rules are rules. It might be different if I was at the head of the company, but we'll have to cut off your gas. That's the rules."

"I think everything 'll be all right in a few days. Times are picking up."

"It can't be helped, Mrs. Simonds. As I say, rules are rules, and they'll turn it off Saturday."

After a moment's silence the door slammed, the collector calling back with more warmth in his voice, "Good day." Old Tim could hear Mrs. Simonds' dragging footsteps and her own parlor door close behind her.

Old Tim turned into his little back room and dropped down upon his bed, one arm propping him up. His eyes wandered aimlessly around the four close walls, held on the ragged edge of the paper a moment, then drifted on to return. Even the neglect of years could not hide the fact that the room had once been rich and well worked out when East Fifteenth street was exclusive. The whole room was an epitaph.

"It's no use," complained Old Tim, "no use at all. My augur has bored through. It's not the hard times—the augur is through."

He went out and found Mrs. Simonds. He walked straight up to her.

"Mrs. Simonds, I heard what the gas man said. Half of it is my fault. I'm not worth the chores I do. I have a conscience. I am"—

"Now, now, Tim, you've got the pollywumps this evening, and after you have been here seventeen years, when we were big and swell. Maybe you'll get your job back, and then you can begin to pay me again. Then I'll get some one else to do the chores around here, and then you can go to the picture shows and to the restaurants every Saturday night, like you used to."

Mrs. Simonds' tone brightened his face with the hope that springs eternal.

"Old Tim" he was to everybody on East Sixteenth street—man, woman and postman—quiet, mild, harmless Old Tim.

"I haven't paid you a cent now for a year, Mrs. Simonds. And here I once was the drafting engineer for McCord & Prewett, with twenty men under me—twenty men. That's a lot, isn't it, Mrs. Simonds? When I came back after being sick I was only a night watchman. But I was a good one. Mr. Prewett said so. Then came the hard times, no work, and you keeping me for puttering around here. It's not right."

"You've got 'em bad this evening, Tim—big blue pollywumps."

A flight of pain cut across Old Tim's face that Mrs. Simonds would not take him seriously. His conscience was old and rooted deep.

"I've been thinking about it a long time, Mrs. Simonds. The world is done with me. I sometimes call myself a telephone with the battery run down. You don't know how it is. You aren't as old as I am. You don't know how a man feels when he finds that out. I can't keep up. It costs a lot to keep me, eating three times a day, but I don't burn any gas—can't see to read much any more anyway; don't take much interest in it besides. Yes, it costs a lot. It wouldn't cost much to bury me."

"Now, you shut up, Tim. You've got 'em bad this time, sure. Thinking about them that way makes them worse. Now, you get down there and see if you can't tighten up that clothesline."

Old Tim let himself down the stairs into the basement and went out into the back court and began tightening the line.

Little Dottie, Mrs. Simonds' daughter, slipped up on tiptoe, her tongue out, in her efforts to be noiseless. Old Tim turned that he might not see her.

"Boo!" cried Dottie, throwing out her hands.

Old Tim jumped. "Why—on, how you frightened me! My, but I ought to put some chewing gum in your hair!" Old Tim fumbled in his pocket in make believe.

Dottie covered her flaxen curls with her chubby fingers and retreated. "Don't you dare! I'll put salt in your coffee if you do."

They played for half an hour, and then Old Tim in the gathering dusk pulled himself up to his little room and dropped on to his bed. Finally he reached out his hand and felt of his tobacco porch. "Of course there isn't any. It won't grow in there of itself."

As the bell downstairs clangled he softly opened his door and guiltily listened. As he had suspected, it was the grocer from around the corner.

"You promised to come around today and settle up, Mrs. Simonds," said the grocerman sharply.

Old Tim closed his door. "And me costing her money every day," he complained, "every day, and doing nothing but chores. Yes, and I am liable to get sick at any time, any day, and eating every day."

His eyes roved the room and fastened on all the ragged nail holes and grease spots. "Used not to be that way when I first came—carriages and dinners at the hotels. But that doesn't do any good now."

Suddenly, with quick determination, he arose and placed the ink bottle on the table before him and dipped the rusted pen. Slowly and with lowered head he wrote the note:

Mrs. Simonds—It costs a lot to keep me, and it won't cost much to bury me. It isn't the pollywumps, but fate. Give Dottie the Indian purse. If you ever hear from my brother—I think he is out west—give him the ring. You can get it off my finger. You need not write anything on the headstone.

Folding the note, he weighted it with the ink bottle. Then from the bottom of his scaled bureau he drew out the rubber hose and attached it to the gas jet. Locking the door, he turned to the window and was drawing it down when he looked across the court to the window of his unknown friend. There in a glare of light sat the white haired friend waiting.

Old Tim had almost forgotten him—his friend with whom he had never spoken, but who had so many times smiled across at him and nodded his head in appreciation.

Old Tim gathered up his violin, as he had done every evening, and clamped it under his chin. As the soft, plaintive tones of "Annie Laurie" welled out the old white haired man arose and turned down his light to a glow. He always turned his gas to a glimmer when Old Tim played "Annie Laurie." It was his dream hour, when he lived again the victories of youth. As Old Tim played the old white haired man dropped his head against the window casing and lost himself in reverie. When Old Tim finished the man across the air shaft slowly nodded.

"He'll miss me, anyway, even if the world doesn't," said Old Tim musingly. "It's the last time; it's the last time. I hope they will tell him so that he can come. I believe I'll play once more."

Again the plaintive strains burst out, and when Old Tim had finished the old man of the gray locks looked across and nodded again. He would never grow tired.

Old Tim nodded back, gulped and turned away. He took up his pen and added a postcript:

Will you please give the old white haired man my violin—if you don't have to sell it?

Then he fitted the rubber mask to his face and fumbled for the gas jet.

A stone clicked against his window. He paused, and then another pebble rapped the pane. Jerking off the mask, he threw up the window. He knew that it was Dottie's signal.

"Something for you, Timmie," called out Dottie—"something nice—I know it is—a letter in typewriting!"

Old Tim hurried down the stairs, and in the kitchen, with Dottie at his side, he tore open the envelope.

"It's from McCord & Prewett," he cried joyfully. "My old job back as night watchman—tomorrow. Isn't that nice?"

Old Tim hurried up to his room, stumbling and grabbing at the rail, and turned on his gas to a full daring blaze. It was the first time in many months that the flame had been so wide and joyful.

A stone snapped against the window, and he thrust out his head. "What is it, Dottie, little girl?"

"Please, Timmie, and the nice old man with the white hair wants to know if you will play 'Goodby, My Lover, Goodby.'"

Tim took up his violin, put some rosin on the bow and, drawing it across the strings several times, began to play the air he had been asked to play. Dottie listened for awhile with her eyes fixed on him, then she began to dance. Tim also began to pirouette, and the two danced about. Tim contriving to make the music to which they danced. And the longer they danced the liveller they danced and the liveller the music to which they danced. Then, when they were tired, they rested. Tim put up his violin and said:

"Dottie, that's the best dance I ever had in my life."

SOCIAL EVENTS.

The Rebekah lodge entertained a delegation of sisters from Adrian last Friday night at six o'clock dinner. About thirty were present. After a social visit lodge was called and the visiting sisters gave the work in a very pleasing manner. These fraternal visits go far to cement the tie that binds hearts and hands together.

G. A. R. AND W. A. MEETING

Owing to so much sickness and other social functions there was not a large attendance at the camp fire last night and the program was not carried out as expected. Mrs. Kenrick gave a very fine solo and Miss Lucy Train read an original poem. The Post and Auxiliary sang two selections, one the vacant chair in memory of their departed brother Willard Crittenden who they lay away today.

WIT AND WISDOM

The Wit and Wisdom club had a very pleasant meeting Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Slayton. It being Ladies night every thing moved in a smooth proper manner.

As the gentlemen entered they had the picture of one of the presidents pinned on their coat and when the call for supper came they had to search for their partners among the ladies who bore the given name of the wives of these presidents.

The musical program was excellent. Mrs. McAlpine, Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. Wood giving exquisite solos. A chorus by the ladies were beautifully rendered. The paper by Mrs. North on "Woman" was very fine. Also the "Mistakes of Men" by Mrs. Howard was just as it should be. Taken altogether Ladies night was a great success.

ALMA COLLEGE

The debating teams that are to represent Alma in the Alma-Hope-Olivet debate have finally been decided upon, but only after considerable discussion and a number of changes. Call has been shifted from the affirmative to the negative and Graham from the negative to the affirmative. Call seems especially strong in rebuttal work, while Graham shows up best on constructive lines. Each college will send its negative team away Olivet coming here, Hope going to Olivet and Alma to Hope. All will discuss the question, "Resolved that the United States governmeut should levy a progressive income tax, constitutionally enceded."

On Friday evening, April 8, Alma's negative team, consisting of Delbert Lindley, Robert VanThurn, Donald Call and Royal Blafke will clash with Hope, while on the same evening the affirmative team comprising Stanley Graves, Edward Thompson, Adrian Graham and Leslie Koefgen debate Olivet. The last man mentioned on both teams acts as alternate.

A Michigan Girl the Favored One.

A Hudson girl, Miss Marie Roberts, received first prize in the contest to furnish best cover for the Youth's Companion for the New England number. When it is remembered that there were several hundred contestants it is quite a mark of honor to be so distinguished especially by a magazine that has so wide a circulation.

And What Next?

Rev. Geo. Schroeder, pastor of the First Congregational church at Elmwood, has resigned; his pastorate to accept the position of umpire in the Illinois and Missouri league. It seems best to give up a mistaken vocation sometimes and take up one more adapted to his qualifications.

MRS. M. J. UPDYKE

Mrs. Elizabeth Updyke passed away Wednesday morning after an illness extending over many weeks but was confined to her bed only a week previous to her death. She was just sixty years of age and seemed young to be called away. Hers has been such a quiet faithful life, so good to everyone, so loving and kind. To her husband and children her loss comes as a crushing blow and her neighbors and friends will miss her pleasant smile and kindly greeting. May the pleasant memories that surround her life be a comfort to all in this their time of deepest sorrow.

How bright and cheerful was the home,
Lit by the sunshine of her smile;
And now today 'tis wrapped in gloam
Yet only for a little while.
Soon we shall join her once again,
When we have crossed the unknown sea;
With courage bravely wait till then,
For think how bright heaven must be.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our many neighbors and friends for all their kindness to us during the sickness and death of our loved one, for the beautiful flowers and the comforting words of prayer and singing. STOMACH MISERY FOR OVER SIX YEARS.

Think of it! After six years of sour stomach, of gas eructations, of nervousness, during which time every meal lay on his stomach like a lump of lead, a man was restored to perfect health by Mi-o-na stomach tablets.

Read what Mr. Hoffman; landlord of the Webster Hotel, writes.

"I suffered misery and intense pains from stomach trouble for over six years, and all the doctoring that I did or medicines I used were of no avail until about two years ago, when I used a treatment of Mi-o-na. The first few days' treatment helped me greatly and upon using it a while I was made entirely free from any stomach trouble or complaint whatever. Since the cure by Mi-o-na I have regained my weight, I eat and sleep well, am never nervous, and my entire general health is much better." —Max M. Hoffman, Webster, N. Y., Aug., 2, 1909.

Mi-o-na relieves stomach distress in five minutes. It acts like magic. It is guaranteed to cure sour stomach, gas eructations, heartburn, dizziness biliousness and nervousness, or money back. For sale by druggists everywhere and by C. A. Wright for 50 cents a large box.

Settle the Fence Question Right

There's only one satisfactory way to settle the fence question.

And that way is to get the best fence—that fence is built to stand for many seasons.

Pay a reasonable price and get the worth of your money.

Peerless Wire Fence

If it cost twice as much as it does it could not be made any better. It's the material, workmanship and scientific method of construction that makes Peerless Fence so strong and durable.

Peerless fence is sold most everywhere, but if it is not now on sale in your town your dealer can get it for you. He naturally prefers to sell what he has in stock, but you are looking to your own interest and not his, and should insist on his supplying Peerless.

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

Would Sustain or Even Enhance Your Reputation.

The elements composing CALUMET are blended with such exactness that it is famous for its evenness of strength, leaving the food light, sweet and wholesome.

Do not confuse CALUMET with cheap or big can kinds, or the high-priced trust brands. It is a strictly high-grade baking powder, sold at a moderate price.

That it is the highest in quality and absolutely pure is proven by the fact that it received the highest award at the World's Pure Food Exposition, Chicago, 1907.

Ask your Grocer — Don't accept a "just as good" kind — insist on CALUMET.

CORN KING SPREADERS.

Have the largest sale of any spreader. If you will look them over, you will see why. A few points:

Frame and Axle are heavier and better supported.

Return bottom decreases draft, friction, weight and end freezing and will reverse at the will of the operater.

Narrow front truck will not whip the team as a wide truck spreader, rake or drill.

Would you buy a wagon without a reach? No, why then a spreader? Just compare.

FRED

BELEIVED TO BE THE OLDEST HORSE IN THE STATE.

Fred, the fine old horse whose picture heads this article, was foaled in Jackson 40 years ago. At the time this picture was taken he lacked just 8 days of the 40 years. He was raised in Jackson by George B. Kennedy and when about 10 years old was purchased by D. C. Larned of Tecumseh, who owned him at the time of his death. M. E. Conklin then purchased him of the estate and has since been his owner. He has been used for a driving horse most of the time and Fred was a familiar figure on the street for he has been driven by old and young alike. But old age rendered him feeble, like many another, and death was a welcome release.

As far as we can learn, he was the oldest horse in the state, and he kept his fine appearance to the last. And "Met", who for all these years has cared for and petted him, misses his old familiar whinny when he saw him coming.

Liver Trouble Remedy Free

Any intelligent person can be his own doctor in the ordinary case of liver trouble, for the symptoms cannot be mistaken. If the white of the eye becomes yellowish, if the skin becomes sallow, if pimples and blotches appear, if the bowels do not move, if you have sick headache, if you are bilious, you may be sure that your liver is torpid or inactive.

The quickest and surest remedy yet found for the cure of liver trouble or any of its symptoms is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the great herb laxative compound. This wonderful remedy is not only a laxative, but a tonic as well. It will start the flow of gastric juice, thereby soon enabling the liver to do its work naturally. A bottle of this great liver remedy can be bought of any druggist for 50 cents or $1, and in many cases a single bottle has cured a chronic case.

For example, John W. Lee, 619 S. Pennsylvania ave., Indianapolis, Ind., had a stubborn and very long-standing case of liver trouble, with pimples, blotches, jaundice, etc., and it cured him. Mrs. B. Finchum, Jackson, Ky., says the same of it. Thousands of families keep it in the house against just such an emergency, as you can never tell when some member of the family will need a good laxative.

In order to have you or any other sufferer from the liver make a test of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin without personal expense, Dr. Caldwell will send you a free test bottle if you will send your name and address. The sample will show you how pleasant it is to take, how gently it works. It will start you on the cure of your trouble and convince you that you have found a cure. That is the object of the sample, and the doctor urges you to send for it today.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

Avoid Cheap and Big Can Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money, but it's not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a very small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as it does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acrid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and often unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same time moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

"Mary Ann Hubble."

I once knew a woman named Mary Ann Hubble,
And this woman always was looking for trouble—
She was looking all day from the time she got up
To the candlelight hour when she sat down to sup.
She would look all around her and search high and low,
Just looking for trouble where'er she would go.
And you may be sure that this Mary Ann Hubble
Had more than her share of what people call trouble.

THE MIDNIGHT TRAIN

"You're not going out again tonight, Leonard? It is so late!"

"I must, but I won't be long. Don't sit up for me."

Olga's dark eyes filled with tears as she assented. She had thought it was going to be so different when she had come up from her aunt's dull home to live with her brother in the city, but Leonard only kissed her and was gone.

"I know he is mixed up with some dreadful people," Olga Thurston thought as she returned to the little sitting room and raked the dying embers of the fire into a glowing heap. "Because poor mother was a Russian Leonard thinks himself bound to fraternize with all the black sheep who come over here. Why can't he be content with nice English friends like the Cunninghams?"

A blush overspread her face as the remembrance of Hugh Cunningham's parting that very afternoon crossed her mind, and she could feel once more the warm pressure of the hand and hear the mellow voice saying: "Good by, Olga. I will come again tomorrow."

She had risen to extinguish the lamp before retiring to her own room when she heard the sound of a key being turned in the front door, and, fearing lest Leonard should be angry if he found her still up, she slipped behind a curtain that was drawn across the window to wait until he had gone to his room. To her dismay, however, her brother was not alone.

His friends Kroutaizki and Schreiber were with him, and they began to speak at once, evidently continuing a conversation.

"You understand what you have to do," said Schreiber, addressing Leonard. "I will tell you once more, that you make no mistake. The train bearing that infernal villain passes your station here at 12:40 and reaches Redville at 1:05. You must get in here and leave the train again at Redville, and mind you select the carriage in front of the saloon and leave your parcel under the seat as close to the partition as you can get it."

"How long will it last as it is?" asked Leonard in faltering tones.

"For an hour and a half. It is set to go off at 1:20, and the train will be halfway between Redville and Letterham then. That gives you plenty of time, even allowing for delays."

Schreiber had spoken in English, though with a strong foreign accent, and the trembling girl behind the window curtain had heard every word with a shuddering horror not only on account of the dastardly crime they were plotting, but because she remembered that Captain Cunningham was quartered at Letterham and that he was dining in London that night and would almost certainly go back by the midnight train. The conspirators left almost immediately, first carrying into the room a square package done up in brown paper and placing it carefully on a chair.

As in a dream Olga watched Leonard through a rent in the curtain. Having drunk off some whisky, he picked up his burden and let himself out at the door. Within five minutes a closely veiled figure was following him, and the brother and sister reached the station simultaneously. They took tickets for Redville and Letterham respectively, Olga getting into a compartment at the end of the train and Leonard entering the one next to the saloon carriage.

At Redville both got out, and Olga had the satisfaction of seeing her brother hurry away, while she speedily took his place and perceived to her horror that a man in a fur coat was asleep in one corner.

She had learned from a porter that the train stopped once more halfway to Letterham, and with all her heart she prayed that the awful thing might not go off until she could get out with it at the little roadside station. She sat trembling from head to foot.

At last came a shrill whistle, and, with her heart beating in her throat as it seemed to her, Olga began to grope under the seat.

The man in the fur lined coat sat up. "Can I help you to find anything?" he asked, and Olga saw that one of her fears was realized, for it was Hugh Cunningham.

"No; please don't—don't touch it!" she gasped, and as the train stopped she lifted the parcel and placed it on the seat.

It was very heavy, and from it came a terrible ticking sound, which the noise of the train had prevented them from hearing before. Hugh looked at her curiously.

"Olga!" he exclaimed. "What is this?" He got out quickly, but in the delay caused by having to give up his ticket he lost sight of her, and she ran swiftly down the dark road away from the station.

She dared not go too far. A gate leading into a big field invited her to enter. She did so and, having set down the awful package, turned back again with long, sobbing breaths. As she reached the gate an explosion rent the air, and, with a wall of anguish mingled with relief, Olga fell into Hugh's arms.

* * * * * * *

Perfect confidence reigns between Captain and Mrs. Cunningham except at one point. He has never sought to learn how she became acquainted with the plot to assassinate the Russian minister, and when Olga receives her American letters he does not ask to see them. And each mail makes her happier, for it brings word of honest work and true repentance and a real gratitude to the brave little sister who saved Leonard Thurston from bearing the brand of Cain.—Keystone.

DR. HYDE INDICTED.

Charged With First Degree Murder in Death of Thomas Swope.

Kansas City, Mo., March 7.—Dr. B. Clarke Hyde, husband of a niece of the late Thomas H. Swope, has been indicted on thirteen counts in eleven indictments returned by the grand jury that has been investigating the Swope mystery for the last three weeks.

Two indictments charge first degree murder in connection with the deaths of Colonel Swope and of Chriman Swope. Dr. Hyde is alleged to have given them strychnine tablets.

One indictment accuses Dr. Hyde of manslaughter by bleeding James M. Hunton, a cousin of Colonel Swope, in a neglectful manner.

Perhaps the most surprising of all the indictments returned are the eight in connection with he alleged poisoning of the Swope family and visitors and attendants of the Swope household. Dr. Hyde is accused in these indictments, which contain ten counts of poisoning wit hyphoid germs, with intent to munder Margaret Swope, Stella Swope, Sarah Swope, Lucy Lee Swope, Nora Bell Dickson, Georgia F. Compson, Mildred Fox and Leonora Copridge, a colored girl. All these persons were stricken with typhoid fever while Dr. Hyde was attending the Swope family.

Former Cleveland Mayor Aspires For Political Honors.

GO TO CONGRESS.

Tom Johnson Tells His Party Workers He Would Like to Do So.

Cleveland, March 10.—Former Mayor Tom Johnson, defeated for the mayorality last fall after serving continually since 1901, has let it be known to his followers of the Democratic party that he would like to go to the legislature next fall either as state senator or as representative. He probably will be nominated in the May primaries.

"I'm thinking I'd like to go to the legislature for a season," the former mayor told his ward workers, while plans for the ticket to be named in May were being perfected by the Democrats. "I could serve a year and then run again for mayor."

MONTGOMERY ACCEPTS OFFER

Will Be Chief Justice of Customs Court of Appeals.

Washington, March 10.—Judge Montgomery has decided to accept the appointment tendered him by President Taft of chief of the court of customs appeals of the United States. The judge has been trying to find time to draw a statement for publication in Michigan in which he desired to return his thanks and say both au revoir and good-bye to his supporters for governor, but has not been able.

His new fame has drawn so many people to him upon so many pleasant errands that he has concluded that he will have to wait until he gets aboard the train for home before he can compose his mind sufficiently to place his grateful thoughts on paper. But he certainly is well pleased with the gracious manner in which President Taft held out the appointment to him.

The president explained that this is a court to establish a line of important precedents, and that he wanted none but the best material in the country to preside over its deliberations.

Senator Smith, too, is greatly elated over the appointment.

Mills of Hillsdale chief of the compiling division in the department, has been appointed to the place. During his ten years service, Mr. Mears has been recognized as an expert on corporation and other department matters.

FOUNTAIN TO GAMBLER.

"Jim" Scott Wills Money to Detroit For Its Erection.

Detroit, Mich., March 10.—Property estimated at half a million dollars is bequeathed by "Jim" Scott, capitalist and gambler, who died the other day, to the city of Detroit with the specification that it is to be used to erect a fountain on Belle Isle.

Scott's will was opened by James Hosmer and C. M. Burton, named as executors by Scott, at the Wayne County Savings bank Wednesday. It reads as follows:

"I, James Scott of Detroit, Mich., do hereby make this, my last will and testament. I give and bequeath to my executors, hereinafter named, $20,000 for the erection of a monument over my grave in Elmwood cemetery, $1,000 to the Elmwood Cemetery association, $30,000 to Mrs. Francis M. Campbell, 41 Charlotte avenue, and all the rest of my property to the city of Detroit to build a fountain on Belle Isle."

It is estimated that the property left to the city has a total value of $500,000.

It was at the home of Mrs. Campbell, widow of Dr. Campbell, that Scott died. He had lived with the family for many years.

New Buildings Provided For.

Washington, March 10.—Buildings for the departments of state, justice and commerce and labor, costing not less than $12,000,000, are provided for in a bill that passed the senate Wednesday. The sites for these buildings, which constitute five city blocks opposite the treasury, were purchased several years ago, at a cost of $2,600,000.

Asquiths to Separate.

London, March 10.—The report that Prime Minister Asquith and his wife are to seek a "judicial separation" has become the favorite topic of conversation in London society. While news of an actual break came as a surprise, it has long been known that the Asquiths did not live happily together.

KILLS HIS SWEETHEART.

Is Second Girl Whom Marion (Ind.) Man Has Shot.

Marion, Ind., March 10.—Miss Dottie Murden, aged seventeen, a daughter of Mrs. Murden, a widow, was shot by Sanford Love, aged thirty-seven, her sweetheart, at the Murden home.

Two bullets from a 32 caliber revolver entered the young woman's body. She died without making a statement. The shooting followed a quarrel, and Miss Murden was returning love letters when he shot her.

This is the second time Love has shot a girl with whom he was in love, having fired a bullet into the body of Miss Nora Miller, a waitress at the Hatfield hotel, on June 9, 1903. Miss Miller recovered, and Love was acquitted by a jury on the plea that he was not mentally responsible. Love gave himself up to the officers.

HOME RULE ACT IS INVALID

Attorney General Bird Gives It as His Opinion.

VIOLATES THE CONSTITUTION

Vests Right to Legislate In County Supervisors—Such Power Belongs Only to State Legislature—Cannot Have as Many Legislatures as There Are Counties.

Lansing, Mich., March 10.—From an opinion just rendered by Attorney General Bird, in regard to the county home rule act fathered by Speaker Colon Campbell and rushed through during the last moments of the session of 1909, it is evident that the state's attorney does not place much faith in the constitutionality of the new law.

Article eight of the constitution of the state contains the following provision:

"The legislature may by general law confer upon the boards of supervisors of the several counties such powers of a local legislative and administrative character not inconsistent with the provisions of this constitution, as it may deem proper."

In his opinion he attorney general holds:

Violation Apparent.

"It will be observed that the only authority vested in the legislature under the foregoing language of the constitution is to confer powers of a local, legislative and administrative character, not inconsistent with the provisions of the constitution. I believe it must be fairly apparent that any attempt on the part of the legislature, under authority of the above quoted language of the constitution, to confer upon the boards of supervisors the right and power to pass laws—that is, to legislate—would be unauthorized, and any so-called law passed by a board of supervisors under authority of a legislative act, would be unconstitutional. There is only one body in this state that can legislate, and that body is our legislature. Yet our legislature has, in the enactment of the law to which reference is herein made, attempted to confer upon boards of supervisors a power which is unquestionably vested only in the legislature."

The attorney general says that this entire attempt of the legislature to confer broad legislative powers upon the boards of supervisors is contrary and opposed to our state form of government. He claims that its effect is to have eighty-three separate and distinct county legislatures in this state twice a year.

DR. FRITCH SENTENCED.

Gets Maximum Sentence of Fifteen Years in Jackson Prison.

Detroit, Mich., March 10.—Dr. G. A. Fritch, convicted slayer of Maybelle Millman, must pay the extreme penalty under the law for manslaughter. After denying a motion of his counsel for a stay of sentence, pending the filing of a bill of exceptions to the supreme court, Judge Phelan imposed on the physician a sentence of from seven and a half to fifteen years in the state prison at Jackson, with the recommendation that he serve the maximum.

Immediately Attorney Frank T. Lodge requested a stay of execution for forty-eight hours. The court refused the request, and the commitment was made this morning.

Dr. Fritch, standing in the prisoner's box, with one hand inserted in his trousers' pocket, took the sentence without a show of feeling.

Mrs. Leach Claims $1,000.

Detroit, Mich., March 10.—Harry J. Dingeman, attorney for Mrs. Louise Leach, the star witness in the trial of Dr. Fritch, has put in a claim with the county auditors for the $1,000 reward offered for information that would lead to the conviction of the slayer of Maybelle Millman. Mrs. Leach is the wife of Joseph Leach, the owner of the automobile in which the body was conveyed to the river.

MORGAN PUT DEAL THROUGH

Merely Acting as Broker In Big Auto Sale.

STUDEBAKERS GET E-M-F

Litigation Between Two Concerns Ends—Studebakers Incorporate In New York For $8,600,000 to Manufacture Automobiles and Other Vehicles.

New York, March 10.—J. P. Morgan & Co., it is stated, acted in the matter merely as brokers for the Studebaker interests in putting the deal through whereby the E-M-F Automobile company of Detroit was sold. Rumors of a big consolidation of automobile interests, which have been current in the financial district for some little time, are strengthened by the announcement of the Studebaker-E-M-F purchase by additional news from Albany of the incorporation of the Studebaker Vehicle company.

Tremendous Deal.

The sale of the E-M-F company is one of the largest deals ever made in the history of the automobile industry in this country. J. P. Morgan & Co. announced that in accordance with an agreement with the stockholders of the Studebakers, the banking firm had purchased all of the stock of the E.M.F company that was not already owned by members of the Studebaker firm. It is now said that the price paid for the 64 per cent of the Detroit company's stock bought for the Studebakers was practically on the basis of 8 for 1 on the capitalization of $1,000,000.

The litigation between the Studebaker firm and the big Detroit company over the cancellation by President Flanders of the selling agreement between the two companies is to be terminated.

The news from Albany tells of the incorporation of the Studebaker Vehicle Company of New York. This new company is incorporated with a capacity of $8,600,000 to manufacture automobiles and other vehicles and supplies. The stock is divided as follows: $3,500,000 of 7 per cent cumulative first preferred and $1,500,000 of 7 per cent cumulative second preferred and $3,600,000 common stock.

The directors named are Frederick P. Delafield, New York city; Clement Studebaker, Jr., Frederick S. Fish and Scott Brown, all of South Bend, Ind., and Frederick W. Longfellow of Riverdale-on-Hudson, N. Y.

Sees Big Profits.

One man in the district who admits that up to a short time ago he never thought more about automobiles than the bare ownership of two or three for his own personal use said recently that a good many other men in financial circles than himself had just waked up to the big profits to be made out of the manufacture of these machines.

But the automobile making industry so far has been split up so completely among so many different plants that to a person used to figuring out economies in manufacture and marketing it seemed a shame to loose the money that easily could be saved by a more systematic handling of these matters. Therefore, according to rumor, there is at present at work in the automobile manufacturing field a steady tendency toward consolidation; a policy that, in time, is likely to lead to a greater combination of these interests than has yet been announced.

Many Would Succeed Montgomery.

Lansing, Mich., March 10.—"I have not yet taken any action on the applications from aspirants to the office left vacant by the transfer of Justice Montgomery, and I will not do so for some time," declared Governor Warner. Candidates for the office are increasing. Following is the list: Judge Clarence W. Sessions, Muskegon; Judge Willis B. Perkins, Grand Rapids; Judge Nelson Sharpe, West Branch; Judge Charles Dodds, Mt. Pleasant; Judge Howard Wiest, Lansing; Attorney General John E. Bird.

A sketch of Apollo by Mrs. Carrie Bryan. A vocal solo by Miss Brush in her usual charming manner. Then followed a very good recitation by Mrs. Andrew Taylor. Mrs. Thomas McCann then favored the company with a beautiful solo. After which a short intermission was taken.

Part second consisted of a sketch of the origin of the Marsailles hymn by Mrs. Andrew Wilson which was very interesting. John Keeney sang a solo that gave much pleasure to his audience. This was fol owed by a recitation by Miss Mingay. Miss Mattie Caldwell then favored the company with one of her beautiful solos. Miss Mayme Harrison of Jackson very kindly gave saxophone solo that was highly appreciated by those who heard it. Refreshments of Maple Mousse and wafers were served. And each one felt that they had passed a very delightful evening.

A Communication.

To the Editor:

Dear Madame:—Might I have space in your valuable paper to give setting to a little incident that gives a side light flash upon current conditions and issues. Last night when sixty worshippers were gathered at the M. E. church for the midweek prayer service, a poor fellow in a bad state of intoxication came in and for a time spread great uneasiness among the ladies present. I was able to get him to leave peacably and he promised me he would go home at once. When the meeting was over, to make sure he was not still on the streets or in the saloons, I made the rounds of every saloon on main street. With one exception, their mid-week service of booze and cards seemed well attended and some of those present were as much surprised to see me there as I was to see them. Of course none of them had seen the poor fellow I was looking for. With one exception, all declared that he was never at any time given liquor in their places. This may be true. No one likes a drunkard around. But I noticed that there was a full quota of young men present, whom they were very willing to supply with that which in time will certainly turn some of them (I hope not all) into drunkards. Verily consistency is a jewel. Why continue the manufacture of drunkards if even the saloonist is ashamed of the product? D. STANLEY SHAW.

WHY SALVES FAIL TO CURE ECZEMA

Scientists are now agreeed that the eczema flerms are lodged not in the outer skin or epidermis, but in the inner skin. Hence, a penetrating liquid is required; not an outward salve that clogs the pores.

We recommended to all eczema patients the standard prescription Oil of Wintergreen as compounded in liquid form known as D. D. D. Prescription. A trial bottle of this D. D. D. Prescription, at only 25c. will instantly relieve the itch. We have sold and recommended this remedy for years, and know of wonderful cures from its use. We recommend it to our patrons. C. J. The topic for Young People's meeting Sunday is, "Patient faithfulness that wins the crown," leader, Blanche Snyder. Last Sunday's meeting led by Miss Adah Denny was very interesting and helpful.

PEERLESS WOVEN WIRE FENCE

In the first place the construction of Peerless wire Fence is scientifically correct—the one piece cross bars, and famous Peerless non-slipping knot and uniform tension of line wires—makes a fence that will stand many hard bumps and jolts, without a sign of weakening.

TERRIBLE CROUP

One Who Knows Recommends A. Remedy To Anxious Mothers.

My little boy, who is four years old has suffered a lot with croup. On several occasions we thought he was gone.

After trying all the old time remedies and most of the new, I came home one night at midnight, and my wife said, "The boy has the croup again—suppose you get a bottle of Hyomei. "More junk" I said, "but we will circulate our money so they all will get some."

I hastened to an all night drug store and brought it home. In five minutes he was breathing easier. In fifteen minutes he was sound asleep. It broke the croup so quickly it scared me.

Anyone wishing to cure the croup of a child I hope will give Hyomei a trial.

Wishing you the best of success which you surely deserve, I remain, Jos. E. Clark, 204 6th St. S. E., Washington, D. C. Oct. 7, 1900.

Hyomei is a remarkabl effective remedy in case of croup and it should be in every home where there is a croupy child, Full instructions how to cure croup comes with each outfit.

Complete Hyomei outfit including inhaler costs $1.00 at druggists everywhere and at C. A. Wright's.

SOMETHING NEW

The march of improvement still goes on and we are glad to notice the results in the various places we visit. Frank D. Avery has just installed a new McCray Refrigerator in his store which is at once a thing of beauty as well as of usefulness.

It is of oak and consists of seven compartments with swinging shelf and glass front and one larger one with mirror front for the benefit of those who wish to see themselves as others see them.

Altogether it seems a very fine piece of furniture and will prove very handy in every way and in keeping the goods before the public.

How Good News Spreads.

"I am 70 years old and travel most of the time," writes B. F. Tolson, of Elizabethtown, Ky. "Everywhere I go I reccommend Electric Bitters, because I owe my excellent health and vitality to them. They effect a cure every time." They never fail to tone the stomach, regulate the kidneys and bowels, stimulate the liver, invigorate the nerves and purify the blood. They work wonders for weak, run-down men and women, restoring strength, vigor and health that's a daily joy. Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction is positively guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son.

WEBSTER ANDERSON.

Webster Anderson of the Webster Anderson Co. of this village was stricken with apoplexy yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock. Without regaining consciousness and without suffering pain, he peacefully died at seven last evening. On Sunday he will be borne to beautiful Brookside. Mr. Anderson was a little more than 78 years of age and during the Civil war was Tecumseh's Postmaster. For more than fifty years he has been closely identified with the dry goods business in this village, culminating in the organization of the concern bearing his name. Thus closes an honorable and successful career. Services at the house Sunday at 3 o'clock.

A change in the Village ticket has been madesince the caucus as two of the candidates were on both tickets which was contrary to law. The ticket now reads:

Pres.—Jas. W. Wightman.
Clerk—Roy W. Codling.
Treas.—Richard M. Molles.
Assessor—Wesley B. Keysor.
Trustees—Geo. B. Kempf, John S. Temple, A. S. Van Winkle.

CLASSMATES.

The play given last night was the best play ever given in Tecumseh and we feel that Manager Ed Marks deserves great credit for securing such an attraction. There was a large audience and the fact that they gave such close attention to so late an hour showed their appreciation. Norman Hackett's nine years training in the Shakespearean plays manifested itself in the Jungle scene more particularly, and the character of Bubby Dumble taken by Robt. Lee Allen and the character of Phylis Stafford taken by Helen Young were delightfully humorous and deserve special mention. We hope many more plays of the same style may be presented here and that they may be liberally patronized.

The next meeting of the Research Circle will be held in their rooms over Aldrich's bakery March 15 with a debate. Resolved, that American Woman combines in herself the best traits and characteristics of all her sister women, affirmative, Mrs. A. Wilson, negative, Mrs. J. J. Belcher. A good attendance is desired.

A TRIBUTE.

They have honored in song and story,
Abe Lincoln so honest and true.
To Washington brave and faithful
Have given the homage due.
They each one deserved their laurels,
But let us consider awhile,
The deeds of the humble and lowly
The men of the rank and file,
Just as brave when the call was given
For men to protect our land,
To fight for our Country's honor
By our dear old flag to stand.
They left all that life held dearest,
The mother, the wife and the child
To save for their dear ones a country,
A home and a life undefiled.
They suffered, they starved, and they perished—
Their ranks were invaded by death,
They fought till their fast fleeting breath
No longer would nerve them to action
No longer hold out in the strife,
And they sank on the sod cold and silent,
To enter the portals of life,
Of life in the mansions eternal
Where war and its honors shall cease
And the banner that floats o'er the soldier
Is the banner of heavenly peace.
And others who fought, oh so bravely
Came back to their homes once again
Pale, weary, and wounded, these brave ones,
Sad victims of sickness and pain—
But they fought for their country and saved it,
They gave of their manhood the best,
And we honor these veteran soldiers
And pray they be evermore blest,
And a few, oh so few of the many
Came back without sickness and scar,
But they ne'er will forget all the horror
The cruel effect of the war.
As here you are gathered together
This handful of veterans true,
I give you my right hand of friendship
You who fought for the red, white, and blue
And when they are looking for heroes
To shine on our history true
I point to the men whom we honor
The soldiers who honored the blue—
Though they led not the forces that conquered,
Though no screed from their pen met our eyes
Yet their faithful adherence to duty
Was the power that captured the prize.
So honor be given forever
To the men of the rank and the file
And long may our Country remember
And though no great monument pile
Lift its shaft to the azure above
Yet the heart of the nation forever,
Its soldiers shall honor and love.

AMUSEMENTS.

George Marion, the famous stage director who produced "The College Widow", "The Prince of Pilsen", "The Merry Widow", and "The County Chairman" has directed the the rehearsals of "The Girl Question", the musical comedy by Frank R. Adams and Will M. Hough with music by Joseph E. Howard. A startling electric novelty which will be seen in the third act of "The Girl Question" is the phantom chimes. They are introduced first in the chorus of the song "I hate to work on Monday", sung by twenty-four pretty girls seated at typewriters and clicking off an accompaniment to the words of the song. The chimes by means of electrical attachments are made to ring all over the house, under the seats, up in the gallery, on the walls etc., making the most novel effect which has ever been presented. Hundreds and hundreds of pretty girls were passed upon before the 32 who form the chorus of "The Girl Question", the marvelous musical comedy which comes to the Bradley opera house on Monday night, were finally selected.

Mild Laxative for Baby Free

The child of today is the parent of the future, and whether it grows up healthy and strong, or puny and weak, depends upon the intelligence of its parents, for most children are born into the world healthy, but thousands become future weaklings between birth and the age of ten, when the parents are still in greatest control.

The prime cause of trouble is in the stomach. A baby that is digesting its food seldom cries and always looks cheerful; the little child whose stomach is good romps and plays and never whines; the growing child learns well at school and is eager for fun if its head is clear and its stomach light, and that means if it has no constipation.

The best and safest way to cure any irregularity of the stomach and bowels in children is by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a liquid laxative wonderful in its effect as Mrs. John W. Dunham, Apple Creek, O., Mrs. H. L. Cullam, Plainville, Ind., and numerous others can testify who give it to their children with extraordinary results.

A bottle only costs 50 cents or $1 according to the size you want, and even one 50-cent bottle will do a wonderful amount of good in a family. It can be given to any member of the family for constipation, sour stomach, indigestion, torpid liver, dyspepsia, heartburn, sick headache and similar digestive troubles. It never gripes or strangles like pills, tablets, salts and powders, which should not be given to children, women or old folks.

If you have a child or other member of the family who needs, but has never used this grand laxative tonic, send your name and address to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent to your home. In this way you can find out what it will do without personal expense.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

Avoid Cheap and Big Can Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money, but it's not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a very small percentage of leavening gas: therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as it does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acrid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and often unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same time moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

IN FAVOR OF GENERAL STRIKE

Pennsylvania Federation Takes This Stand.

RESOLUTION IS ADOPTED

Philadelphia's Officials or Principal Employers Apparently Not Alarmed. Mayor Thinks Federation is Bluffing—Merchants and Shop Keepers Feel Different.

New Castle, Pa., March 10.—The Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, at its second day's session here, came out strongly in favor of a general strike to be inaugurated throughout the state in case the Philadelphia street railway troubles are not adjusted speedily. A pointed resolution was presented to the convention by President W. D. Mahon of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes and was adopted unanimously. The resolution closes as follows:

"Resolved, That we, the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, in convention assembled at New Castle, this ninth day of March, 1910, do hereby endorse and approve of the action taken by the fellow unionists and fellow citizens of Philadelphia in their movement for liberty and justice.

"Resolved, That we pledge to our fellow workers in Philadelphia our moral and financial support, and, if necessary, to extend the general strike to every industry in the state of Pennsylvania and to appeal to the workers of the nation to take similar action."

Philadelphia, March 10.—The union labor chiefs here are banking on the threat of a statewide or national strike. They have come out into the open and admitted it. Their plan is, broadly, to bring such tremendous pressure to bear on the Philadelphia Transit company that they will treat with their former employes.

Pratt, Murphy and Mahon, the principal leaders of the sympathetic strike, and the committee of ten of the Central Labor union, which is directing the general strike, conferred and decided to send William D. Mahon, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes to the convention of the state federation of labor, at New Castle. Mahon was told to lay the situation before the federation. Mahon was instructed to tell the federation just what the situation really is.

Officials Not Alarmed.

Neither the city officials nor the principal employers of labor, such as the textile mill owners, are apparently alarmed over the news from New Castle that the state federation has endorsed a statewide strike "should it be necessary," and had urged the American Federation of Labor to order a strike of national scope. Mayor Reyburn thinks the state federation is bluffing. He does not believe that there is the slightest danger of extensive defection of union employes. He figures that the union leaders here are using the state federation as their ace in the hole, and the only ace they have left.

Inquiry among the owners of the large mills and factories has elicited much the same opinion. The men who own the great looms of Kensington are becoming confident that they can win their fight for the inviolability of agreements even if they have to keep their shops closed for a year to do it. These employers have stiffened their backbones immensely in the past day or two. They have ceased practically to shout for arbitration. They are meeting principally for the purpose of determining a uniform mode of procedure should it become necessary to suspend operations indefinitely.

With the merchants, the proprietors of the big downtown stores, the shop keepers in the neighborhoods where the strike feeling is hottest, retail dealers all over the city, the case is different. They have suffered so much in the pocketbook already that they are calling lustily for somebody to make the street railway company arbitrate.

Baldwin Employes Quit.

The general feeling, however, is somewhat tense on account of the New Castle threat and because the union has succeeded in pulling 2,000 unorganized workmen from the Baldwin Locomotive works.

A trolley car was dynamited last night at Germantown avenue and Logan street, in Germantown. The explotion lifted the car off the track and set it down crossways with a crash that smashed every window pane and hurled twenty passengers against the seats and sides of the car. The concussion broke window glass in dozens of houses along the avenue and produced a panicky feeling in the neighborhood that lasted for hours. It was remarkable that none of the people in the car were seriously hurt.

AUTOS CAUSE TWO DEATHS

Boy and Woman Killed in the Streets of Detroit.

WOMAN MET AWFUL FATE

Officers Declare Automobile Struck Her, Knocking Her In Front of a Street Car—Lad Apparently Leaped Before Oncoming Machine While Playing in Streets.

Detroit, Mich., March 14.—Automobiles were apparently the means of bringing death to two persons in Detroit Sunday.

Norman Burkhardt, aged eight year, leader among his playmates, with whom he was playing in the streets, was struck by a swiftly moving automobile and thrown, a limp and huddled heap, in the dust of Hastings street in the afternoon. Canfield station patrol wagon carried him to Grace hospital. Examination revealed his skull to be crushed in. He died two hours after he was brought to the hospital.

The automobile, which he had failed to observe, struck him and flung him back headfirst against the curb.

The driver of the automobile, Carl Klein, was arrested and later released. The coroner will investigate.

Bewildered by the sudden approach of a street car and an automobile, Miss Eva Cohen, twenty-one years old, 52 Wilkens street, was ground to death under the wheels of a Baker street car.

Edward J. Gagen was arrested and locked up. The police claim that the auto which Gagen was driving struck the young woman and knocked her into the path of the car. Gagen denies that his car hit the girl.

TO BUILD LINE.

Action of State Railway Commission Permits It.

Lansing, Mich., March 14.—With the authorization by the state railroad commission of the proposed issue of $80,000 in bonds by the Lansing & Northeastern Construction company, with which to build the electric line from this city to Owosso, every detail of the plan for constructing the road has been completed, and it is announced that the builders expect to have the line in operation by next October.

The company has already expended more than $100,000 in work on the line and has the grading well under way.

Mayor Ousts Health Officer.

Bay City, Mich., March 14.—Following the third death from smallpox, Dr. C. H. Freiberg, health officer, has been summarily dismissed from his post by Mayor Evans. One week ago two smallpox deaths occurred, and the health board held a special session and gave Dr. Freiberg ten days in which to resign. The board rescinded its action, and the mayor gave formal notice of immediate ouster. Freiberg, however, will fight.

Dalai Lama at Calcutta.

Calcutta, March 14.—The Dalai Lama, who was driven from Lhasa some time ago by the Chinese, arrived here Sunday by train, after stopping en route for a ritual bath in the Ganges. A representative of the viceroy and a party of officials met him at the station. About 200 persons, chiefly curious Occidentals, gathered to see him, but there was no demonstration.

State News In Brief.

Claud Badgero of Byron, who is suing his wife for a divorce on the charges of cruelty, has started suit for $5,000 damages against Bert McKinney of Byron, alleging that McKinney is responsible for his wife staying out late at night.

Mrs. Ward S. Newman of Pontiac, formerly clerk in the municipal court, attempted suicide by taking carbolic acid. She did not drink sufficient to cause death. Trouble between herself and her husband is given as the cause for the act.

Harry Avery, a farmer, who is alleged to have stolen wood from the Tuck school house in February, had his trail in Justice C. E. Lovejoy's court, at Milford. The jury split even, so a new trial has been ordered. Avery is a bachelor living near the school house and bears a good reputation.

Minne Rahn, a fourteen-year-old Wayne girl, must attend school, according to an opinion of Attorney General Bird, although she had a permit to work. Bird holds it is necessary to secure consent under the truancy law as well as the labor law. Miss Rahn is the daughter of a well-to-do farmer.

Asserting that his daughter and son-in-law have threatened to evict him from his own home because he gave them a deed to his property under an agreement that they were to keep him for the remainder of his life, Oron McComb, of Otisville, eighty-seven years old, has commenced a suit in circuit court against James and Emma Crownover. He asks that the property be taken from them.

FOURTEEN HORSES PERISH.

Pie Company's Barns In Detroit Are Burned.

Detroit, Mich., March 14.—Penned in their stalls, unable to escape, fourteen frantic horses were slowly burned to death, when the New England Pie company's barn, in the rear of 397 Sixteenth, burned during the night. The fire was not discovered until the blaze had secured a good headway. The agonized screams of the doomed horses could be heard for blocks.

The barn was almost destroyed when the flames were finally subdued. The damage is estimated at $3,000.

The body will be taken to Holland, Mich., the home of the Diekemas, for interment.

NOT ASKED TO RESIGN.

But Woodruff Is Given to Understand He Must Support Hughes' Policies.

New York, March 14.—There was no bow strings after all; there is not likely to be any, and in all probability Timothy L. Woodruff, chairman of the Republican state committee will serve out his second term of two years and retire next fall, for a Republican as yet undeveloped to be elected by the new state committe elected in the Republican state convention.

Senator Root Sunday had one of his busiest days receiving Republicans and talking with them over the New York state situation at his home, 733 Park avenue.

To all of Senator Root's visitors he made it emphatic that he had not come here to ask for the resignation of Chairman Woodruff; that he had not been asked to make that request, and that there could be no gainsaying the statement that President Taft, the senator himself and most other Republicans in Washington had no desire to humiliate Chairman Woodruff, but at the same time Chairman Woodruff and his friends at Albany and elsewhere should be made to understand that their attitude toward certain of Governor Hughes' measures and their general holding off from everything that Governor Hughes desired would not be tolerated.

BAR MATRIMONY.

College Girls Propose to Do So Until Each Has Won 500 Male Converts.

Boston, March 14.—By banding together the progressive college girls of America into an organization that will bar matrimony until the assigned work of each member in the cause of the suffragists is completed, the most radical movement yet devised by the leaders of women's vote workers is soon to be put in force. Each of the college suffragists in Wellesley, Bryn Mawr, Vassar, Smith, Radcliffe and other women's colleges will bind herself to foreswear the marriage vow till she has won over to the women's suffrage 500 bona fide men voters.

Taft and "Uncle Joe" Get Chummy.

Washington, March 10.—Secretary Carpenter called up Speaker Cannon's office the other afternoon and said that the president wanted "Uncle Joe" to take an automobile ride with him after the house adjourned. The speaker accepted the invitation, and 5:30 was the hour set, but they didn't get started until 5:50. The news of "Uncle Joe's" twenty-five mile joy ride with the president was gall to the "insurgents."

PRESIDENT IN PITTSBURG.

Attends Funeral of Brother-in-law Who Killed Himself.

Pittsburg, March 14.—President Taft Sunday attended the funeral of Thomas K. Laughlin, the brother-in-law of Mrs. Taft, who killed himself by shooting, at his home in this city, on Friday last. Only the president, Mrs. Louis Moore and Mrs. Charles Anderson, sisters of Mrs. Laughlin, and a few immediate relatives and friends were present.

Mr. Taft, accompanied by Captain A. W. Butt, his military aide, and his two sisters-in-law, occupied the second carriage in the funeral procession which moved out to Allegheny cemetery through a misty rain. Thomas and Mary Laughlin, children of the dead man, did not attend the services at the cemetery. Flowers from President and Mrs. Taft, Representative Longworth and other friends in Washington were placed on the casket. Services were held at the house.

It was not known that Mr. Laughlin had committed suicide until the verdict of the coroner's jury had been given out.

Mr. Laughlin was subject to melancholia.

TO ASK ROOSEVELT TO RETURN MEDAL

Georgia Failed to Pay For Gift to Former President.

Atlanta, Ga., March 14.—When former President Roosevelt returns to the United States he may be asked to return a medal which was presented to him at the Jamestown exposition by the state of Georgia. Although the medal purports to have been presented by the state of Georgia, it was not, and that is why its return will probably be asked.

W. Norwood Mitchell, the Georgia commissioner at Jamestown, ordered the medal, but the state refused to pay for it, along with many other bills rendered by the commissioner. The medal had already been presented to Roosevelt, and Mitchell and his friends paid for it and the other bills repudiated by the state. Meeting these obligations practically ruined Mitchell, and his friends say that it is not right that the medal should bear the name of Terrell, who was governor when the state refused to pay the bills. Mitchell and his friends propose to put the facts before Roosevelt and ask him to return the medal, so the names of Governor Terrell and Georgia may be erased and the names of those who paid for the medal inscribed. It will then be returned to Roosevelt as a token of esteem from Georgia gentlemen.

Mitchell lately filed a petition in bankruptcy, being driven thereto by sacrifices he made to meet Jamestown bills which the state refused to pay.

Pontiac, Mich., March 10.—On the advice of their attorneys, Shope, Zane, Bushby & Weber, the N. W. Halsey & Co. bonding house of Chicago has turned down the city's $6,000 armory bonding proposition. This makes the second time the city has tried to dispose of $6,000 worth of bonds

PAULHAN IN DARING FLIGHT

Nervy Frenchman Not Afraid of Heavy Wind.

IN THE AIR EIGHT MINUTES

Performs Feat In Sight of 2,000 People at Jamaica Race Track, Outside New York—Machine Stood Almost Still For Time, so Strong Was the Wind.

New York, March 14.—About 2,000 spectators witnessed a daring and spectacular flight of Louis Paulhan at the Jamaica race course Sunday afternoon. He flew in a wind that carried the flag straight in the breeze, and performed many aerial gyrations.

Paulhan remained in the air eight minutes, and it was estimated that he flew a distance of five miles and soared to an altitude of 400 feet.

It was 4:43 o'clock when he took his seat in the yellow and white flier. One of the mechanicians gave the propeller a twist. It made a few feeble revolutions and stopped. The next twist set the propeller going, and the machine darted into the air. The aeroplane behaved very well until Paulhan reached the east end of the course and encountered a treacherous current. He suddenly wheeled his apparatus to the right and then flew a circle to the south to avoid the currents. At times the machine almost stood still in the air, and Paulhan changed his course frequently. Finally, he started in the direction of Springfield. Then he swung back across the east end of the race course. He next turned in a westerly direction, and when he got in front of the grand stand he darted over the building and for an instant was lost sight of. By the time the crowd arose from the seats the aviator passed over the club building as gracefully as a bird.

In descending, the machine looked as if it would land on its nose, but Paulhan gave his apparatus an upward turn and landed within twenty or thirty feet of the starting point. On making the return trip Paulhan traveled with the wind, and it was estimated that he flew at a rate of seventy miles an hour.

Edwin O'Leary, manager of Paulhan, said he considered the flight one of the greatest that Paulhan has made, because of the uncertain wind.

SCHOOL CHILDREN'S TEETH.

Boston Citizen Plans to Give $2,000,000 For Their Care.

Boston, March 14.—Thomas A. Forsyth, a wealthy resident of this city, plans to give $2,000,000 for the care of the teeth of Boston school children.

The money, with a part of which will be erected a building equipped with every modern apparatus known to the dentists' world, and manned by a corps of the best dentists in the state, has been set aside by Mr. Forsyth, and only the passage of a bill petitioning for the incorporation of his idea by the legislature stands between the plan and its immediate realization.

The Forsyth Dental infirmary will be the name given to the new institution.

NO SETTLEMENT.

Railroad Shop Men Who Want More Pay Fail in Negotiations.

Chicago, March 14.—Negotiations over the demands for increased wages by 10,000 machinists and shop men employed on twenty-seven western railroad systems, which have been in progress in Chicago for six weeks, have terminated without a settlement. The men demanded an increase of four cents an hour of all classes of machinists and shop men. An effort will be made to negotiate with the roads individually.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

IN QUEST OF SOLITUDE

The Rivals and the Conversation They Overheard.

By FRANK H. SWEET.

[Copyright 1909 by American Press Association.]

As the Norfolk and Western express ran down the grade west of Lynchburg a passenger turned a set but woebegone face to the window.

He was leaving everything behind, as he thought—plans, prosperity, happiness—and taking with him only independence, which was but another name for obstinacy.

A ripple of foliage touched water caught the sun and flashed into his eyes, and his gaze followed it back as the train swept on.

Beyond the glint of water he could see a grassy bank with overhanging trees, and his mind pictured trout waiting in the pool below. Suddenly he rose, and his hand went toward the cock above.

"Why not?" he thought bitterly. "There isn't anything calling me now, and this will be as good a place as any to help me forget."

And what had he to forget? A girl. He had met her at the Golf club and the Racket club and had played games with her as her partner and as her opponent. But, whether the one or the other, she was playing a side game with him. It was a game of hearts, and she knew how to play it well. Whether she would lose her own ace of hearts Lester didn't know. He did not think. He was not even aware that she was playing any game at all. If he fought shy of her she would be very gracious to him. If he talked spoony to her she looked at him in mild wonder. If he persisted she asked him what reason she had given him to think that she was anything but a friend.

"For heaven's sake," he exclaimed gloomily, "don't say that you're going to be a sister to me!"

Whereupon she laughed inwardly. Outwardly she was as sober as a deacon.

And so it came about that the young man got into one of those conditions in which one wishes to get away by oneself and think and form resolutions to drop the whole matter as ridiculous and fret and all the while be drifting into a state bordering on the one side on lunacy and the other on idiocy.

At last he lost his head entirely and wrote her a proposition of marriage. If he had made some other girl a proposition of marriage the one he wanted would have come round. As it was she left town, leaving his letter unanswered. It was then that Lester concluded to take an outing, and the outing he wanted was where no other human being was to be met.

The next station was a half mile away, and when the train stopped he swung off with his grip. Two hours later he was walking up the stream with rod and fly book.

But Fate herself was fishing this day, and her flies were being cast into this very stream of mountain cold and branch shaded water.

As the newcomer made a cast for his third fish the branches ahead crackled and—

"Tom Lester, you here?" the newcomer gasped, his face darkening.

"Seems so," grimly. "But what the dickens brought you, Ed Stevens?"

"The train west two hours ago. I happened to see this stream from the window."

"What!" sarcastically. "And the train west brought me two hours ago! I was in the last car and got off at Lyndhurst on account of the forsaken looks of the place. Any old hole was good enough for me. The agent told me about this stream."

Stevens looked at him curiously.

"I was in the forward car," he said, "and 'any old hole' was uppermost in my mind too. But what's the matter?"

Lester pulled himself together.

"Matter nothing," he answered shortly, "only that Miss Carter left Richmond ten days ago with no message behind—just disappeared. Of course there isn't anything in the city now. Jonesey and Bates have gone down the river to Jamestown to dissipate, and I came up here because I hated the thought of a crowd; that's all."

"I see," gloomily; "you'll fish till she gets back, then"—

He swung on his heel and strode away fiercely for a dozen yards or more, then stopped short and came back, holding out his hand.

"What's the use?" he groaned. "No one is to blame, though every nerve in me is tingling to pitch you into the river. Now give me your hand and let me wish you deserved half the luck you've got. Then you fish up the river while I fish down. But for heaven's sake don't let me catch a glimpse of your face again."

Lester stared, bit his lip angrily and half started to obey, then swung back.

"Oh, pshaw, Stevens," he blurted out, "a fellow can't be a cad! I'm not up here just because Miss Carter left the city. She turned me down flat before she went, as she did Jonesey and Bates. That's what started us out. But we thought it was different with you—at least I did. Jonesey and Bates don't see far."

"Do you mean," incredulously, "that Miss Carter refused you? Why, I thought"—

"Thought nothing!" harshly. "She was just playing with me."

"Playing with all of us apparently. She's what I never suspected her of being a flirt. Now, suppose we drop the subject, and you may as well forget what I said just now. I was laboring under a delusion. We'll fish the stream together if you like."

"With all my heart."

But as they fished on up the stream there was an unconvinced look in Lester's eyes, and more than once as he glanced covertly at his companion he shook his head.

"A kink somewhere," he muttered once to himself. "Margaret Carter isn't that kind of girl wholly. Maybe she encouraged Stevens some, but she didn't me—not any more than she did Jonesey and Bates. We did it all ourselves."

Another half hour's fishing, with scarcely a word spoken, and they entered a thicker growth of shrubbery along the river's bank. In back, among some apple trees, was a rather more pretentious house than its neighbors. It had a hood veranda about it, and there were fine clothes hanging on the line in the yard.

"Wonder if a fellow could get anything to eat up there," said Lester.

"Don't know; looks as if they kept summer boarders."

"What makes you think so?"

"Country girls don't wear lingerie. But I'm surprised that a man in your fix should be hungry."

"I am, all the same."

"Well, so am I, for that matter. What do you say to going up there and cooking these fish?"

"Reckon a beefsteak would be more satisfying than these tiny things. Without the scales and bones there isn't much. Come along."

Meanwhile two girls in white dresses emerged from a rear door of the house the young men had noticed and, screened by trees, had been coming toward them. Suddenly Lester's hand dropped on his companion's shoulder.

"Hush!" he whispered. "Somebody's coming."

There was a soft crackling of leaves, as though under light footsteps; then the crackling ceased, as if the owners of the footsteps had seated themselves upon a stone or log or perhaps were standing still gazing into the water.

Several minutes of silence, with the fishermen waiting for the footsteps to commence again and pass on, then:

"What I can't understand, Margie, is your being able to leave Richmond for this abomination of desolation. Why, there isn't an eligible man within miles."

"Amen to that!" fervently. "It's worth unnumbered journeys from Richmond. But I'm sorry for you, poor cousin, piping for the frivolities that I'm happy to leave. I ought to have been the country cousin and you the city maid."

"If I were I wouldn't leave such a quartet as Lester and company. Were they sighing about you as forlornly as when I visited you last Christmas? Oh, Margie," ecstatically, "has either one of them come to the point yet?"

"Proposing marriage, you mean? Lester and Jonesey and Bates asked me just before I left."

"O-o-oh! And you?"

"Sent them about their business, of course. But don't talk so foolish, Lucy. I'm going back."

"Wait a minute. Did Ed Stevens"—

"Come: I'm going back."

The two almost involuntary listeners, "hypnotized," as Lester afterward expressed it, "by paralyzing amazement that the party of the third part should have dropped down from a clear sky at that particular trout stream," waited until the sounds of the footsteps had died away.

Then they looked at each other. Lester's face had an odd grimace.

"Sure about that dismissal, Stevens?" he snapped.

"About what? Mine? None of your business—or, well, what's the odds? Yes; I felt so sure of her that I had words with her about you fellows being round so much. It didn't seem fair to you—I mean to me."

"Well," said Lester, with a visible effort, "it strikes me you are considerable of a fool, Stevens. I noticed she didn't include your name with ours just now and seemed averse to having her cousin bring it up.

"She didn't have any words with the rest of us—just looked amused and seemed to take it as a joke. It's a pretty good sign when—oh, let go my arm, confound you! I won't say another word to such a stupid idiot. Follow her, if you want to. I'm going down the river fishing."

A CHILD GENIUS.

Ampere Dabbled in Mathematics at the Age of Three.

Ampere, who left his name to the science of electricity, was a child genius. At the age of three he had taught himself to count with the aid of pebbles and had found out for himself a good many of the theories of arithmetic. At this age he became very ill and was for three days denied food. At the end of the fast he was given a biscuit, but instead of eating it he broke it up into pieces to count with, an operation he considered more interesting.

He read everything with avidity. His mind did not run in one channel, and he welcomed every volume that came in his way. When he was ten or twelve years old he went to a library to ask for the works of a certain author. The librarian told him in amusement that the books were in Latin. The boy went home chagrined, for he did not know Latin, being a sickly child and held back from books as far as possible, but after six weeks he appeared again and told the librarian he had learned to read the books now.

Ampere is one of the few child prodigies who seems to have been sickly. He had fits from time to time, while most child wonders appear to have been physically normal in every respect.—Exchange.

Freaks of Language.

A peculiar kind of blundering known as "folk etymology" is responsible for some of the queerest freaks of language. An easy example will make this clear. Our American word "carryall" for a kind of vehicle is not a compound of "carry" and "all," but a slight distortion of the French "carriole," a diminutive car. The change was made in obedience to the universal tendency to assimilate the unknown to the known, to make words mean something by associating them with others which they resemble in sound. Often there is no etymological relation between the words associated, as when sparrowgrass is made out of asparagus. This particular corruption was once in such good colloquial use that Walker, the lexicographer, wrote, "Sparrowgrass is so general that asparagus has an air of stiffness and pedantry."

Looking Backward Fifty Odd Years.

THE FOLLOWING FROM OUR FRIEND, STOCKING,

In Which He Will Try to Carry You Back Forty Years!

Long Beach, Cal., Feb. 7. 1910.

Editor Herald:

With your permission I will invite your attention "Looking Backward Forty Years or More" and go with me down the south side of Chicago street, and note the change from that side from what, according to my recollection, it appeared over 52 years ago.

I also invite any of the Herald readers, who lived in Tecumseh in those early days, to go with me and note whether my memory has slipped any cogs in its workings.

Let us start at the Southeast corner of Chicago and Pearl streets, where some 55 years ago stood a two story frame building called, I believe, The Tecumseh Agricultural Works. I remember the destruction of this building by fire, and the immediate erection of a brick building on the ground. Among the owners and operators of the brick building, I remember Messrs. C. A. Stacy, Burlingame and Yawger.

I presume there were others at different times, who were interested in the work, but the former come readily to my mind. I think that it was at this time that Mrs. Bissell had her home and photograph gallery just across the street, west.

Just east of the brick building was a blacksmith shop, owned by Stephen and Jeptha Beers, and as I remember them, two as fine men as I ever knew. I formed this opinion of them from having worked in their shop and living in their families part of one winter.

Next to the Beers blacksmith shop on the east, with an alley between, was a dwelling known as the "Kneeland House" and which my father rented and which was our home for a number of years. The alley of which I speak, led back to our barn and to the back gate of Samuel Kniblack.

Next east of our house, with a narrow alley or driveway between, was a little frame building in which James Gillman had a harness shop. I remember little Jimmie Gillman was one of my schoolmates. Then came a two story frame building in which my father had a shoe shop. On the second floor was the shop proper, where from six to a dozen men were employed.

How well I remember that old shop where the men worked and the men, many of whose names I remember yet. Among them, John Osborn, a man by the name of Clark, who was a jolly fellow and a great hand to go "bullheading" nights, and I remember that he always knew when and where to go for them, and nearly always had good luck and we were pretty sure to have a nice mess for breakfast the next morning.

There were two young men, (German), Jacob and George, but their other names I do not remember, but I do remember that they drew two fine pencil sketches for me—one of a gentleman and lady on horse-back, and one a battle scene. Both of these showed genuine artistic skill and I kept them for many years.

Mr. Delamatter was another of the workmen whom I remember well. His son William, was another of my schoolmates. How plainly, as I write, I can see them as they were seated on their benches along the nort and west sides of the room. I remember the faces of some whose names I cannot call to mind. I also have a pleasant memory of the many long winter evenings I spent reading aloud to the men while they worked. It was an excellent practice for me.

The next building east was a frame building, in which Mr. Travison had a drug store, over which I think there were living rooms. Next to this building was a brick block extenking east to Railroad street. In this block, on the second floor was a hall called, Metropolitan Hall, I think. On the third floor was the I. O. O. F. hall. I think it was in a room on the second floor of this building that the Herald was printed during one year between 1855 and 1856, when my brother, R. T. Stocking, rented the paper from Wm. Richards.

The lower floor was occupied by different lines of business at different times. At one time there was a grocery store in the west side and later, I think Stroughton Strong had a clothing store and B. J. Bidwell, a dry goods store in the east side.

As I am writing this from memory it will not be very strange if I make mistakes after all these years' absence from Tecumseh.

Now I think I will leave my readers here until the editor informs me that a continuation of the subject will be acceptable.

W. P. Stocking.

WHY SALVES FAIL TO CURE ECZEMA

Scientists are now agreeed that the eczema fiems are lodged not in the outer skin or epidermis, but in the inner skin. Hence, a penetrating liquid is required, not an outward salve that clogs the pores.

We recommended to all eczema patients the standard prescription Oil of Wintergreen as compounded in liquid form known as D. D. D. Prescription. A trial bottle of this D. D. D. Prescription, at only 25c. will instantly relieve the itch. We have sold and recommended this remedy for years, and know of wonderful cures from its use. We recommend it to our patrons. C J. Pulver.

The best working formula to success is, "concentrated energy."

The Optimist cheers, but the pessimist saves his breath for the purpose of letting out a calamity howl later on.

This is the trade-mark which is found on every bottle of the genuine the standard Cod Liver Oil preparation of the world. Nothing equals it to build up the weak and wasted bodies of young and old.

Scott's Emulsion

SHE READ HIS SECRET.

Which Led Him to Express an Opinion on Married Life.

A young man from Kansas City was talking to a young woman from the same town whom he had met by accident at a matinee in New York. The young woman was married. The young man was not.

"You've heard that we're to have a new theater back home?" the woman asked to make conversation.

"Oh, of course," the young man answered. "I get all the news. I get a letter from Kansas City every day."

The woman began to laugh.

"So when you go back home for that vacation you're going to be married?" she mused.

"How did you know that?" the man cried. "We both said we wouldn't tell. And now she's"—

"You told me yourself a few seconds ago, everything but the date," she answered. "You see, no matter how fond your brother may be of you or your uncles or aunts or your mother or father, none of these would send you a letter every day. There's only one person who writes a letter every day, and that's a girl who's engaged to be married. For the rest of my sentence I added two and two."

"You're right," the man mused. "Say, a married man must have to play close to the bases. It must be like living with a mind reader."—Boston Herald.

Touching Verse.

At first she touches up her hair
To see if it's in place,
And then with manner debonair
She touches up her face.
A touch to curls behind her ear,
A touch to silken collar,
And then she's off to hubby, dear—
To touch him for a dollar.

AN EASY VICTORY.

How an Obstinate English Lord Was Outwitted in Naples.

Lord Charles Hamilton used to go about Naples attended by a large, ferocious bulldog. Having decided upon going to Rome, he proceeded to the station and took his place in a first class carriage, the "dawg" taking up a position on a seat opposite his master. The platform inspector, with many gesticulations, declared that the bulldog should not travel in a passenger carriage.

"Very well, then take him out," was Lord Charles' rejoinder.

In vain the official expostulated. He merely reiterated his former reply, a piece of advice it is needless to say which was not followed, and Lord Charles, apparently master of the situation, threw himself back in his seat and calmly lighted a cigar.

But the Italians were not to be outdone, and, quietly detaching the carriage in which the English "milor" was seated, they made up the train with another compartment and started it off.

Lord Charles sat quietly smoking for about a quarter of an hour and then, surprised at the delay, thrust his head out of the window and demanded when the train was going to start. His feelings when the situation was described to him may be imagined.—London Tit-Bits.

A WONDERFUL DREAM.

The Poor Cobbler Who Found Himself Upon a Throne.

It was in the days of Philip the Good, duke of Burgundy, that a cobbler mounted a royal throne. As the duke was traveling one night to Bruges he came upon a man stretched upon the ground sound asleep and bade his attendants carry him to the palace, strip off his rags and place him, robed in fine linen, in his own bed.

When the man awoke next morning he was addressed as "your highness" and astounded to find himself among such rich surroundings. In vain he protested that he was no prince, but a poor cobbler. They asked him what clothing he would wear and at last conducted him, splendidly dressed, to mass in the ducal chapel. Every ceremony was observed throughout the day. The cobbler appeared in public in his new role, was received on all sides by command of the duke with deep respect and ended his brief reign in the palace with a grand supper and ball.

When presently he fell asleep he was reclothed in his rags and taken to the spot where he had been found when this practical joke was conceived. Waking in due time, he returned home and related to his wife what he took to be his wonderful dream

Sacred Nuts of Japan.

Although well known to travelers and collectors of curiosities, the horn nut, or "sacred nut," of Japan was almost wholly unknown to fruit and nut dealers in this country prior to 1888, when a New York commission merchant received the first large consignment. They are called "sacred nuts" because used in certain forms of Japanese worship, where they are placed on the altar and ignited. Being very rich in oil, they burn with a hot, bluish flame and give off a peculiar odor, the fumes being supposed to rise as an acceptable incense to the gods. They grow under water and have a leaf like an American lily, the form of the nut itself being an almost exact counterpart of an Asian buffalo's head, drooping horns and all. In the raw state they are hard and tasteless, but when cooked the flavor resembles that of boiled chestnuts. They are said to retain their edible qualities for upward of twenty years.

Vanished Mountains.

It has been observed that in the neighborhood of great ranges of mountains the force of gravity is slighter than elsewhere, and the explanation is that the earth's crust is less dense beneath the places where it has been heaved up. Assuming this to be a general law, one authority points out that it is possible to discover where ancient mountains now worn away and leveled by the action of the elements once existed, because the density of the underlying rocks has not changed. France, it is thought, possessed one of these vanished ranges, running along the parallel of Bordeaux, for on that line there is a lessening of the force of gravity. A similar phenomenon occurs on the plains of southern Russia.—Harper's Weekly.

We are not in this world to do what we wish, but to be willing to do that which it is our duty to do.—Gounod.

HUNTING THE WALRUS.

Daring of the Eskimos and Their Work With the Harpoon.

With the harpoon as a weapon the hunters left the solid ice to spring lightly from one small piece to another until a pan large enough to hold them was reached far out in the open lake. The pieces over which the passage was made were often so small that they would have sunk under a man's weight had he faltered or hesitated upon them for a moment. It seemed to me that the Eskimos were absolutely reckless in this passage over the broken pieces and took no account of the manner in which they should return. Certainly only a fearless man with a clear eye and nerves of iron could accomplish it.

A large, safe pan once attained well in the midst of the blowing walrus, a stand was taken near its edge, where, with harpoon poised, the hunter waited until a walrus came within striking distance. Then like lightning the weapon was sunk deep into the animal's body, and quick as a flash a harpoon shaft provided with a heavy point of iron was driven firmly into the ice and several turns of line taken around it and held taut by the Eskimo.

This strong line held the walrus in spite of its struggles to free itself, and not an inch was surrendered to it by the Eskimo. As the walrus gradually tired the line was tightened little by little until finally the great animal was well alongside the pan, when it was quickly dispatched with a lance.—Harry Whitney in Outing.

WAITING FOR A WIFE.

One Man Who Thought Twenty Years Was Just a Starter.

"There's romance for you," said little Binks, putting aside his morning paper. "This paper has a story of a college professor who met a beautiful girl twenty years ago, fell in love with her at first sight and then lost sight of her altogether. Now, after waiting for twenty years, he is rewarded by leading her to the altar as his bride. Just think of it, waiting twenty years for a wife!"

"What of it?" asked the genial philosopher. "There's nothing extraordinary about that. I've waited thirty-five years for mine."

"You? Waited thirty-five years? Why, I thought you'd been married that long!" said little Binks.

"I have," said the genial philosopher. "That's how I know how long I've waited. I've waited for her to get her gloves on about three years. I've waited for her to change her hat about four years. I've waited while she said just one last word to the cook for at least five years. I've waited upstairs, I've waited downstairs, I've waited at church, I've waited at the theater, and I have waited in cabs, omnibuses, taxies, motorcars and the Lord knows what else besides. Fact is, Binksy, I've waited so long, so often and so regularly that between you and me that little college professor of yours, with only one wait of twenty years, strikes me as a miserable little piker."—Harper's Weekly.

The Word "Woebegone."

The word "woebegone" is an interesting survival of the far past. "Begone" here represents the past participle of the Anglo-Saxon verb "began," to go around about, a word which has otherwise entirely disappeared from our vocabulary, but which has its analogies in such verbs as "beset" and "begird," in which the prefix "be" represents the modern preposition "by." A woebegon countenance is thus that of a man compassed about with woe, though perhaps it is most generally used in a somewhat slighting manner to imply that the appearance of grief is greater than the circumstances warrant. Thus it has partially undergone the same process of degeneration which has made "maudlin tears"—original tears of penitence from Mary Magdalene—bear a contemptuous meaning.—London Standard

How one man fooled his wife

She had been using her "favorite" baking powder. Wouldn't think of trying anything else, because "mother always used it," or some similar excuse. Hubby said she was prejudiced. He figured if Calumet, the new baking powder, selling at a moderate price, could be so successful, there must be some good in it. So he took a hand, and bought a can of Calumet, emptied the can containing her "favorite" baking powder and filled it with Calumet.

That evening, unsuspecting the trick, Wifey prepared and served some of her famous biscuit—piping hot, temptingly browned and puffed up to airy lightness, they were even more delicious than usual. Hubby, after considerable difficulty, succeeded in convincing her that the basis of the improvement was Calumet Baking Powder. And so an everlasting friend for Calumet was made.

This truthful little incident simply proves that the housewife is oftimes prejudiced against all baking powders except the one she has been using for years. She imagines that no other kind can possibly be as good. This is a mistaken impression. A trial of Calumet will prove that it is purer, more reliable; it has a greater leavening power, than any other baking powder made. And it is moderate in price.

In falling Prof. Wallace slipped through the steps and knocked the other man into the water. The professor struggled valiantly until he released himself and then after he was high, if not dry, he formed a rescuing party and rescued the man in the pool.

At a reception after lunch Sunday evening the students were entertained by Miss Edith Wilson, and others. Miss Wilson needs no better recommendation than the statement that she is a former student of Alma college, Saint Thomas Ont., and is now attending A. M. Straut's Conservatory of music at Detroit.

Miss Wilson sang several numbers, followed by Miss Allen who rendered several instrumental selections and a solo. Miss Blair kindly consented to sing a scotch song, then came Miss DaVries without whose singing the the program would have incomplete It was the best Sunday evening we have had around here for some time.

The above item is taken from the "Weekly Almanian" published by students of Alma college. Alma Michigan, March 1st.

ALMA COLLEGE

Simultaneous with the call of spring comes the call for base ball candidates. For the past several years base ball has been Alma's strongest game. Twice champions of the Intercollegiate in '07 and '08, and losing out in '09 by only one game, the solgan this year is to win back the championship. Seven of the old squad are on deck while 20 or so new men are lined up, all having strong past records. "Sandy" Duncanson, who has helped win more base ball games for Alma than any other man perhaps, is captain this spring. "Sandy" is a consistent trainer and his pitching abilities are as good now, if not better than they were at the close of last season, which is in itself a remarkable fact. Campbell, who has played a star game on the college nine for the past four years, will alternate with Graham behind the bat. Campbell is especially strong as a hitter. One of last year's men, now showing up in fine form is Call. Nervy and quick and capable of good nead work Call makes a crack short. Phillips will be on the initial sack again and looks stronger than ever. Hole, who made a lively record in the box last year, is coming in fine shape.

The find of the season is Burk of Marlette, a sure in fielder and a heavy hitter. Other shining lights among the new men are Brilmeyer a left twirler; King who plays either in or out field; Montieth, a first sacker who comes well recommended; McCloy an out fielder; Whitlock, another infielder and Pohly, a crack fielder.

A second team is soon to be organized, also a class series will be played off sometime next month. Preliminary games have been scheduled with Saginaw and the Mt. Pleasant Indians for the latter part of April.

THE TWO ANGELS.

The following allegory is told among the Turks:

Every man has two guardian angels one on his right shoulder and one on his left. In doing good the angel on the right shoulder notes it down and sets a seal upon it, for what is done is done forever. When evil is committed the angel on the left shoulder writes it down, but he waits until midnight before he seals it. If by that time the man bows his head and says, "Gracious Allah, I have sinned; forgive me!" the angel blots out the fault, but if not he seals it at midnight, and then the angel on the right shoulder weeps.

TECUMSEH BOY

MARRIED IN CALIFORNIA

Fred Goodall Married At San Jose March 2, 1910.

Another quiet but pretty wedding uniting two popular young people of East San Jose occurred on Wednesday evening of this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Roberts, their daughter Jessie May Roberts, becoming the bride of Fred Grant Goodall.

Amid the fragrant odor of violets and lilies and, with the exception of the best man, in the presence of only the immediate families, the Rev. Mr. Towner of the Webster street Methodist Church, pronounced the impressive words that made them husband and wife.

Mr. John Schiele, a friend of the groom, acted as best man, while Miss Nola Roberts, a sister of the bride acted as bridemaid.

The bride is the eldest daughter of the well-known mining man, Mr. S. B. Roberts, aud with the exception of the past threq years, has lived in Nevada. Through her sweet grace and charm of manner she has, during her short stay in this city, made many warm friends, and she will be greatly missed by the circle of young people which she is leaving for her new home in the city.

Mr. Goodall is a well known and highly respected young man of sterling character and has a host of friends in both business and social circles.

The happy couple left on the ten thirty train for San Francisco, where they will make their future home.

SPRING OPENING

webster Anderson Co.

The goods this spring are so beautiful in every line, it is hard to describe them. In white goods and embroideryes one is quite bewildered and find it hard to make a choice, while in the other wash goods the variety and style is equally great. In fancy goods of every style bright colors seem to yredominate.

We noticed among the foulards a fine line of Freuch goods 42 inches wide in the most beautiful designs and colors and those of the narrow width were just as lovely. A fine line of baby irish insertings and flouncings are very attractive, and the line of fancy dress trimmings are most charming. Gilt seems to lend itself to every combination. This early opening has brought out so many lovely things that one has to see them over and over again to appreciate their full value.

In the opening of the Foster Sisters there is a large display in trimmed hats, and here as in dress goods and trimmings, a very rainbow of colors prevail. Many fancy braids in tuscans Neopolitan and Chip lend themselves to the new shapes and styles and the flowers are beautiful.

It would interest anyone to visit this opening and see what the spring of 1910 has in store for us.

VILLAGE ELECTION.

Village election was a very quiet affair yesterday. A small bunch of men here and there on Chicago street, a carriage for the bringing in of those who were too feeble to walk, and the closed saloons were about the only indications that anything out of the ordinary was going on. STOMACH MISERY FOR OVER SIX YEARS.

Think of it! After six years of sour stomach, of gas eructations, of nervousness, during which time every meal lay on his stomach like a lump of lead, a man was restored to perfect health by Mi-o-na stomach tablets.

Read what Mr. Hoffman; landlord of the Webster Hotel, writes.

"I suffered misery and intense pains from stomach trouble for over six years, and all the doctoring that I did or medicines I used were of no avail until about two years ago, when I used a treatment of Mi-o-na. The first few days' treatment helped me greatly and upon using it a while I was made entirely free from any stomach trouble or complaint whatever. Since the cure by Mi-o-na I have regained my weight, I eat and sleep well, am never nervous, and my entire general health is much better."—Max M. Hoffman, Webster, N. Y., Aug., 2, 1909.

Mi-o-na relieves stomach distress in five minutes. It acts like magic. It is guaranteed to cure sour stomach, gas eructations, heartburn, dizziness billiousness and nervousness, or money back. For sale by druggists everywhere and by C. A. Wright for 50 cents a large box.

Mild Laxative for Baby Free

The child of today is the parent of the future, and whether it grows up healthy and strong, or puny and weak, depends upon the intelligence of its parents, for most children are born into the world healthy, but thousands become future weaklings between birth and the age of ten, when the parents are still in greatest control.

The prime cause of trouble is in the stomach. A baby that is digesting its food seldom cries and always looks cheerful; the little child whose stomach is good romps and plays and never whines; the growing child learns well at school and is eager for fun if its head is clear and its stomach light, and that means if it has no constipation.

The best and safest way to cure any irregularity of the stomach and bowels in children is by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a liquid laxative wonderful in its effect as Mrs. John W. Dunham, Apple Creek, O., Mrs. H. L. Cullam, Plainville, Ind., and numerous others can testify who give it to their children with extraordinary results.

A bottle only costs 50 cents or $1 according to the size you want, and even one 50-cent bottle will do a wonderful amount of good in a family. It can be given to any member of the family in constipation, sour stomach, indigestion, torpid liver, dyspepsia, heartburn, sick headache and similar digestive troubles. It never gripes or strangles like pills, tablets, salts and powders, which should not be given to children, women or old folks.

If you have a child or other member of the family who needs, but has never used this grand laxative tonic, send your name and address to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent to your home. In this way you can find out what it will do without personal expense.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

An Awful Eruption

Even the worst boils, ulcers, or fever sores are soon healed by it. Best for Burns, Cuts, Bruises, Sore Lips, Chapped Hands, Chilblains and Piles. It gives instant relief. 25c. at C. A. Before I used Foley's Kidney Pills I was subjected to severe backache and pains in my kidneys with suppression and oftentimes a cloudy voiding. While upon arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. Avoid Cheap and Big Can Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money, but it's not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a very small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as it does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acrid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and often unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same time moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

Cured of severe compound cold and cough by

Vinol

"From Dec. 20, '08, to March 1, '09, I had three bad colds, one on top of the other. I got so weak I could hardly get around. Nothing seemed to help me until I began to take Vinol. The change was magic. Three bottles completely fixed that compound cold and stopped the terrible cough—and what surprises me most, at the same time it cured me of a severe stomach trouble that has bothered me for 20 years. Vinol is certainly a wonderful medicine."

Mr. Toppan is one of Lynn's most prominent and highly respected merchants, whose word is as good as his bond.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal, strengthening, body-building elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron.

No sooner did these artists appear on the stage than the audience felt that they were in their power. We loaned them our hearts and upon their strings they played; our hearts have been touched and swayed and strengthened by the magic power of these wonderful artists. There is expressions every where such as "we want them again." No people ever came to our town that captivated the people in general as did our blind friends. Their music has been an inspiration, and their memory will be a benediction.

A PRETTY HOME WEDDING.

A pretty but quiet home wedding at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wright on East Main street, Dundee, on Thursday morning, March 10, united the lives of their only daughter, Miss Lena M. to Mr. George W. Lee, of Britton, Mich. The ceremony took place at eight o'clock in the presence of the immediate families of the contracting parties and was performed by the Rev. S. S. Main, an intimate friend of the groom. The bride was gowned in a handsome suit of cream colored silk, trimmed with Irish baby lace. Her traveling suit being dove colored broadcloth with white hat. The groom wore a suit of conventional black. An elaborate wedding breakfast at the bride's home succeeded the congratulations, and following the breakfast, which was a dainty well arranged affair, Mr. and Mrs. Lee left on the D. T. & I., for a short wedding trip to Pioneer, Ohio, after which they will be at home to their friends in Britton where they will reside. Mrs. Lee is one of the popular young ladies of Dundee, with a large circle of friends loath to see her leave, and yet the best wishes go with her to her new home. Mr. Lee is equally popular in his home town, where with his father, he conducts an implement store, and holds the office of Village treasurer. Mr. and Mrs. Lee will receive a warm welcome when they return home.

Designed For a Profession.

It was impossible to shake James Martin's self esteem or satisfaction in any way. He had not been the Willowville shoemaker for twenty-eight years to acquire modesty. "I'm glad to hear your boy Willie's got a chance to teach in the college your money put him through," he said loftily to a summer resident as he sewed in the toe of her shoe. "I always thought he'd be a good one for such a job."

"You did?" said the lady indifferently.

"I certainly did," and James Martin looked at her from his seat on the bench as from a pinnacle of wisdom. "I said to a number of folks after one or two conversations with him as to his prospects when he's just through high school—I said, 'Take a young feller like him that can't tell kid from gebble feet without you point out the difference, and best thing for him would be a so-called profession,' I said, 'where he could make use of books, have 'em handy, and not trust his own intellects, little powers nor judgment except in extreme cases, such as would seldom or never occur.'

"That's what I said then, and I say it now, ma'am."—Exchange.

An Intelligent Dog.

A gentleman on a train had a very handsome and intelligent collie in his possession. One day he lost the dog when taking it through the city. The creature in vain searched everywhere for his master and at last, seeing a handsome cab creeping leisurely along, jumped into it and settled himself determinedly on the seat. The driver tried to entice it out, but without success, and a little crowd collected. None dared to tackle the dog, but at last a facetious spectator shouted out, "I say, Bill, darn me if he don't want to be drive home!" "That's it; that's what he wants," they all agreed amid shouts of laughter. Then one examined his collar and found an address clearly engraved upon it. Without further ado cabby jumped up and drove up to this same address, which proved to be the correct one. Needless to say, the cabman was substantially rewarded. The dog had been in the habit of driving home every evening with his master in a hansom and, with doggie reasoning, had decided to follow his usual custom when he had given up hope of finding his master.—London Opinion.

NOT BRYAN,

Does Not Seek Senatorial Nomination, Says Omaha Editor.

Omaha, Neb., March 14.—William J. Bryan will positively not be a candidate for United States senator, nor will he permit the use of his name in any way for that office. Gilbert M. Hitchcock, editor of the Omaha World-Herald, today announces that Mr. Bryan has given him his absolute promise to keep out of the senatorial race in Nebraska.

Mr. Hitchcock is the present congressman from the Omaha district, having been elected three times from a Republican district. His ambition has long been toward the senate.

A STRANGE PLANT.

The Drinking Orchid and Its Fruitless Search For Water.

"The strangest orchids I ever saw," said a naturalist, "live on the edge of a lagoon on the Rio de la Plata—'live,' I say, for surely no animal is more alive than they, and among them I first realized the pathos of a plant's immobility, the cruelty of its roots that bind it forever to one spot.

"These orchids had each at the center or axis a long stem a half inch wide and a quarter inch thick. They grew on dead limbs overhanging the lagoon, and now and then when in need of water they uncoiled their axial stems, lowered them three or four feet to the stream and when enough water had been drunk coiled the stems up again as a tape measure coils up on its spool.

"A strange sight that still and tropical afternoon—a silent, sun drenched lagoon, a scarlet blaze of orchids and here and there those slim, supple tubes descending to drink, satisfying themselves, then coiling up again.

"But what impressed me most was a mass of faded orchids that continually and restlessly let down their tubes in vain, for the stream had fallen, and hence the tubes descended upon dry ground. It was pitiful. The orchids were dying, but with what strength was left to them they lowered and drew up their tubes. They felt feverishly and weakly for the water that wasn't there.

"A sad sight—a sight that brought home the pathos of the immobility of plants!"—Exchange.

BLAKE'S VISIONS.

The Curious Hallucinations of the Post-Painter.

William Blake, the contemporary of Charles Lamb, was a man of visions. Blake dined with prophets and held converse with archangels. A friend of Blake called on the poet-painter "and found him sitting, pencil in hand, drawing a portrait with all the seeming anxiety of a man who is conscious of having a fastidious sitter. He looked and drew and drew and looked, yet no living soul was visible. 'Disturb me not,' said Blake in a whisper. 'I have some one sitting to me.' 'Sitting to you!' exclaimed the astonished visitor. 'Where is he? I see no one.' 'But I see him,' answered Blake haughtily. 'There he is. His name is Lot. You may read of him in the Scriptures. He is sitting for his portrait.'"

Blake's hallucinations, however, rarely took a malignant form. One of his most beautiful visitors was of a fairy funeral. "I was walking alone in my garden," he said. "There was a great stillness among the branches and flowers and more than common sweetness in the air. I heard a low and pleasant sound and knew not whence it came.

"At last I saw the broad leaf of a flower move, and underneath I saw a procession of creatures of the size and color of green and gray grasshoppers, bearing a body laid out on a rose leaf, which they buried with songs and then disappeared. It was a fairy's funeral."—Chicago News.

The Manchus.

The name "Manchuria," to designate the country of the Manchus, is not known to the Chinese, but was invented by French geographers. The Manchus are a tribe of Tartars who gained the ascendency in China in the seventeenth century. Manchu is Chinese for "pure" and was applied by an ancestor of Shun Che, the first Manchu emperor of China, to his dynasty and his people.

The Manchus resemble the Chinese only to the eye of a stranger, just as we think that all Chinese laundrymen look alike. To themselves the Manchus are distinct from Chinamen in appearance, as in race, and one who knows eastern races easily distinguishes them. Most of them are short and good looking, with brown and ruddy skins.—New York Tribune.

Conscious During a Fall.

Every time a workman falls from a forty story building there are people to say, "Well, he probably didn't feel it when he struck." There is little or no basis for this belief that a person is dead or unconscious at the end of a long fall. Our surviving jumpers from Brooklyn bridge prove this, and that a person retains consciousness is shown by the case of the English boy who fell down a pit some 250 feet deep and shouted "Below!" three times on the way down. One theory is that a person falling would not be able to breathe, but a train at sixty miles an hour is moving faster than one would move in falling a hundred or so feet, and no one pretends that one would die of suffocation if he put his head out the train window.—Exchange.

A Way of Explaining It.

Wife—Why, John, just see what a stupid blunder the newspaper has made in its account of our silver wedding! Don't you remember I wrote it out for the reporter that we had spent together twenty-five years of married happiness, and the stupid typesetter has gone and made it twenty-five years of marred happiness. Isn't it awful? Husband—Oh, well, dear, don't be too hard on the poor fellow. Perhaps he's been married twenty-five years himself.—London Tit-Bits.

First and Last Words.

"Why do we pay so much attention to the last words of great men?"

"Possibly because their first words are all alike."—Washington Herald.

DIVORCES ARE ON INCREASE

Prelate Says It Is "America's National Nightmare."

CITES OFFICIAL STATISTICS

Father Doyle Declares They Are Increasing Three Times as Fast as Population—This Nation Outranked Only by Two Others, Algeria and Japan.

Washington, March 14.—The Rev. A. P. Doyle, rector of the Apostolic mission house, preaching before a big congregation in St. Paul's Catholic church here Sunday, characterized divorce as "America's national nightmare," and cited official statistics to show that divorces in this country are increasing relatively three times as fast as the population. "There were nearly a million divorces in the last twenty years," said Father Doyle, "about three times as many as in the previous twenty years. There are about 3,000 courts whose time is principally occupied in disrupting the family life of the country. The American people salary 3,000 dignified judges to blacken the fair names of the people among the nations of the earth.

"There are two other nations that outrank America in this abomination; one is Algeria, under the blight of Mohammedism, and the other is Japan. But among Christian nations we are incomparably the lowest in this regard.

"Make but one comparison—America destroys one family in every fourteen, while in Ireland there is one divorce in every 4,438 marriages. Divorces in this country are increasing three times as fast as the population. Divorce is America's national nightmare. There seems to be no power in the land that will stay the progress of this dreadful scourge."

MINERS' BODIES RECOVERED

Seven Taken From Wilkesbarre Diggings Where Explosion Occurred.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 14.—The bodies of seven mine workers killed by the explosion in the No. 5 colliery of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company Saturday night have been brought to the surface. There were no injured, every man in the zone of the explosion meeting death. Only two men of the gang of nine escaped. They were James Hayes and Martin Williams, who, a few minutes before the explosion, had gone for supplies. Shortly afterward they heard the roar of the explosion and felt the concussion. They rushed to try to give aid to their comrades, but were driven back, weak and faint, by the fire damp. They then gave the alarm.

Rescue gangs made a gallant effort to reach the victims, but they were driven back by the fire damp. It was then realized that this would have to be driven out of the workings in order to get to the men. Air passages were built and hose taken down as a means of carrying a stream of fresh air into the explosion zone at the head of No. 12 plane. So great was the quantity of fire damp, however, that it was six hours after the explosion before it could be dissipated sufficiently to permit the rescuers to reach the top of the plane. The bodies of the seven men were found lying along the plane. They had been suffocated by the fire damp. Most of the men were lying on their faces, with their hands covering their faces as if to shut out the fire damp.

Six widows and twenty-four children are mourning the victims today. All but one of the seven were married.

General Manager Charles Huber is unable to account for the accident.

Justice Swayze Will Hand Down Decision Against Packers.

Jersey City, March 14.—Supreme Court Justice Swayze says that he will hand down his decision on the application of Prosecutor of the Pleas Garvan for an order to compel the National Packing company, Swift & Co., Armour & Co. and Morris & Co. to produce certain books and records for inspection by the grand jury in its cold storage investigation.

Prosecutor Garvan has received a letter from Attorney General Wickersham in reply to his communication requesting Mr. Wickersham to do all in his power to secure, if possible, the indictment by the federal grand jury in Chicago of beef packers as individuals. The prosecutor feels that much more could be accomplished by this course than by the indictment of packing companies as corporations.

Gay Scenes at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, March 14.—Nearly 100,000 visitors and residents turned out on the board walk at noon Sunday in the warm sunshine that sent the register of the thermometers up into the 80s. Leaders of fashion and business were in the throng which filled the board walk for blocks. A few bathers appeared, but they found the surf still chilly and refused to linger in the breakers.

POSTPONE ACTION,

House Sub-Committee Will Wait For Peary's Proofs.

Washington, March 10.—By an almost unanimous vote, the sub-committee of the house committee on naval affairs, which has been considering the bills proposing to reward Civil Engineer Peary for his discovery of the pole, has decided to postpone all action until Mr. Peary submitted his original records and proofs to congress for public scrutiny.

The resolution to this effect, which was adopted by the sub-committee, was offered by Representative Bates (Pa.), who has heretofore been considered a supporter of the explorer.

Doubt that Peary reached the North Pole was expressed by Representative Robert Bruce Macon (Ark.) during the hearing.

It is odd, isn't it, that in a world full of lost buttons one never by any chance comes upon a lost buttonhole?

KILLS HIS TWO SONS.

Despondent New York Real Estate Man Then Kills Himself.

New York, March 14.—Herman H. Moritz, a retired real estate man, shot and killed his two sons last night, set fire to his home at 2210 Aqueduct avenue and then committed suicide. He had been in a melancholy state of mind for some time.

Mrs. Moritz, the wife of the real estate man, went to Englewood in the afternoon to call on friends. Mr. Moritz was left alone with his two sons, George, seventeen, and Walter, fourteen years old.

George was a student in the Bordentown Military academy. He had been suffering from rheumatism and was at his home undergoing treatment. Walter was a pupil in the public schools.

MINERS WILL QUIT,

Springfield, Ill., March 14.—Duncan McDonald, president of the Mine Workers of Illinois, has confirmed the operators' statement that there will be a suspension of mining in this state April 1, when the agreement between the operators and miners expires.

Technically speaking, it will not be either a strike or a lockout. There will simply be no contract between the men and the mine owners, and work will cease until a new agreement is reached.

The shutdown will not be distasteful to the operators, as large stocks are now on hand at all the principal centers.

Americans are expected to be among the best customers of German airship passenger lines which are to be established in Germany during the coming year. His Critic.

What astonishes the visiting Briton most is the manner in which every kind of immigrant to the United States adapts himself to the prevailing ideas about Englishmen. In the course of conversation with the noble Italian who condescends to brighten shoes the visitor informed the bootblack that he was an Englishman—and Englishmen had a great respect for Italians and had entertained Garibaldi in grand style.

No Encouragement.

The family had stood the long strain of Uncle Hobart's illness well, but the peculiarities of the physician chosen by Uncle Hobart himself had been, to say the least, trying. "Do you really think he will recover, Dr. Shaw?" asked the oldest sister of the invalid, who had borne with his vagaries patiently for years.

"I know how you feel, with Thanksgiving coming on, and all," said the doctor, peering at her from under his shaggy eyebrows, "but it's too soon to tell. He may get well, and then again he may not. I can't encourage you yet either way."—Youth's Companion.

JOY MILLER HAS BEEN LOCATED

Father Says He Is In Walla Walla, Washington.

Detroit, Mich., March 17.—Joy Miller, Michigan football player, who disappeared shortly after charges were made against him by the university faculty in regard to his studies, has been heard from. He is working for a fruit company in Walla Walla, Wash., and was found by an official who had heard of his disappearance.

His father, James G. Miller of Detroit, has received a disjointed letter from the boy, which the father feels bears evidence of the mental troubles from which Joy has been suffering. Mr. Miller plans to leave shortly to meet him in the west.

"The boy is so confused that he doesn't remember anything at all about Detroit," says Mr. Miller. "My boy didn't even know enough to address the letter to me. He is just gradually regaining his senses. He is in the best of health physically, and we hope that he will eventually regain full control of his faculties."

GOVERNMENT STARTS SUIT

Anaconda Copper Mining Company Claims It Cannot Prevent Fumes From Destroying Vegetation and Timber and Ruining Soil—Big Plant May Be Obliged to Close.

Helena, Mont., March 17.—Asserting that the operation of the Washoe smelter at Anaconda is destroying vegetation and timber, erroding the soil and injuring approximately 1,000 square miles of country in the counties of Jefferson, Silver Bow, Deer Lodge, Powell and Granite, suit has been filed in the United States district court here on behalf of the United States against the Anaconda Copper Mining company for an injunction to close down the plant, which is the largest copper smelter in the world.

Ligon Johnson of New York and Washington, special assistant to the attorney general, who arrived here from San Francisco, bringing the complaint with him, explained that it was not the purpose of the government to put the company out of business, but simply to compel it to install appliances which will render harmless the noxious fumes.

Washington, March 17.—The federal government, in its suit against the Anaconda Copper Mining company to compel that company to operate its great smelting plant in such a manner as to end widespread destruction of the surrounding national forests, issues this statement, through the department of justice:

"This suit was not filed until every possible friendly means for securing a change of smelter methods had been exhausted. Efforts to secure a cessation of the smelter injuries were under way some time before the close of President Roosevelt's administration, and the companies were then notified that suit would be brought unless definite action was taken by the smelters to stop the wholesale destruction of the forests resulting from the distribution of sulphur and arsenic fumes over a wide area of country. Instead of attempting to remedy the situation the companies represented to President Roosevelt that they could operate their plants in no other manner than that in vogue and that it was better for the government to submit to the injury to its national forests than to close the smelter plant."

JUDGE SIGNS ORDER.

Packers May Yet Have to Produce Books.

Trenton, N. J., March 17.—Justice Swayze has signed an order requiring the National Packing company, Armour & Co., Swift & Co. and Morris & Co. to produce all books containing the minutes of their stockholders and directors at their registered offices in this state on Friday, this week. Under the order the companies are required to keep these books in New Jersey until July 1.

As soon as the order had been signed, Samuel Untermyer of New York and William D. Edwards of Jersey City, representing the indicted packers, asked Justice Swayze to allow a writ of certiorari carrying up to the supreme court for review his action in signing the order. Justice Swayze told the counsel it would be nonsense with all the members of the court in Trenton for him to sign the order.

Mr. Untermyer applied to a branch court, consisting of Justices Reed, Minturn and Trenchard, and secured a rule to show cause why a writ of certiorari should not be allowed. This was made returnable next Wednesday, Justice Reed suggesting that at that time counsel should be prepared to present the case on its merits.

HIGHEST COURT HAS THE CASE

Standard Oil's Fate In Hands of Supreme Court.

FINAL ARGUMENTS ARE MADE

Wickersham Declares Practice of Rebating as Carried on by Standard Was Most Iniquitous In History of World—Company's Attorney Argues Lower Court Had No Jurisdiction.

Washington, March 17.—After listening for three days to the arguments of counsel, the supreme court has taken under advisement the appeal of the Standard Oil company from the decree of the federal court at St. Louis ordering the dissolution of the corporation because of its violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

That this, together with the dissolution suit against the American Tobacco company, argued a few weeks ago, is the most important case ever before the court was the opinion expressed in the address of Attorney General Wickersham.

Because of its importance, the court enlarged the time for arguments from the four hours usually allotted to eleven and one-quarter hours, the time being equally divided between the attorneys for the Standard and the government. David L. Watson of Pittsburg, for the Standard, began his argument Tuesday, shortly before the adjournment, and concluded Wednesday afternoon. He devoted himself largely to the legal side of the case, contending that the company was not a violator of the anti-trust law, and that it was never intended to prevent the combinations of capital which were necessary under modern business conditions.

Attorney General Wickersham began the concluding argument for the government shortly before 1 o'clock. He spoke until the recess and finished his address at 3:15. Referring to the methods of the Standard in compelling rebates from the great railroads, Mr. Wickersham said it was no wonder that with all those advantages the company prospered, but he denounced them as the most iniquitous ever practiced in the history of the world. The present form of the company under its reorganization of 1889, he declared, was made with the purpose of evading the consequences of the Sherman act.

It was, he said, a combination in restraint of trade, if there ever was one, and was also the most tremendous combination the world had ever seen.

John G. Johnson of Philadelphia closed the case for the Standard company, arguing that the lower court had no jurisdiction of the case.

BIG C NFERENCE FRIDAY.

Attempt Will Then Be Made to Settle Western Railroad Strike Question.

Chicago, March 17.—Opposition to the disciplinary and seniority demands of the Brotherhood of Railroad Firemen and Enginemen by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has developed. The engineers, according to an official, are ready to go on record as opposing the firemen's organization on the two questions which have resulted in United States mediation in the railroad dispute.

Chairman Knapp of the interstate commerce commission and Charles P. Neill, United States commissioner of labor, are expected to reach here today. The first meeting between representatives of the firemen and the railroads and the United States commissioners will take place Friday.

Hogs Too High to Kill.

Chicago, March 17.—Hog killing at the Union stock-yards is at the lowest notch in over a quarter of a century, and prices rule the highest, at around $11 a hundred, with the prospect of a further raise. Owing to this unprecedented scarcity of hogs, several packers have shut down their big slaughtering pens rather than pay the heavy prices for swine.

YOUNG MAN IS IN JAIL

Was It Bride of Arthur Best That Drowned?

HIS STORIES DO NOT JIBE

Conflicts When It Comes to Details Concerning His Taking Leave of Her After Visiting Her In Detroit Woman, Seen Floating Down River, Drowned When Aid Was Near.

Detroit, Mich., March 17.—With the last despairing cries of a drowning woman, supposed to have been his bride of but one month, ringing in his ears, Arthur J. Best of Comber, Ont., nineteen years old, leaned over the rail of the ferry boat Promise last Saturday night and watched the icy waters close over her forever.

Best is now under arrest at Central police station, his incarceration having been ordered by Captain McDonnell, after the young man had told the police a story that they say bears close investigation.

Last Saturday night, about 12:30 o'clock, a woman came floating down the river toward Woodward avenue, clinging to a piece of floating ice. Just when aid was near at hand from men on the ferry, she lost her hold on the ice and drowned.

"I saw that woman slip from the ice," Best said to Captain McDonnell. "I saw her. I was on the ferry boat. It couldn't have been my wife. Why, I had left her just a little while before."

Captain Feels Sure.

Captain McDonnell, however, is convinced that she was Best's bride and that Best knows more about her disappearance than he is telling now.

He told the captain that he met his wife at the depot Saturday night. It had been his custom to come and see her every Saturday night, he said. They walked around awhile and parted about 11 o'clock, he to take the ferry and she to take a Brush street car. She was staying here with a sister.

Best told Captain McDonnell he did not put her on a Brush street car. He told the girl's relatives that he did put her on a Brush street car. It is a peculiar circumstance that there was no reason why the girl should take a Brush street car. She lived with her brother, Alfred Frankfurth, at 291 Lawton avenue. To go there one does not take a Brush car.

There are many points about Best's story that are puzzling to the police. They want to know why Best should have lingered in Comber when he knew his wife had disappeared after his supposed parting from her at Woodward avenue and Atwater street. They want to know also why Best tells two stories about the Brush street car incident. They want to know more about Best's attitude to his young wife.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. BAKING ECONOMY.

By the use of perfect baking powder the housewife can derive as much economy as from any other article used in baking and cooking. In selecting a baking powder, therefore, care should be exercised to purchase one that retains its original strength and always remains the same, thus making the food sweet and wholesome, and producing sufficient leavening gas to make the baking light.

Very little of this leavening gas is produced by the cheap baking powders, making it necessary to use double the quantity ordinarily required to secure good results.

You cannot experiment every time you make a cake or biscuits, or test the strength of your baking powder to find out how much of it you should use; yet with most baking powders you should do this, for they are put together so carelessly they are never uniform, the quality and strength varying with each can purchased.

Calumet Baking Powder is made of chemically pure ingredients of tested strength. Experienced chemists put it up. The proportion of the different materials remain always the same. Sealed in air-tight cans, Calumet Baking Powder does not alter in strength and is not affected by atmospheric changes.

In using Calumet you are bound to have uniform bread, cake or biscuits, as Calumet does not contain any cheap, useless or adulterating ingredients so commonly used to increase the weight. Further, it produces pure, wholesome food and is a baking powder of rare merit; therefore, is recommended by leading physicians and chemists. It complies with all pure food laws, both STATE and NATIONAL. The goods are moderate in price, and any lady purchasing Calumet from her grocer, if not satisfied with it, can return it and have her money refunded.

MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION

Brewers Organization Is Shown in Its True Light

At a large temperance meeting in Adrian Sunday night John E. Carr, of the County Local Option Committee, made a statement which shows the so called "Merchants, Manufacturers and Taxpayers Association" in its true light.

A large number of good business men have been induced to look favorably on the organization but it is here shown to be orgauized in the interests of the brewing and allied interests, and the only "business" it seeks to foster are those represented in the following list of its officers:

"After thorough investigation we find that the United States Merchants and Manufacturer's Association is an aggregation of "disinterested" malsters, beer pumpmakers, beer bottle stopper makers, bar supplies, etc., financed by the brewers and wholesale liquor dealers and saloonkeepers.

WHO THE OFFICERS ARE

Harry Rickel of Detroit is president. His predecessor was George W. Oberman of New York. Oberman was formerly president of the Monarch Seal company, manufacturers of tin stoppers for beer bottles. The company failed about two years ago. Mr. Oberman was also at one time connected with the Kirk Stopper company, once of New York, later of Jersey City. The Kirk Stopper Co. also failed in business. Perhaps Mr. Oberman's lack of ability to keep those two companies afloat accounts for his retirement as president of the Manufacturer's and Merchant's association. It requires real ability of the big kind to make a liquor dealers' association succeed as a benovolent aid society.

Harry Rickel succeeded Mr. Oberman as president. Rickel is secretary treasurer and manager for H W. Rickel & Co., malsters of Detroit. He occasionally appears before meetings of various kinds with addresses relative to the harmlessness of the liquor traffic. There seems to be some advertising value in church membership when one goes out to tell the people the advantages of buying beer instead of home comforts.

Carl F. Burger is a vice president of this interesting "manufacturers" association. Burger is secretary and treasurer of Burger Brothers company of Cincinnatti, dealers in hops, malt and brewers' supplies.

Alfred E. Fisher of Milwaukee is another vice president. What could a brewers' organization be, even in disguise, without Milwaukee? Fisher of Milwaukee is secretary treasurer of the Hantke Byewers' School and Laboratories.

Cooper Lyon is secretary and treasurer of the association. Mr. Lyon is a part of the Bishop & Babcock company of beer pumps. The Bishop & Babcock company has its home offices in New York and Chicago. Mr. Lyon is located in the Chicago office."

IN MEMORIAM

Willard M. Crittenden, a life-long resident of northern Lenawee died at his home near Tipton Sunday, March 6, aged 67. He was born near Tecumseh where his early years were passed and was educated at the Tecumseh high school, which he left to enlist as a volunteer in the 18th Michigan Infantry, when the Civil War broke out. Soon after his return from the war, he moved to Tipton with his father who purchased the farm that has been the family homestead ever since

In 1866, he married Carrie Morehouse, by whom he had three children; Clifford D., Claude M., and Blanche, all of whom are married.

He was endowed with a more than ordinary voice and will be remembered for his sweet singing. He was ready to use this talent to soothe the sorrows of the afflicted and to assist at all public and private entertainments. He had sung in the Congregational church choir at Tipton for over forty years and had been deacon there for a long time. He was a firm beliver in the Christian faith and his life was filled with deeds of loving kindness.

A good man has gone but his influence will live after him, and he will be mourned by a large circle of friends and relatives. He was loved and respected most by those who knew him best, and his departure will be keenly felt by the entire community where he lived and did the best he could.

At the close of the regular services, which were conducted by Rev. Grove his old G. A. R. comrades performed their usual impressive service. He was laid to rest just across the way from the church in which he worshipped for so many years.

JOHN E BIRD.

His many friends will be pleased to hear of the appointment of John E. Bird as Judge of the Supreme Court.

He is well known in Lenawee county. He received his education in Adrian High School and Adrian college. Was admitted to the bar in 1888, and has been in active service ever since. Has been prosecuting attorney for the county, and has held the office of Attorney General for three terms. Is a good republican and will be a good man for his new position.

W. C. T. U. ELECTION.

Last Friday was the annual election of officers for the W. C. T. U. and resulted in the following officers being elected for the coming year:

President—Mrs. G. W. Jackson.
Rec. Sec.—Almelda M. Russell.
Cor. Sec.—Mrs. Anna B. Smith.
Treas.—Mrs. Mary C. Wood.

The Union now has a paid up membership of 24. Two new members joined at our last meeting.

LEWIS CASS CLUB EATS.

Also Listen to Speeches by Notables at Lansing.

Lansing, Mich., March 17.—About 400 people assembled at the Masonic temple last night to attend the banquet of the Lewis Cass club, the Democratic organization of Ingham county. Ex-Governor Joseph W. Folk of Missouri, Lawton T. Hemans of Mason, National Committeeman E. O. Wood of Flint and State Chairman E. C. Shields of Howell were the speakers.

The banquet was a brilliant affair, and it was noticeable that a number of Republicans were in attendance. J. F. Hammell, ex-mayor of Lansing, acted as toastmaster. Introducing Hemans, the first speaker, he said it was a pleasure to have the next governor of Michigan seated on his right, and the next president on his left.

The banquet came to a close at a late hour, Ex-Governor Folk being one of the last speakers.

Misnamed.

Wife—I say, do you know the girl in the flat above us won a piano at the charity bazaar lottery yesterday?

Husband—A piano? Great Scott! And that's what they call a charity bazaar!—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Unconscious Self Criticism.

Mr. X., the subeditor, was asked to write an article on superstition and imbecility.

When the article was printed the opening sentence was found to be as follows: "That imbecility is not on the wane perusal of the following lines will amply demonstrate."—Paris Figaro.

Dies of Football Injuries.

Dallas, Tex., March 17.—John A. Hart of Grapevine, Tex., quarterback of the football team of Simmons college of Alllene, Tex., is dead in the Baptist Memorial sanitarium, in Dallas, from injuries received to his head in a football game last October.

The Admirable Korean.

With all his languor, the Korean is a particularly agreeable person. He is the polished gentleman in the setting of the savage. He is one of nature's cheerful spirits—a Mark Tapley who goes whistling through life despite the multiplication of his misfortunes. He is the victim of his own good nature and is content to sit unconcernedly on his boundary fence and witness the robbery of his estates. It is a pleasure to visit Korea if only to meet the Korean himself, says the Japan Weekly Chronicle, for he is the happy-go-lucky, good tempered simpleton who unconsciously contributes to the pleasure of others.

Subdued.

Hotel Guest (to pretty waiter girl)—This steak is not very good. Pretty Waiter Girl—Teaorcoffee? Guest—This steak—it's tough and— Pretty Waiter Girl (to another pretty waiter girl)—Charley was asking after you this morning, Jen. (To guest)—Did you say teaorcoffee? Guest (gloomily)—Coffee.—New York Sun.

He Failed to See It.

Mr. Closecoyne (during his wife's reception)—She gives 'em lights; she gives 'em music; she gives 'em food, flowers, champagne, and that's what she calls receiving!—Puck.

Shocked.

Ella—Bella married an octogenarian. Stella—I don't think the girl ought to change her religion for a man.—Exchange.

The Chinese Way.

In its wars with England and France in 1859-60 China was easily conquered and forced to a humiliating peace. The Pekin Gazette, the official organ of the government, however, reported the following concerning that treaty of peace:

"As the western barbarians have admitted their wrongs and humbly solicited for peace, the emperor in his infinite goodness has granted their prayer and, moreover, has made them a present of a large sum of money (indemnity of war) to enable them to begin an honest life, so that they may not again be driven to murder and rapine."

A Joker Among Birds.

The bluejay is a practical joker. It is his habit to conceal himself in a mass of leaves near the spot where small birds are accustomed to gather and when they are enjoying themselves in their own fashion to suddenly frighten them almost to death by screaming out like a hawk. Of course they scatter in every direction, and when they do so the mischievous rascal gives vent to a cackle that sounds very much like a laugh.

The Real Test.

"My husband is the kindest man—lets baby break his watch or pull his mustache and never scolds it at all."

"But did the baby ever get hold of one of his pipes? That's the real test."—Buffalo Express.

The Work of Time.

"And to think," sighed the man who was trying to find a belt which was long enough to be buckled around him, "that the boys at school used to call me Skinny!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

He Gave It.

The Girl (rather weary, at 11:30 p. m.)—I don't know a thing about baseball. The Beau—Let me explain it to you. The Girl—Very well; give me an illustration of a home run.—Life.

TERRIBLE CROUP

One Who Knows Recommends A Remedy To Anxious Mothers.

My little boy, who is four years old has suffered a lot with croup. On several occasions we thought he was gone.

After trying all the old time remedies and most of the new, I came home one night at midnight, and my wife said, "The boy has the croup again—suppose you get a bottle of Hyomei. "More junk," I said, "but we will circulate our money so they all will get some."

I hastened to an all night drug store and brought it home. In five minutes he was breathing easier. In fifteen minutes he was sound asleep. It broke the croup so quickly it scared me.

Anyone wishing to cure the croup of a child I hope will give Hyomei a trial.

Wishing you the best of success which you surely deserve, I remain,
Jos. E. Clark, 204 6th St. S. E., Washington, D. C. Oct. 7, 1909.

Hyomei is a remarkabl effective remedy in case of croup and it should be in every home where there is a croupy child, Full instructions how to cure croup comes with each outfit.

Complete Hyomei outfit including inhaler costs $1.00 at druggists everywhere and at C. A. Wright's.

Mild Laxative for Baby Free

The child of today is the parent of the future, and whether it grows up healthy and strong, or puny and weak, depends upon the intelligence of its parents, for most children are born into the world healthy, but thousands become future weaklings between birth and the age of ten, when the parents are still in greatest control.

The prime cause of trouble is in the stomach. A baby that is digesting its food seldom cries and always looks cheerful; the little child whose stomach is good romps and plays and never whines; the growing child learns well at school and is eager for fun if its head is clear and its stomach light, and that means if it has no constipation.

The best and safest way to cure any irregularity of the stomach and bowels in children is by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a liquid laxative wonderful in its effect as Mrs. John W. Dunham, Apple Creek, O., Mrs. H. L. Cullam, Hainville, Ind., and numerous others can testify who give it to their children with extraordinary results.

A bottle only costs 50 cents or $1 according to the size you want, and even one 50-cent bottle will do a wonderful amount of good in a family. It can be given to any member of the family in constipation, sour stomach, indigestion, torpid liver, dyspepsia, heartburn, sick headache and similar digestive troubles. It never gripes or strangles like pills, tablets, salts and powders, which should not be given to children, women or old folks.

If you have a child or other member of the family who needs, but has never used this grand laxative tonic, send your name and address to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent to your home. In this way you can find out what it will do without personal expense.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

Avoid Cheap and Big Can Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation; they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money, but it's not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a very small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as it does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acrid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and often unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same time moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

MILLIONS OF LIVES LOST

An Awful Toll Collected by Consumption. Many Unnecessary Deaths from this Disease.

If people could only understand that systemic catarrh is an internal disease that external applications cannot cure, they would not need to be warned so often about this malady, which when neglected, paves the way oftentimes for consumption, at the cost of millions of lives every year. Yet catarrh may be cured, if the right treatment is employed.

Catarrh is caused by a general diseased state of the system which leads commonly to annoying and perhaps serious local conditions, which may prove a fertile breeding ground for germs of consumption. External remedies give but temporary ease.

The only way to successfully treat catarrh is by employing a medicine which is absorbed and carried by the blood to all parts of the system, so that the mucous membrane or internal lining of the body is toned up and made capable of resisting the infection of consumption and other diseases.

We have a remedy prepared from the prescription of a physician who for thirty years studied and made catarrh a specialty, and whose record was a patient restored to health in every case where his treatment was followed as prescribed. That remedy is Rexall Mucu-Tone. We are so positive that it will completely overcome catarrh in all its various forms, whether acute or chronic, that we promise to return every penny paid us for the medicine in every case where it fails or for any reason does not satisfy the user.

We want you to try Rexall Mucu-Tone on our recommendation and guarantee. We are right here where you live, and you do not contract any obligation or risk when you try Rexall Mucu-Tone on our guarantee. We have Rexall Mucu-Tone in two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Very often the taking of one 50-cent bottle is sufficient to make a marked impression upon the case. Of course in chronic cases a longer treatment is necessary. The average in such instances is three $1.00 bottles. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Rochester only at our store,—The Rexall Store The B. J. Pulver Drug Store, Tecumseh.

How Long Your Nails Grow.

The growth of an average finger nail is about one thirty-second of an inch a week, or nearly one and one-half inches in a year, so those aristocratic Chinese who proudly exhibit nails six to eight inches in length must have refrained from cutting them at least four to six years. Finger nails grow faster in the summer than in winter. The nail on the middle finger grows faster than any of the others, and that of the thumb is slowest in growth. The nails of the right hand grow faster than those of the left. A nail is supposed to reach its full growth in about four and a half months, and at this rate a man seventy years old would have renewed his nails 262 times. On each finger he would have grown nine feet of nail, or on all his fingers and thumbs no less than ninety feet of nail.—St Louis Republic.

STEEL CORPORATION GREATER THAN EVER

United States Shows Big Increase During Past Year.

New York, March 17.—The report of the United States Steel corporation for 1909 shows the largest surplus and working capital in the history of the company. The surplus is $151,354,528, after deductions of dividends of $25,219,677 on preferred stock and $20,332,100 on common and after payment of $29,247,850 to the sinking fund and the appropriation of $18,200,000 for betterments, new construction and reserve for mining royalties.

Chairman Gary says:

"The total production of finished products for sale in 1909 equalled about 75 per cent of the normal maximum productive capacity of the properties. The prices received in 1909 were less than those of the preceding year.

"The gross sales and earnings for 1909 were $646,382,251, compared with $482,307,840 in 1908. The net earnings last year were $131,491,413, compared with $91,847,710 in 1908, an increase of $39,643,703. The corporation had $58,421,113 cash on hand at the close of last year, an increase of $8,973,060 over the preceding year.

"The average number of employes in service in 1909 was 195,500."

SORRY HE WENT THERE.

Peary Regrets Atlanta's Attitude Toward Him.

Atlanta, March 17.—"If I had known I was persona non-grata," said Commander Peary, on his arrival here Wednesday, "I would not have permitted any engagements to be made for me in Atlanta, or elsewhere in Georgia. I have read Gov. Brown's remarks as reported in the papers. Doubtless, he is within his prerogatives in expressing his views of me and my work. As a visitor in Atlanta I do not care to discuss the matter further. If I had known that sort of feeling prevailed I certainly would not have come here."

The attitude of the public is not very friendly to Peary. Both the Atlana Constitution and the Journal carry editorials criticising Peary for not submitting proofs to congress and saying Peary has only himself to blame for the criticism he is receiving.

Willing to Strike.

Albany, N. Y., March 17.—Announcement has been made that practically every conductor and trainman employed by the Delaware and Hudson company was ready to strike if their grand lodge officers gave the orders. Committees representing the Brotherhood of Railroad Conductors and Trainmen held secret sessions Wednesday. Further conferences will be held with officers of the company.

KING EDWARD ILL.

His Indisposition Alarms Court and Government Circles.

London, March 17.—There is increasing uneasiness in court and government circles over unfavorable news from Biarritz regarding the health of King Edward. Early dispatches said the king was suffering only from a cold, but it develops that he has also had severe chills since going to the French resort. His illness would probably be considered trifling in a younger man, but owing to the king's age his indispositions always create alarm.

Kills Self on Shipboard.

New York, March 17.—A second suicide aboard a transatlantic liner within a few days was reported Wednesday on the arrival of the White Star Oceanic. Willis F. Davies, an elderly business man of San Francisco, who was apparently despondent because of ill-health, shot himself in his stateroom, on Friday afternoon, when the ship was two days out from Queenstown.

PENROSE COMING.

Believed Settlement of Philadelphia Strike Will Follow.

Philadelphia, March 17.—Boies Penrose, United States senator from Pennsylvania, is expected to arrive here today, and it is predicted that announcement will be made for the settlement of the car strike a few hours after the senator gets in town.

The Rapid Transit company and the striking car men have quit calling names and have begun to talk reasonably of each other. There are only two points between them, neither wants the public to believe that it took the initiative. The real stumbling block as developed is whether all of the men shall be taken back.

Lansing, Mich., March 17.—Charles A. Towne was greeted by a crowded house here Tuesday night. He spoke against prohibition.

SQUARING THE CIRCLE.

An Ancient Problem That Has Turned Many Brains Dizzy.

The oldest of problems is that of squaring the circle—i. e., of telling the precise length of the side of a square whose area will equal the area of a given circle.

The first attempt we know of was made 500 years before the exodus of the Jews. Since at least 1300 B. C. Chinese brains have turned dizzy over it. The oldest mathematical book in the world—written about 2000 B. C., by Ahmes, scribe to an Egyptian king, and now resting in the British museum—pretends to solve it, but it doesn't. Our old friend Euclid prudently avoids the subject.

Books have been written to prove that it is impossible, others to prove the impossibility of proving its impossibility, others again to prove the impossibility of proving its possibility.

One scientist, a professor of Zurich, adopted some fifty years ago a rather original method of tackling the problem. He divided the floor of a great loft into thousands of small squares and spent his days in solemnly throwing needles about and noting the number of times they fell clear of the chalk lines, but it did not help him much.

The important ratio which would settle the question has been carried to 500 places of decimals. And still it is not exact. If you have a taste for sums you can start and carry it to 600 and see what happens.

At any rate, you will soon find your hair getting grayer.—London Answers.

A HUMILIATED MONKEY.

The Crippled Old Despot Was Made to Feel His Mighty Fall.

The following amusing story is told by J. L. Kipling in his "Man and Beast in India" of the humiliation of a monkey whom physical disablement prevented from maintaining his despotic position as leading male of the troop:

"One morning there came a monkey chieftain, weak and limping, having evidently been worsted in a severe fight with another of his own kind. One hand hung powerless, his face and eyes bore terrible traces of battle, and he hirpled slowly along with a pathetic air of suffering, supporting himself on the shoulder of a female—a wife, the only member of his clan that had remained faithful to him after his defeat.

"We threw them bread and raisins, and the wounded warrior carefully stowed the greater part away in his cheek pouch. The faithful wife, seeing her opportunity, holding fast his one sound hand and opening his mouth, deftly scooped out the store of raisins. Then she sat and ate them very calmly at a safe distance, while he mowed and chattered in impotent rage.

"He knew that without her help he could not reach home and was fain to wait with what patience he might till the raisins were finished. This was probably her first chance of disobedience or of self assertion in her whole life, and I am afraid she thoroughly enjoyed it."

Playful Monkeys.

Apes and gorillas are usually vicious and resentful and less addicted to playful tricks than the common monkey. Indeed, the monkey, as we all know, is a trickster both in his wild and domestic state. In their native forests monkeys spend hours in swinging from the branches of trees, suspended by their tails, and chattering and grimacing with evident signs of delight. Trimboldt mentions seeing over a hundred so employed in a South American forest.

HIS TAPESTRIES.

The Gems the Collector Bought and Showed to the Expert.

That the collector falls into a trap occasionally is shown by an episode which we recall. An enthusiastic purchaser of old tapestries was once offered in Paris a masterpiece executed on a large scale and held at a large figure. Consulting an expert, he was urged to buy, but the sum demanded seemed to him at the moment a good deal to invest in a tapestry, and he let the opportunity pass.

A year or so later he met his friend, the expert aforesaid, and asked him to come to his house to look at two tapestries he had just secured. "They are smaller," he said, "than the one you advised me to buy and which, to tell the truth, I have always regretted, and I paid twice as much for them as I was asked to pay for that glorious piece, but while it seemed a fearful lot of money to spend I simply couldn't resist the chance."

The specialist in tapestries walked into the gallery of the proud collector and gazed upon his prizes. He gazed for a time in silence and then had to be very guarded in his speech of congratulation. He was looking at the original tapestry, which his friend could have had for half the money, now neatly cut in two and supplied with borders. He never revealed to the victim of this ingenious little game what precisely had happened.—New York Tribune.

A TRYING ORDEAL.

The Fattening Process of a Marriageable Girl in Tunis.

The marriageable girl in Tunis has a trying ordeal to go through after her betrothal to the man not of her choice, but whose choice she is. She has to be fattened to the required size before the ceremony can take place.

As soon as the betrothal takes place she is taken to a room and there cooped up till the fattening process is concluded. Silver shackles are fastened round her wrists and ankles, and the task of her parents and future husband is to increase her bulk till her wrists and ankles fill up the shackles. If the husband is a widower or has "discharged" his first wife the girl has the shackles of the first spouse placed on her, and she must fill them out.

It takes a long time to do this as a rule, and sometimes it cannot be accomplished in spite of all efforts. It is then open to the future husband to cry off the bargain or waive the condition. In the case of a bachelor he takes care to see that the bracelets and anklets are not too large—that is, if he is fond of the girl—but if he is being forced into the marriage by his parents he is a great stickler for custom. Stout girls are the more quickly snapped up in Tunis.—St. James' Gazette.

Wrong Diagnosis.

Mrs. Slingchin put her head over the fence and thus addressed her neighbor, who was hanging out her washing:

"A family has moved into the empty house across the way, Mrs. Mangle."

"Yes, I know."

"Did you notice the furniture?"

"Not particularly."

"Two loads, and I wouldn't give a sovereign a load for it. Carpets? I wouldn't put 'em down in my kitchen. And the children! I won't allow mine to associate with 'em. And the mother! She looks as if she had never known a day's happiness. The father drinks, I expect. Too bad that such people should come into this neighborhood. I wonder who they are."

"I know 'em."

"Do you? Well, I declare! Who are they?"

"The mother is my sister, and the father is the superintendent of the Sunday school."

"Oh—ah—um! Do you think it's going to rain?"

The First Tooth Festival.

Among the Syrians there is no such thing as giving a party in celebration of the first anniversary of the birth of a child. The celebration is held when the baby cuts its first tooth. On such an occasion friends of the parents are not invited to the house to eat cakes and listen to a phonograph, but whatever sweets may be prepared for the occasion are sent by the parents to the homes of the friends whom they wish to inform of the news. The friends later visit the parents and tender their congratulations. The dishes in which the sanabich is carried to neighbors and friends are not returned immediately. Sometimes it is a week or even two before they are back in their customary places in the family cupboard. When they are returned they are not empty.

Particular.

"Waiter, bring me a finger bowl?"

"There's your finger bowl, sir."

"But that's only one."

"And do you want two, sir?"

"Certainly I want two. You don't suppose I'm going to wash my left hand in the bowl I just washed my right hand in, do you?"—Yonkers Statesman.

As Ever.

"When Cholly Van Rox proposed to me he was too rattled to say a word."

"Then how did you know he was proposing?"

"Oh, my dear, his money did all the talking!"—Cleveland Leader.

HE SWALLOWED PARIS GREEN

Ann Arbor Merchant Succeeds In Killing Self.

TRIED TO TAKE IT DRY

Daughter Found Him in Woodshed, Trying to Take the Poison, and Gave the Alarm—Would Not Take Doctor's Antidote, and Death Ensued Twelve Hours Later.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 21.—Harry G. Ludholz, a merchant in lower town, is dead as the result of taking paris green with suicidal intent early Sunday morning. Brooding over financial troubles is said to have been the cause of his act.

Mr. Ludholz arose Sunday morning about 5:30 and left the house. About an hour later a daughter, who was in the cellar, heard him enter the house and then go to woodshed. According to Ludholtz's story, he went to the woodshed to take the poison. He swallowed one spoonful of the paris green dry and attempted to take another, but could not swallow it and went into the kitchen for some water. Then it was that the daughter came upon her father and discovered what he had done. Grabbing the poison from him, she ran screaming from the house. Neighbors telephoned for doctors, and their efforts were handicapped by Ludholz, who refused to take their antidotes, claiming he had swallowed but little of the poison. Ludholz died twelve hours later, after suffering terrible agony.

Mrs. Ludholz claims that her husband had invested money heavily in mining stocks that had turned out badly and says he had been terribly despondent for months.

Besides the widow, two daughters, one fifteen and one ten years old, survive.

Girl Killed Under Train.

Traverse City, Mich., March 21.—Miss Lulu Grattopp, twenty-one years old, was instantly killed here by a G. R. & I. switch engine. Three cars went over the young woman's body. Miss Grattopp was employed at the Oval Wood Dish company. The railroad track is about eight feet from the door of the factory, and, never looking up, Miss Grattopp darted from the door right in front of three cars which were being pushed into the yards.

Family Just Escapes Asphyxiation.

Pontiac, Mich., March 21.—Attorney E. E. Blakeslee, his wife and five children were saved from asphyxiation when Mrs. Blakeslee awakened with sufficient presence of mind to drag herself to a window and throw it open. All were seriously sick, and one child was injured by falling downstairs. A misplaced damper in a coal stove was the cause of gas escaping into the house.

Once Taught at Flint.

Washington, March 21.—James Denison, for fifty years principal of the Kendall School For the Deaf, is dead at George Washington university hospital, after a protracted series of illnesses. He became partly deaf at the age of nine and was educated at the Hartford (Conn.) School For the Deaf. He was for a brief time a teacher at Flint, Mich.

Merciful.

Mrs. A.—I do love lobsters, but I never have them at home because it seems so inhuman to kill them by putting them in a kettle of boiling water. Mrs. B.—Gracious! I never put them that way—it would be too horrible. I always put them on in cold water and let them come to a boil.—Boston Transcript.

I'd never have to beg—
The dentist pulls your aching teeth,
And then he pulls your leg!

SAGINAW MAN CLAIMS FORTUNE

Says He Is Distant Relative of "Man of Mystery."

Springfield, Mass., March 21.—The latest claimant to a part in the million dollar estate of George Nelson Dunn, otherwise known as George D. Nelson, the late "man of mystery" of this city, is Herman Cameron, a poor young man living in Saginaw, Mich.

Heretofore the claimants have claimed to be sons, nephews or other near relatives, but this young man from Saginaw bases his claim to a share in the estate on the assertion that Mr. Nelson was his great-great uncle by the marriage of Mr. Nelson and the young man's grandfather's sister.

HARRY HAMILTON DIES.

Head of Rapid Motor & Vehicle Company Victim of Bright's Disease.

Pontiac, Mich., March 21.—Harry G. Hamilton, director in the Generals Motors company and general manager of the Rapid Motor & Vehicle company of Pontiac, is dead at his home here of Bright's disease. Mr. Hamilton became seriously ill a week ago.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon at the residence.

Mr. Hamilton was born in Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 3, 1861.

Lansing, Mich., March 21.—Robert Campbell, for four years cashier in the state treasury department, has been appointed state bank examiner by Commissioner Zimmerman.

SAILS JUNE 10.

Rossevelt Will Arrive Home During Week Following.

Assousan, Upper Egypt, March 21.—The steamer on which Colonel Roosevelt and the members of his party are traveling reached Shallal early Sunday morning. After breakfast the party, aboard a launch, went to the Assousan dam. Colonel Roosevelt was enthusiastic over its conception and execution. He fired innumerable questions at Engineer McCorquedale, who chaperoned the party, and discussed the irrigation problem with keen interest. The party, on reboarding the launch, steamed through the first cataract to Assousan, where they landed and took lunch at the Cataract hotel.

Here Colonel Roosevelt met the first considerable number of his fellow citizens since he entered Africa. There was quite a crowd of American tourists gathered to greet him. The Americans said that Colonel Roosevelt looked markedly younger than he did a year ago.

There was another river trip after lunch, which gave the party an opportunity to visit some of the rock tombs, which are numerous hereabouts. The heat was extreme, but Colonel Roosevelt did not seem to suffer. The launch steamed to Shallal after the tombs were inspected, and there the party slept last night, starting for Luzor his morning.

It is the present intention of Colonel Roosevelt to sail from Southampton for New York, on the steamer Kaiserin Augusta, on June 10.

What Was Missing.

Dr. Watson (Ian Maclaren) used to tell a story about his trip to the Holy Land, to which he had been looking forward for a number of years with pleasurable anticipation.

As he was nearing the center of historic Palestine he met an American who was making all haste to get away. After such greetings as two English speaking men meeting in a foreign country might exchange the American asked Dr. Watson where he was going.

"To Jerusalem," was the reply.

"Jerusalem!" exclaimed the American in tones of unfeigned disgust. "You don't want to go there. I've just come away. It's a slow town. Why, there isn't a single daily newspaper in the whole place!"

SENATOR DANIEL.

Veteran Politician, Whose Illness May Prove Fatal.

CONDITION ABOUT SAME.

Senator Daniel Lies, Very Ill, at Daytona, Fla.

Daytona, Fla., March 21.—Physicians attending United States Senator J. W. Daniels, who is ill here, have issued the following bulletin:

"Senator Daniel's condition shows but slight variation. His periods of consciousness have been rather satisfactory than previously. There has been slight movement of the paralyzed arm. Pulse, respiration and nourishment continue satisfactory. Kidneys and bowels are in good condition, also temperature."

SAVED FROM DROWNING.

Cuba's Vice President's Son and Companion Have Narrow Escapes.

Annapolis, March 21.—Through the bravery of Beaufort E. Kirwan, a hospital apprentice at the United States Naval hospital, here, and Peter Foy, a private of marines, and the prompt action of members of the marine guard, Francisco Zayas, son of the vice president of the republic of Cuba, and a companion, Manuel Marcer, both students of St. John's college, were saved from drowning Sunday afternoon. The young men were paddling a canoe and overturned about fifty yards from shore.

Marcer held on to the craft, but Zayas, who is very heavy, was not able to secure a hold and was barely able to keep above the water. He was just at the end of his strength when Kirwan and Foy jumped into the water and swam to him. Both rendered what assistance they could, Kirwan securing a hold by the hair and keeping his head above the water until a boat could be brought and both taken into it.

PROTOCOL SIGNED.

Long Standing Boundary Dispute Between Costa Rica and Panama to Be Settled.

Washington, March 21.—The long standing boundary dispute between Panama and Costa Rica has been settled by the signing of a protocol referring the arbitration of the question to M. W. Fuller, chief justice of the supreme court of the United States. The protocol was signed last week at Secretary of State Knox's residence by representatives of Panama and Costa Rica.

The boundary question has been pending since Colombia and Central America became independent of Spain. Colombia contended that its western boundary on the isthmus should be drawn from the Golfo Dulce to Cape Gracias Adios. Central America held that the old boundary of Guatemala went eastward as far as the Rio Chirliqui, including the Bocas bay region.

"INSURGENTS" BACK IN LINE

Will Not Attempt to Frame Up New Rules Committee.

SOUGHT ONLY A PRINCIPAL

Regulars Receive Assurance That Two Members of Old Committee Will Be Acceptable to New—Friends and "Insurgents" Indignant Because Cannon Called Latter Cowards.

Washington, March 21.—The "insurgents" as a body are not inclined to fight for especial representation on the reorganized committee on rules which comes about as a result of Saturday's upheaval. There is a general understanding among them at present that they will enter the Republican caucus, to be within a few days, as individuals, and not as member of the "insurgent" band.

This moderation of the "insurgents" after their notable victory over the Cannon organization is working strongly for a better understanding among the Republican forces in Washington. The organization leaders themselves, with a possible exception of Speaker Cannon, are inclined to be conciliatory, and they are saying today that no attempt will be made to nominate a committee objectionable to the radicals.

The regulars have already received assurance from many of the "insurgents" that Dalzell (Pa.) and Smith (Ia.), who served with Speaker Cannon on the old committee, will be acceptable on the new. The regulars have made no attempt as yet to get together on the remaining four members to be nominated by the Republican caucus, but it is pretty generally admitted that Representative McCall (Mass.) will be one of them. The Pacific coast states will get one representative on the committee, and the choice seems to lie now among Ellis and Hawley (Ore.) and Kahn (Cal.). For the remaining two places the names of Stevens (Minn.) and Denby (Mich.) are being mentioned more frequently than any others.

There is method in the decision of the "insurgents" not to force a fight on the personnel question. They want their struggle in the house to go before the country as one that has been waged entirely on principle, and they fear that any attempt to carry the struggle on in regard to the personnel of the committee would afford ground for charges that their efforts had been inspired by motives of personal ambition.

Democrats Agreed.

The Democrats have just about agreed on the minority representation of four for the new committee. It is predicted that the caucus will name Champ Clark (Mo.), the minority leader; Fitzgerald (N. Y.), Underwood (Ala.) and Hammond (Minn.).

All of the "insurgents" resent the remarks made by Speaker Cannon at a dinner of the Illinois society Saturday night. Cannon called them cowards because they had refused to vote him out of office, and abused them in other ways. The "insurgents" were not the only ones who criticized Mr. Cannon for his remarks. The speaker's own friends declare that it was impolitic in him, and some of them intimated that if Mr. Cannon expected to go into the party caucus and assume an attitude of open hostility to the radicals he would be much mistaken. These Cannon supporters acknowledge frankly that they were beaten in the struggle in the house and assume the attitude that the "insurgents" henceforth must be treated in a conciliatory way. The distinct impression was conveyed by several of Mr. Cannon's supporters that his hand in the party caucus would no longer carry the weight that it once did.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. How He Got Even

With a Girl Who Refused Him.

By SUSAN YOUNG PORTER

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Your action toward me throughout this affair has been dishonorable," said Shotwell.

"I see no occasion for you to make any such charge. You proposed to me, and I asked for time in which to make a decision. Meanwhile I was studying you. Had you not accused me of treating you dishonorably I should not have given you the result of my observations. As it is, I will say that I have discovered traits in your character that I do not fancy."

"This is simply an invention to cover your duplicity. You know very well that you encouraged me, then threw me overboard."

With that he withdrew, inwardly vowing revenge. The girl, instead of considering a man who would take the position he had taken contemptible, was crushed at his charge, weeping hot, bitter tears.

Shotwell was suffering from what he considered unfair treatment and in no mood to look at the matter dispassionately. Had he done so he would have recognized the fact that no contract had been made between them. Miss Gwynne had not accepted him, and even if she had and afterward dismissed him he should have remembered that it is a woman's privilege to change her mind. But in this particular case the lady had refused him for reason. Beyond all this no man should take revenge on a woman for refusing him, whether for or without cause.

The rejected lover's path led across a district of the city where the lowest part of the community lived, or, rather, existed, for in such crowded tenements as are occupied by the poorer classes people cannot be said to live. Coming toward him he saw a man whose face and bearing belied his torn and dirty clothing.

"That fellow resembles Belding, the multimillionaire, for all the world," mused Shotwell. Then, suddenly caught by an idea, he turned and called:

"Hi! You there!"

The man faced about. Shotwell beckoned to him, and the two stood together on the sidewalk, when Shotwell began a series of questions.

"Have you ever been told you look like any one?"

"Not that I remember."

"Want a job?"

"What kind of a job?"

"Well, there's a bit of personation in it."

"What do you mean by that?"

"I know a young lady who I think wouldn't mind marrying a fortune. You very much resemble Howard Belding, the millionaire. How would you like to try it?"

The man looked Shotwell square in the face, but Shotwell could not tell how his proposition was received. For a moment he thought he saw a flash of indignation, but the first remark that came from the ragged man reassured him.

"I couldn't play a game like that in these rags."

"I'll dress you up like a gentleman."

"But how would I pass myself off for one with such ignorance as mine?"

"Oh, you've seen better days! I can tell that. Something has broken you down. What was it—liquor?"

"No; I don't drink."

"Well, do you accept?"

The man appeared to be thinking. Presently he asked:

"What is there in it if I don't succeed in marrying the girl?"

"I'll give you $500, besides what you need for spending money."

"All right. When shall I begin?"

Shotwell gave him an address at which he was to call at a certain hour the next day. When he appeared Shotwell had a wardrobe ready for him, and when properly dressed he certainly looked like a refined and intelligent man. Shotwell told him that Howard Belding, whom he was to personate, had inherited an estate of several million dollars, which he was giving to charity.

Having coached his man, Shotwell sent him away to form the acquaintance of Miss Gwynne. He instructed his decoy so far as possible as to the lady's idiosyncrasies, recommending him not to go too fast with her, and that he might not want for funds he instructed him to draw on his employer for reasonable amounts. The decoy was to report regularly through the mail.

Shotwell waited in vain for a report. A week passed, and he became impatient; two weeks, and he began to think he had been duped. The man had doubtless taken the good clothes and the money furnished him and decamped. But why no drafts came Shotwell could not imagine.

Unfortunately for Shotwell, he had broken with Miss Gwynne and therefore had no occasion to visit her. He knew several of her intimate friends and would have asked them if she were receiving attentions from any one, but he was himself known to have been attentive to Miss Gwynne, and any such questions from him would of course be impertinent. He went so far as to hang about the Gwynne domicile at hours when a visitor might be expected to call, but discovered nothing. He listened to all the gossip he heard, hoping he might hear something pertaining to the case. He was disappointed in all his attempts to learn if the man he had employed to do his work was doing it.

Finally he made up his mind that if a man resembling Mr. Howard Belding were paying marked attention to Miss Gwynne it would be known and he (Shotwell) would certainly hear of it. There was but one inference—the man had either gone off without even an attempt to make Miss Gwynne's acquaintance or he had betrayed his employer with a view to making capital with the young lady. Either of these propositions was sufficient to throw Shotwell into a fever. He fretted and worried and pried till at last he could stand the strain no longer and concluded to get away from it by making a trip abroad.

He came to this conclusion not only because he wished to get the matter off his mind, but because, having somewhat cooled, he felt that he had risked the respect of all good men and women who knew him. If the matter should be known he would rather be where he could not be called upon to face it. Perhaps by the time he returned, if any trouble came of it, it would have blown over. These considerations, however, did not seem to him of great importance, for he had little doubt that the fellow he had hired to personate Belding had simply pocketed the perquisites and left the job to take care of itself.

Three months after Shotwell had laid his plan for revenge upon Miss Gwynne he went to Europe. There after a time the matter he had come away to get rid of ceased to occupy the greater part of his attention, and eventually he thanked heaven that the man he had employed to revenge him had gone off without doing so. He was feeling much relieved when in Venice he met an acquaintance from America, who said to him, among other things:

"I hear your old flame, Virginia Gwynne, is to marry the rich young philanthropist Howard Belding."

Shotwell was astonished, terror stricken; that so long after he had repented of his meanness the damage had yet been done. He questioned his informer as to when the wedding was expected to come off, but received no satisfaction.

One desire now took possession of Shotwell—to reach America before Virginia Gwynne should full irrevocably into the trap he himself had laid for her. Making for Genoa, he found a steamer about to sail for New York. For two weeks he paced the deck, looking out on the same watery waste trying to stifle his impatience. They were the longest two weeks he had ever known. But at last the voyage was ended, and he hastened ashore, his first object being to learn if Miss Gwynne had married.

The wedding had not yet taken place.

Shotwell wrote his former love a note telling her that he had something of great importance to her welfare to communicate to her and asking for an interview. He received a brief reply appointing the next afternoon at 5 o'clock at her house. The clock was striking the hour when he mounted the steps leading up to her home and rang the bell. He was all of a tremor when he entered the drawing room, where he had had many happy tete-atetes with Miss Gwynne and where he had parted with her in anger. Presently she came in and stood with her hand resting on the back of a chair. He rose and stammered:

"Thank heaven I am not too late."

"For what?"

"To save you from marrying a man whom you suppose to be a gentleman, but who is really"—

"Heavens!"

"I am here to make a confession. On the day I left you I felt much aggrieved. I did that which, I admit, was unworthy of me. Seeing a man in rags who was the perfect image of Howard Belding, I persuaded him to personate that person to win your heart. But I never intended that the matter should go so far. And, not hearing from my man, in my cooler moments I congratulated myself that he had disappeared without taking any action."

Miss Gwynne stood for a moment as if trying to recover from the blow; then with one word, "Wait!" she left the room. In a moment Shotwell heard the ring of a telephone bell. He remained where he was for some minutes, when the front door opened and Miss Gwynne entered with her fiance.

"We've met again," said the man who had come in to Shotwell. "What have you to say against me?"

Shotwell was astonished at the man's assurance.

"You know what you are and of the bargain I made with you," said Shotwell.

"I know of the bargain most assuredly. As to myself, I am Howard Belding. When you met me that day I was endeavoring incog. to find out the needs of the poor. I was succoring. I could best do this in the costume of that region—rags. I have to thank you for being the means of my winning a lovely girl. I have never told her till now of her own escape, by making known your contemptible conduct. Will you oblige me by vacating these premises?"

Shotwell stood for a moment looking at the man, wondering if there could be truth in his assertion.

"Prove what you say," he said presently.

The man turned to his affianced. "Do you require proof?" he asked.

"Proof? No. If that man said you were Mr. Belding I would require proof that you were what he said you were."

"Then, sir, I see no reason for you to interest yourself further in our affairs."

No Satisfying Her.

"Women are hard to understand."

"Think so?"

"Yes; I told her she carried her age well, and she was offended."

"You don't say!"

"Yes, and then I told her she didn't carry it well, and she wouldn't speak."

The Moral Phase of Local Option Prohibition.

The regulated saloon creates a higher moral condition than local prohibition. The effects of prohibition upon the inhabitants of cities, towns and communities where it has had a fair trial, has been demoralizing. Sixty-four years of prohibition in the state of Maine and thirty years in the state of Kansas has clearly demonstrated its evil effects upon the inhabitants of those states.

In this article it is our desire to give the readers the true facts in reference to prohibition of the liquor traffic and therefore we will take twenty towns in Maine and Kansas with a population of 378,000 (the state of Kansas being the second oldest prohibition state) and we find that the proportion of arrests for drunkenness is one for every forty-two inhabitants. Let us make a comparison with 20 towns in Wisconsin, a license state with a total approximate population of over 600,000. (Nearly double the population of the prohibition towns) in Maine and Kansas, and we find a proportion of one arrest to every 98 inhabitants.

Can you not determine from this condition that in Wisconsin where the liquor traffic is licensed and regulated there is 50 per cent less drunkenness than there is in the prohibition states of Maine and Kansas, and there is therefore a higher moral standard among the citizens of Wisconsin?

Let us make another comparison for the purpose of further determining whether or not the licensed saloon and regulated sale and use of liquor is more moral than the prohibition of its sale and use. Portland, Maine, has a population of 56,000; Milwaukee, Wisconsin has a population of 354,000 with licensed saloon. In 1907 Portland, Maine, had within eleven as many arrests for drunkenness as had the city of Milwaukee with six times the population and licensed saloon. Bangor, Maine, has a population of 22,000. Logansport, Ind., has a population of 20,000. In 1907, Bangor, Maine, had 1,236 arrests for drunkenness, while Logansport, Ind., with her licensed saloons, up until April 10th, 1908, for the year just previous thereto had 116 arrests for drunkenness.

To conclusively prove to you that the position taken by the members of the anti-saloon league and prohibitionist is fallacious, we will take the United States census report from 1880 to 1890. From 1880 to 1890, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont had prohibition. In 1880 the death rate from the use of alcohol in the three states above mentioned averaged 1.57 per cent. for every 100,000 of their inhabitants, while in 1900, after 20 years of attempted enforcement of prohibition, the death rate in the three above named states from the use of alcohol, had increased to 2.40 per cent. for every 100,000 of their population, a net increase of drunkenness in these three states of fifty-three per cent.

It may be that some member of the anti-saloon league will argue that the conditions as above shown mean nothing, that the condition in reference to drunkenness and the excessive use of alcohol and the death rate therefrom, might exist in some of the other license states to a greater degree than in the prohibition states. Of course then, our position would be untenable. If any person should take that position we will turn to the census report for the same period of time and turn to the states of Alabama, Indiana, Kentucky, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina, Oregon, Texas, Tennessee and West Virginia, states that had licensed saloons from 1880 to 1900 the average of death rate from alcohol in the last above named states which we have mentioned, was 2.47 per cent. for every 100,000 inhabitants while 20 years later or in 1900, there was a decrease of the death rate from the use of alcohol of 1.63 per cent, for every 100,000 population. A net decrease in the licensed states of 84 per cent.

Again let us take the individual licensed state and put it against the prohibition state of Maine and for example we will take the state of Minnesota, or rather 49 counties in the state of Minnesota with an equal area and population with that of Maine. In 1907, there were in county jails in Minnesota 1,489 persons. In prohibition Maine, 5,769. Drunks in Minnesota jail, 605. Drunks in Maine jail, 2,934. Blind piggers in Minnesota jail 25. Blind piggers in Maine jail 441. Women in Minnesota jails 49. Women in Maine jails 247. Minnesota paid prison board of $18,030. Maine paid prison board to the amount of $50,000. License revenue in the 49 counties in Minnesota for the year 1907, $730,000. License revenue for the year 1907, in Maine, NONE.

These 49 counties in Minnesota to which we have already referred include the first, second, third and seventh Congressional Districts and four counties in the ninth. With the above facts which we have given you staring the members of the anti-saloon league and prohibitionists in the face, will they still have the gall to tell you that prohibition does prohibit the sale and use of intoxicating liquor and raises the moral standard of the citizenship?

Let us go farther into the proposition of convincing the mind that prohibitory laws are nugatory. Over 600,000 of the population of Maine is native born. In Minnesota there are as many, 600,000 foreign born citizens. In Maine through the medium of its schools and its pulpits, together with the prohibitory laws of its statute books, it has had the benefit of 64 years of anti-liquor education. Minnesota with its enormous foreign born population has imported from the mother country ideas, materially in conflict with any restriction covering its appetite for, and pleasure had, in the use of so-called intoxicants, and yet its proportion of intemperance and the evils accredited to the same are greatly under that of prohibition Maine.

The above facts and figures have been taken from the United States census reports and the records of the police courts in the states above mentioned and all can be verified. When we find these conditions in prohibition territory as above described, is there any sane, sensible, reasonable man, who can be led to believe that prohibition will solve the liquor problem?

A Merited Rebuke.

At the age of eighty-six Mme. Reynolds still found much zest in life, and, having retained all her faculties, she felt that a few of the physical disabilities of her age were of small account and portended nothing. Her nephew Thomas was a man of much worth, but of a certain restlessness of speech, which always roused the ire of his aunt.

A few weeks before the old lady's eighty-seventh birthday Thomas, who had been overweighted with business cares for years, started on a trip round the world which was to consume two years.

"I've come to say goodby," he announced when he appeared at his aunt's house in a town fifty miles distant from his home. "I'm starting round the world next week, and as I'm to be gone two years and perhaps longer I thought I might not ever—well, you understand, I wanted to be sure to see you once more."

The old lady leaned forward, fixing him with her beadlike eyes.

"Thomas," she said imperatively, "do you mean to tell me the doctor doesn't think you'll live to get back?"

Perpetual Motion.

Little Jimmy had arrived at the questioning age. He had just made an inquiry concerning perpetual motion of his father.

"No," said his father; "nobody has ever discovered perpetual motion yet."

But Jimmy was not quite satisfied. "What is perpetual motion like, dad?" he asked next.

His father thought a moment. "Why, it's pretty hard to say, Jimmy," he replied, "but it's something that keeps going and going forever. Here is an illustration. I once saw a woman in a train who had put on her gloves. She then tried to button her right hand glove, but she found that she must take off her left hand glove to do so. She took it off and buttoned the right hand glove. Then she saw that in order to button her left hand glove she must take off her right hand glove, which she did. Then she put on her left hand glove, buttoned it and put on the right hand one again. But she couldn't button her right hand glove with her left hand glove on, so she took off— That, Jimmy," he said after a pause for breath, "is what perpetual motion would be like if you could get it."

LOCAL OPTION!

Notice of Election.

Notice is hereby given that an election will be held in the township of Tecumseh, County of Lenawee, State of Michigan, on Monday the 4th day of April, 1910, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified electors the question "Should the Manufacture of Liquors and the Liquor Traffic be prohibited in said county?"

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss:

At a regular session of the Board of Supervisors of Lenawee County, continued and held at the Court House in the City of Adrian, on Thursday, October 14, 1910, the following resolution and order was unanimously adopted:

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Whereas, Thirty-six petitions from as many townships, precincts and wards of Lenawee County, praying that the question "Should the manufacture of liquors and the liquor traffic be prohibited in said County," be submitted to the qualified electors thereof, have been laid before the Board of Supervisors at the present session of the Board by the County Clerk of said County, which petitions have been duly examined and upon which examination it appears that such petitions have been signed by more than one-third of the qualified electors of said County as shown by the returns and canvass of the general election for state officers held in said County in November, 1908.

The Board finds that the highest vote for any State officer in said County at the said last general election was eleven thousand seven hundred and sixty-seven (11,767) votes, and that said petitions have been signed by five thousand five hundred and sixty-seven (5,567) electors of said County. Therefore,

Resolved, And it is hereby ordered, that the question whether the manufacture of liquors and the liquor traffic be prohibited in Lenawee county under the provisions of Act No. 207 of the Public Acts of 1889 and the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, be submitted to the qualified electors of said county at the next general election of township officers in the several townships, villages and cities of Lenawee County, to be held on the first Monday in April, 1910, to ascertain whether or not it is the will of the electors of the county that the manufacture of liquors and the liquor traffic should be prohibited within the limits of said county.

JOHN K. BINNS,
Chairman.

FRED A. ACKER,
Secretary.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto subscribed my name and affixed the seal of the Circuit Court of said County, at the City of Adrian, in said County, (L S) this 26th day of October, 1909.

FRED A. ACKER,
County Clerk.

The polls of said election will be held at the Council building in the Township of Tecumseh, and will be open at 7 o'clock a. m., and will remain open until 5 o'clock p. m., of said day of election, unless the Board of Elector Inspectors shall in their discretion adjourn the polls at 12 o'clock noon, for one hour.

BASE BALL

It is reported that there will be an overplus of ball players when the trying-out time comes. The eight clubs have, with new recruits and veterans in reserve, about 300 players so there is like to be some 200 disappointed ones.

April 20th is the date when the players are to report and after that, baseball will mean a whole lot to those interested.

The many friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Howard, assembled at their home last Thursday and by their united effort placed their large poultry house into position again. It is thought to be the largest and best equipped building of the kind in the state, and to have it demolished, meant hundreds of dollars as well as inconvenience to Mr. Howard. We are glad to know that it is all right again and hope the numerous chick-a-biddies that will come to take shelter there, will appreciate their privilege.

ALMA COLLEGE

In keeping with the trend of the times, the Superintendents and Principals of the schools and colleges located within a radius of 75 miles of Alma and Mt. Pleasant, have organized themselves into an association known as the Central Michigan Round Table. At their first meeting, held last December at Mt. Pleasant, President C. T. Grawn of Mt. Pleasant was elected president, Dr. August F. Bruske, Alma, vice president and Supt. Geo. A. McGee of Cadillac, secretary and treasurer This association will meet for the second time on April 9th at Alma. An excellent program has been prepared and indications are the meeting will be a splendid success.

College doesn't seem like college any more since the college bell has disappeared. President—Robert VonThurn.
Vice president—S. H. Haun.
Secretary—C. Donald Call.
Treasurer—D. Royal Blaske.

STEINERS CRUCIFIXION

This beautiful cantata was given at St. Peters church on Palm Sunday to a full house. The choir was assisted by a number from the Clinton choir. Mr. Dickinson and Mr. Slater rendered the various solos in a very pleasing manner and the chorus was exceptionally fine. Stomach Dead, Man Still Lives

People who suffer from sour stomach, fermentation of food, distress after eating and indigestion, and seek relief in large chunks of artificial digestors, are killing their stomachs by inaction just as surely as the victim of morphine is deadening and injuring beyond repair every nerve in his body.

What the stomach of every sufferer from indigestion needs is a good prescription that will build up his stomach, put strength, energy and elasticity into it, and make it sturdy enough to digest a hearty meal without artificial aid.

The best prescription for indigestion ever written is sold by druggists everywhere and by C. A. Wright & Son., and is rigidly guaranteed to build up the stomach and cure indigestion, or money back.

This prescription is named Mi-o-na, and is sold in small tablet form in large boxes, for only 50 cents. Remember the name, Mi-o-na stomach tablets. They never fail. They contain ingredients that give quick relief (other than strong digesters), but they are compounded for the purpose of making the stomach strong and energetic enough to do its work without the aid of harmful drugs.

DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS.

Notice is hereby given that the Democratic electors of the township of Tecumseh will meet in caucus at the Council building in the Village of Tecumseh, on the 25th day of March 1910, at 7 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates for the various township offices, to be supported at the coming election to be held on April 4, 1910, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the meeting.

How to Cure Your Piles

Due Often To Carelessness or Neglect and Stubborn to Cure

"The knife is not always necessary to cure even desperate cases of piles," says a physician whose years and experience make him an authority. "Indeed," he says further: "I have known some very aggravated cases of long standing cured by a simple home remedy that restored to the bowels easy natural daily movements."

And the doctor is right, as many letters from cured people in various parts of the country prove. If sufferers from piles, rectal tumors and ulcers would try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin they would often save themselves the terrible pain and danger and the heavy expense of a severe surgical operation.

Piles are often due to constipation and are always aggravated by it. Easy natural movements of the bowels such as are invariably produced by this famous laxative without pain or gripe do much to restore a normal, healthy condition to the bowels and thus cure piles.

M. H. Miller, Moweaque, Ill., says: "I have been troubled all my life with piles brought on by constipation. I tried many doctors and numerous remedies, but found no relief until I used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I have used it as a laxative and stomach remedy for the past nine years and have no more troubles with piles." H. N. John, Minneapolis, Kan., says he suffered for four years with piles which were so bad that he could not work. Four bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin cured him, and he says he has not been bothered since.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a safe sure remedy for constipation, restoring easy natural daily movements in the worst old chronic cases, yet so mild and pleasant to take mothers give it to their babies with splendid results. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Pepsin Syrup Co., 302 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill., will send a free sample to anyone who has not used it and will give it a fair trial.

FATHER 80-MOTHER 76

The aged father and mother of a prominent Boston lawyer safely carried through the last two winters by

Vinol

The son says: "My father and mother owe their present strength and good health to Vinol. During the last two trying winters neither of them had a cold, and were able to walk farther and do more than for years. I think Vinol is perfectly wonderful. It certainly is the greatest blood-making, strengthening tonic for old people I ever heard of."

We want every feeble old person in this town to try Vinol. We will return their money without question if it does not accomplish all we claim for it.

Avoid Cheap and Big Can Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money, but it's not all baking powder: the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a very small percentage of leavening gas: therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as it does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acrid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and often unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same time moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

Another Kind of Walk.

Ethel did not rush into his arms and cry "Oh, Cuthbert!" as usual. When he was ushered into the drawing room she gave him the frigid eye, and the gas was kept on at full pressure.

"I've been studying pedomancy, Cuthbert," she announced.

"Pedomancy, pet?"

"Divination by the feet," she explained. "Feet that incline to flatness are a sign of meanness, Cuthbert."

Cuthbert looked down at his No. 10 tans and sighed.

"A hurried yet silent walk," she continued, "is indicative of criminal instincts. Your walk is so hurried, so noiseless, Cuthbert."

"You are speaking of only one of my styles of walking, Ethel," he answered brightly. "I have another. I used it this afternoon to walk into a jeweler's shop and buy a $150 engagement ring that I had hoped"—

"Oh, Cuthbert!" she cried, and the next minute the pedomancy expert and a splay footed youth were crowded into one saddlebag chair, and the gas was turned down into a little blue bubble.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Dumas' Wealth and Poverty.

Alexandre Dumas' rise to wealth and luxury was almost as marvelous as that of his most celebrated hero. He built a magnificent chateau, which he named Monte Christo. There he entertained all comers, friend and stranger alike, with more than oriental magnificence and sometimes with oriental mystery. His purse was open to all who sought it, and the day came when he experienced Timon's fate without acquiring Timon's disposition. He could not become a misanthrope, though his fortune disappeared almost as suddenly as it came, and then he learned the ingratitude of men. His last days were passed not in poverty, but in narrow circumstances. He left Paris in the fall of 1870 just as the German army was closing in to besiege it and when France was feeling its deepest woe. To the last he preserved his gayety and youthful spirit. "I had but one napoleon in my pocket when I first came here," he said. "I go away with two, and yet they call me a spendthrift."

PENROSE FORCES THEM TO TERMS

Dictates to Philadelphia Street Car Company Officials.

SETTLEMENT NOT COMPLETE

Street Car Men Apparently Had Won Victory—Even Gain Recognition of Union Through Grievance Committee—All Men on Strike to Be Taken Back.

Philadelphia, March 21.—The committee of nineteen representing the car men only have refused to accept terms made by Senator Penrose with the street car company president, vice president and counsel, holding out for sole recognition of their union and the exclusion of the Keystone union. They sent representatives to Penrose, asking for better terms. No word has come from Penrose's office. But, since Mahon, national president of the car men, was a party to the agreement, as was a sub-committee of the committee of ten, the proposition will be put up to the strikers for a vote this afternoon. The rejection by the nineteen is not binding on the whole body. If the strikers vote the terms down, Mahon will withdraw the support of the international union, Mr. Greenwalt will call off the state strike, and the car strikers will be left high and dry. The best opinion is that the strikers will have to accept the terms. It is barely possible that they may get a further concession regarding exclusive recognition.

Philadelphia, March 21.—United States Senator Penrose has broken the strike. One by one, Sunday night, he called before him the reluctant directors of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company and forced them to accept the terms that were outlined last Friday night by powerful financial interests.

Kruger, president of the company, halted and protested. Clarence Wolf, the vice-president, argued unavailingly. Ballard, the chief counsel, tried to smooth the retreat of the company. Nothing served to move the man who had become the boss of the situation. The angry officials played for delay. They wanted the man who had been their friend through all the trouble, Mayor Reyburn, to get the credit for settling the strike. Senator Penrose waved all such suggestions aside. There were two hours of pleading on one side and flat-footed dictation on the other.

Officials Give In.

The Rapid Transit officials caved in. By 10 o'clock they had agreed to everything that Senator Penrose demanded, guaranteeing terms that give the car men's union nine-tenths of everything it demanded. Even recognition of the Amalgamated union, through a grievance committee, is included in the capitulation.

First of all, the company agrees to take back all of the men on strike and to restore them to their old runs and their priority on the wage and promotion lists. The proviso is made that if the company is unable at once to restore all of the old men to their jobs it shall pay $2 a day to all that are kept waiting and that these shall receive their former jobs within two months.

The status of the 173 motormen and conductors who were discharged for "intoxication, knocking down fares and for the good of the service"—the act which precipitated the strike—is to be left to a board of arbitration of three men. In agreeing to this the company knuckles down to the principle of arbitration, which it had uncompromisingly held out against until the last hours of the fight.

Grievance Committee.

The company must, according to these terms, deal with its employes through a grievance committee of nineteen men, one from each barn. In this the strikers lose sole recognition of their union. They are entitled to a delegate from every barn they control, and they are in the majority. This grievance committee of nineteen is to select a sub-committee, the number of which has not been settled yet, which is to deal directly with the company officials whenever differences arise.

The strikers won a point in the matter of wages. By their old agreement they were to receive 23 cents an hour beginning June 1, 1910. They were getting 22 cents when they struck. By the agreement forced by Senator Penrose they go back to work at 22 1-2 cent on June 1, next. The new men taken in by the company, and for whom places may be found, are to receive 22 cents an hour.

LOOKS FOR ADVANCE.

President Lewis Thinks Operators Will Concede to Demands of Miners.

Cincinnati, March 21.—President Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America, who is here attending the conference between operators and miners of Ohio, Indiana and western Pennsylvania and presiding at the daily conventions of the union miners, has issued a statement to the effect that he thought that by Wednesday of this week the operators would concede an advance in wages to the miners, thus settling the long drawn out conference.

Big Hats in Colonial Days.

The question of high hats at public places was of some moment, even in colonial days. In 1760 the church at Andover, Mass., put it to vote whether "the parish disapprove of the female sex sitting with their hats on in the meeting house in time of divine service as being indecent." In the town of Abington in 1775 it was voted that it was "an indecent way with the feminine sex to sit with their hats and bonnets on in worshiping God." Still another town voted that it was the "town's mind" that the women should take their bonnets off in meeting and hang them on the pegs.

Too Costly.

King George II. once wished to add the Green park, in London, to his palace grounds, whether the people liked it or not. He inquired of his minister as to the cost.

His lordship, mindful of the general discontent then prevalent, answered: "The cost, sir? Oh, it would be a matter of three crowns!"

The king took the hint. The people kept their park and the sovereign his triple throne.

Hard to Kill.

The Hawaiian Islands have always been famed for their freedom from snakes. People and animals could wander with impunity through valleys and over hills and mountains. An importation arrived on the steamship Alameda from California that might have put an end to such delightful serenity. This was the arrival of three flimsy boxes containing fourteen large living snakes, five of them rattlers. Under a rule such animals arriving in the territory of Hawaii are ordered to be immediately destroyed or deported.

"In the destruction of these snakes," says the narrator, "we had a surprising experience. I placed the boxes in one of our fumigating chambers and applied a charge of double density of hydrocyanic acid gas. The snakes were still alive at the end of fifteen minutes, whereas if they had been warm blooded animals they would have succumbed in a less number of seconds. They were again shut up, and a quadruple charge of the same deadly gas was administered. At the end of one hour and a half the fumigator was opened, and several of the snakes still showed signs of life. We then immersed them in 95 per cent alcohol. That soon put an end to their venomous existence."—Youth's Companion.

Well Placed Generosity.

In 1835 Liszt went on a tour in the French provinces. He arrived at the little town of L. to give a concert, as announced. But the inhabitants appeared to take but little interest in musical matters, for when the musician appeared on the platform he found himself face to face with an audience numbering exactly seven persons. Liszt stepped very calmly to the front, and, bowing respectfully to the array of empty benches, he delivered himself as follows:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I feel extremely flattered by your presence here this evening, but this room is not at all suitable; the air is literally stifling. Will you be good enough to accompany me to my hotel, where I will have the piano conveyed? We shall be quite comfortable there, and I will go through the whole of my program."

The offer was unanimously accepted, and Liszt treated his guests not only to a splendid concert, but an excellent supper into the bargain. Next day when the illustrious virtuoso appeared to give his second concert the hall was not large enough to contain the crowd which claimed admittance.

The Diagnosis.

The disastrous results of interference by relatives in the course of courtships was well exemplified in the case of a young Baltimore couple not long ago. They had been engaged for some time when it became generally known that the affair was at an end.

"What was the trouble, Jack?" an intimate friend asked the youth, who, by the way, is a recent medical graduate.

"Well, as it was nothing relating to Nan personally, I don't know why I shouldn't tell you," he replied, with a sigh.

"I suppose it was some outside influence—you seemed to fairly dote on her," the friend commented.

"I did," the dejected lover replied. "She is the sweetest little girl in the world, but terribly fond of her relatives. Her old maid aunt from Kansas came along the other day and announced that she was going to live with us after we were married, and—well she proved an antidote."—Detroit Free Press.

Very Devout.

A new parson was presented to a living in a remote agricultural district and was anxious to make himself at home with his flock as soon as possible. He therefore began his pastoral calls at once. Among the first recipients of these attentions was Farmer Jones, whose family the new parson had noticed to be very regular and apparently very devout attendants at church. Farmer Jones was out, but his wife received the parson, when the following dialogue took place: "I am your new rector, Mrs. Jones. I have noticed with great pleasure your regular attendance at church and have lost as little time as possible, you see, in calling and improving our acquaintance." "Yes, sir," replied Mrs. Jones; "we're 'bliged to be reg'lar at church, for if we didn't go Farmer Smith claims that pew, and we're not goin' to give it up for the likes o' him. So my son Peter stands at the door half an hour before service begins to keep 'im out."—Liverpool Mercury.

A Ludicrous Word Twister.

Professor William Archibald Spooner of Oxford university became famous as a ludicrous word twister. Once at a special service, seeing some women standing at the back of the church waiting to be seated, he rushed down the aisle and addressed the ushers as follows: "Gentlemen, gentlemen, sew these ladies into their sheets." Being asked at dinner what fruit he would have, he promptly replied, "Figs, fleas." This is the way in which Dr. Spooner proposed to his wife: Being one afternoon at the home of her father, Bishop Harvey Goodwin of Carlisle, Mrs. Goodwin said, "Mr. Spooner, will you please go out into the garden and ask Miss Goodwin if she will come in and make tea?" The professor on finding the young lady said, "Miss Goodwin, your mother told me to ask you if you would come in and take me."

Method.

Method is the very hinge of business, and there is no method without punctuality. Punctuality is important because it subserves the peace and good temper of a family. Calmness of mind, which it produces, is another advantage of punctuality. A disorderly man is always in a hurry. He has no time to speak to you because he is going elsewhere, and when he gets there he is too late for his business or he must hurry away before he can finish it.

Siamese Tobacco.

The best tobacco in Siam is grown at Petchabun. It is planted in open fields near the town after the floods in September or October, and the first crop, or tips, which is considered the best quality, is gathered about February and the last about the beginning of May. The very best quality cannot be purchased, as it is reserved for the special use of the king and sent down to Bangkok, where it is smoked in the palace and distributed to the chief officers of state.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Think It Over!

HOW LOCAL OPTION WILL AFFECT THE TAXPAYERS OF LENAWEE COUNTY.

ADRIAN CITY PAYS OVER 18 PER CENT. OF THE COUNTY TAXES OF THE WHOLE COUNTY—$8,329.78. IT BENEFITS IN COUNTY EXPENSE FROM THE LIQUOR TAX $2,775.88. IF LOCAL OPTION PREVAILS ITS COUNTY TAXES WILL BE AT LEAST $11,105.58. IT BENEFITS FROM THE SAME TAX $4,982.17 IN THE CITY GENERAL FUND. IF LOCAL OPTION IS ADOPTED IT LOSES $7,757.97 WHICH MUST COME OUT OF THE TAXPAYERS POCKETS. STUDY THE FOLLOWING ARTICLE AND THE TABLE IT CONTAINS, TAKEN FROM THE COUNTY RECORDS:

After people became accustomed to the operation of any law and it has been in existence ten, fifteen or twenty years they are thoughtless both about the law and what it does. If repeal or change is discussed they are apt to look at only the side that is presented to them, and a repeal or radical change often produces results that are not thought of, and some times, very surprising.

Ever since 1887 the present license law has been in effect in Lenawee County, nearly twenty-three years. It has been changed to some extent from the original law, but year after year its operation has been quietly carried on until the present time, when the proposition is to be put before the voters to change all this at the election to be held April 4th.

Lenawee County is face to face with this proposition. There is no "politics" in it—so far as the republican and democratic parties are concerned at least, whatever of political effect it will have being along the lines of the prohibition party alone. The change proposed is a radical one, being said to be the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of liquors of all kinds. This, in truth, is not the object of the law, but only the means taken to attain the object of the law, which is really and solely to stop the drinking of liquor. The law is severe—read it and see—and was made even more severe by the legislature of 1909, fourteen new sections having been added by that body.

If this law—or any law—could stop the drinking of liquor to excess, it would be useless to make any extended argument. The experience of more than 50 years has proven that a prohibitory law does not and cannot stop the sale and use of liquor. For over half a century the State of Maine has been a prohibition state: yet year by year the consumption of spirits becomes greater and it is a fact that by a skillful use of the "fines" provided for in the law, the state is practically and really a "license" state, paying cities and villages only, at the rate of $250.00 per year. Theories are well enough but after all it is the plain facts that tell the tale: and wherever prohibition or local option has been tried two things have been found true: the revenue and regulation of the business is lost, and there is more lawbreaking than under a license system, and the use of liquor is not stopped, and the so-called "dry" counties of Michigan have learned this lesson to their sorrow and dismay, and several of them are making preparations to undo the action they took two years ago.

In Lenawee county, however, the experiment has not been tried. Before making up our minds it would be well to consider what effect Local Option will have on the financial affairs of the county. So far as manufacturing is in question there is but one manufactory in the county—the Springbrook Brewing Co., paying a tax of $65. All the others are retail stores paying a tax of $500 each, there being no wholesalers. The money collected from this source, amounting the past year to $30,565.00, is divided into three parts; one per cent, $305.64, goes to the county treasurer for collecting and distributing the money, leaving $30,259.35, one-half of which, $15,129.67, goes to the general fund of the county for the payment of county expenses, and the other half, $15,129.67, goes to the townships, cities and villages where the saloons are located, to be credited to the township fund and the general funds of the cities and villages.

It will be noticed that every township, whether there is a saloon in it or not, benefits by the liquor tax, by just the per cent the valuation of that township bears to the whole valuation of the county. Take, for instance, the township of Seneca. Its appraised valuation is $2,008,223, which is a little over 5 1-2 per cent of the total valuation of the county. It gets 5 1-2 per cent of half the liquor money of the county, $15,129.67, its share being $838.18. In other words, the amount of county tax raised was $45,400, and one half the liquor money was $15,129.67. There was therefore spent for county purposes $60,529.67. Seneca's county tax was $2,514.80; its share of the liquor money $838.18. Therefore if there had been no liquor tax, Seneca would have had to raise $3,352.98.

Now take the township of Ogden in which there are two saloons, Ogden's per cent. is a little over four and four-tenths. Its county tax was $2,008.58; its benefit for county purposes from the liquor money, $669.80. Thus had there been no liquor tax, Ogden's share of the county expense would have been $2,677.93. Add to this the fact that Ogden township received $495.00 from liquor tax for township purposes. This would have to be raised by township tax if there were local option. Thus Ogden received in direct benefit $669.40 in deduction from what wou'd have been required for county expenses, and 495.00 for township purposes, a total of $1,164.40.

Villages receive their benefit in county expenses through the townships in which they are situated, but they each receive 49 1-2 per cent. of the liquor tax paid by their saloons, back into the village treasury for the general expenses of the village.

Now let us see how the business affects cities; say Adrian. Adrian's per cent of the whole valuation is a little over eighteen and one-third per per cent. Its county tax was $8329.78 Its benefit in county expenses from the liquor tax was $2,775.80, and $4,982.17 was paid from the liquor tax to the general fund of the city. Thus it there had been no liquor tax; the county tax of Adrian city would have been $11,105.58 and it would have been compelled to raise $4,982.17 for city purposes, a total benefit from the liquor tax of $7;757.97.

These are not day dreams from Ohio or Mexico. The figures are taken from the public records in the court house. In the table given below Col. 1 is from the proceedings of the Board of Supervisors at its October session, 1908, and Col. 3 is from the same source. Col. 2 shows the proportion or rate per cent. the valuation of each township and city bears to the whole valuation. This table is carried out six places so that the total variation in figuring will be only 36 cents for the whole county. Any school boy in decimals can prove these figures. Col. 4 shows total amount of liquor money collected, from this deduct one per cent. (line 34) for treasurer's fee. Col. 5 shows the total amount of this money credited to the general fund of the county. Col. 6 shows the amount of the liquor tax paid to the various townships, cities and villages. Col. 4, 5 and 6 are taken from the books of the county treasurer, an abstract of which was published after the first Monday of last December, see (Times and Expositor of December 9, 1910, page 8). Col. 7 is made by multiplying the total of Col. 5 by the per cent. table in Col. 2, and Col. 8 is the total of Col. 6 and 7.

The amount of county tax to raise the amount spent ($60,529.67) for any township can easily be found by adding the amount opposite the name of that township in Cols. 3 and 7, and will amount in round numbers to an increase of one-third in the county tax.

These are startling and instructive figures but no amount of argument can overturn them. They are from the public records kept by capable and competent men, and they tell their own story.

If local option prevails in Lenawee county it means one of three things: (1) Increased taxation on the same valuation of at least one-third; the person paying $3.00 now will pay $4.00 (2) Increased valuation at the same rate; the man now assessed $3,000 worth of property then paying on a valuation of $4,000.00.

(3). A sharp reduction in county exponses. The money will not grow on bushes nor fall from the skies like dew. It cannot be used until it is raised, and it can only be raised from the pockets of the tax payers. There is no charity or providence in tax matters, pay your taxes or your property is sold. Local option cannot argue or dream $30,000.00 into the treasury of Lenawee county.

Nor will our thriving cities and villages be free from trouble; progressive and enterprising as they are, an increase of taxation will seriously affect them. Add $8,000.00 to the taxes of Adrian and you lay a heavy burden upon the industries, its merchants, its citizens and their homes, with what result? Let an example or two answer; Newark, Ohio' went dry last year. Deprived of its excise revenue it was compelled to discharge more than thirty policemen and to restrict its public lighting to the business portion of the city, Worcester, Mass., two years ago went dry and was compelled to reduce its expenses. By a large vote it has again secured regulation of the liquor traffic. In both instances crime was rampant, the vilest concotions were sold in "blind pigs" and "boot legs" at exorbitant prices and drunkeness was not diminished. A black plaster over an ulcer may hide it from sight but the disease is still there.

These may be unpleasant truths. The advocates of local option may gloss them over, but the facts remain any argument and dream of making men good by law cannot change them. It is a crime to steal and commit murder; yet larcenies are not uncommon in Lenawee County and sad to say, men have been murdered here. Making the sale of liquor a crime will undoubetly develop criminals in Lenawee county, but will not stop either the sale or drinking of liquor.

From 1850 for twenty-five years Michigan was a prohibition state: Yet liquor was sold more or less openly in every city and village. Then regulation was tried, upon a vote of the people of the state. Now the attempt is being made to turn our faces backward to what proved a confessed failure tho tried for nearly a generation.

Another thing is worthy of mention The payments of this $30,000.00 and more is entirely voluntary. No man unless he wishes is compelled to pay a nickel of it. No officer of the law compels any citizen to enter a saloon or pay any money over its bar. The tax is collected and distributed to the benefit of every township and city with the nominal fee of one per cent and that is paid to the county officer.

Thus it will be seen that there are two sides to the question, and it will be well for the tax-payer to carefully consider it in all aspects before casting his ballot. For while it is as sure as death or taxes that local option will neither stop tue manufacture sale or consumption of liquor it is equally sure that it will at onee stop the revenue which arises under the present law. Experience and cold facts have proven the good to be doubtful at the best, and the remedy utterly unable to cure the evil at which it is aimed while the injury to the financial interests of every community and every taxpayer has been likewise proven beyond a doubt.

The accompanying table taken as has been shown from the official records of the county is worthy the careful study and consideration of every taxpayer. If there is in the mind of any person a doubt as to its accuracy he can verify the figures for himself by a visit to the county officers. These figures and this statement are issued with the desire to set before the voter, plainly and without prejudice, the actual facts of one phase of the contest now on. There have been so many arguments and statements founded on imagination and fancy which have been urged during the campaign that it would seem to be the duty of every voter to take the official figures, find out what they show, find out the effect the change in method will have if adopted, and then make up his mind what is more advantageous for the county and the community, and vote accordingly; remembering that as now he shares in the benefit of the revenue he will be compelled to bear his share of the added burden in case of a change.

The Solid Hoofed Hog.

There are some solid hoofed hogs in the world, but they are few and far between. Darwin has a great deal to say about such pigs in his "Origin of Species," as there were only three in England at the time he wrote this book. The solid hoofed hog is not a freak of nature, as many suppose, but a genuine case of reversion to a primitive or ancestral type. It seems that, unlike the prehistoric ancestor of the modern horse, which has four toes or hoofs, the old clotherium, from which animal all members of the swine family are descended, had a solid hoof, and in the course of ages, as the old parent form died out and the modern wild boar, domestic hog, peccary, etc., were evolved this solid hoof became through what Darwin calls "adaptation" and "natural selection" divided up into two parts, so that all modern hogs are cloven hoofed. Occasionally, however, a hog is born with the old original solid hoof of the primitive hog ancestor, thus demonstrating the tendency in all animals to revert now and then to the parent form.

Votes in Pawn.

In the delightful days of yore a vote frequently fetched hundreds of pounds. Poor electors would not wait for an election, but would borrow from the candidate sums of money, for which they would give promissory notes. And when the reform bill was spoken of to some electors in Stafford they expressed their pleasure at it and hoped that there would be introduced into the bill some plan for the better payment of poor voters! For the convenience of would be M. P.'s seats used to be procurable for £5,000 or £6,000 cash down, while toward the close of the eighteenth century the borough of Gatton and many others were actually publicly advertised for sale by auction. The sales were not for a single parliament, but the fee simple included the power of nominating the two representatives forever.—London Globe.

Chinese Names of Places.

Chinese names of places often define their character. Thus the terminal "yang" means fortress, Pingyang the "fortress of peace." "Cheng" means a walled city, as Fenghuangcheng the "Phenix walled city." "Shan" is a mountain, "hai" the sea, "kuan" a camp; thus Shankaikuan is the "mountain sea camp." A "ling" is a mountain pass; Motienling, near Mukden, is the "heaven scraping pass."

The suffixes "tao" and "to" indicate islands; "po" or "pho," a harbor; "wan," a bay; "kiang" and "ho," a river; "kow," a port; "fu," a first class city; "ju," a provincial capital. "Pei" is north, "nan" is south, "king" is capital. These suffixes help to explain such familiar names in these days as Sanshantao, Chemulpo, Talienwan, Yangtsekiang, Hoangho, Yinkow, Chefu, Anju, Peking and Nanking.—New York Tribune.

The Flag at Half Mast.

The custom of showing the flag at half mast originated from the way at sea of showing the pre-eminence one ship had over the other in time of warfare. The vanquished always had to lower its flag, while the victor's would be raised as high as possible in exultation. To lower a flag is an act of submission or betokens respect to a superior or is a signal of distress. The hoisting of a flag half mast high came to be used, therefore, as a sign of mourning and respect.

Pinched Plums.

The mistress of the mathematical class was mathematizing for her mathematical pupils, while her mathematical pupils were lawfully mathematizing mathematics.

"Now, suppose," said the mistress, "I had a pound of plums"—

At which point it occurred to her how much better she could illustrate her example to her youthful charges if she really had a pound of plums. So—

"Mary," she said to a girl of eight, "here's sixpence. Go out and get me a pound of plums. And as I'm going to give them in the end to the girl who gets the sum right first be sure before you buy them you pinch one or two just to see that they are wholesome."

A few minutes and Mary had returned. With flushed face and triumphant eyes she approached the teacher's desk as one worthy of commendation and plumped down a bag of plums and the sixpence.

"There, mum!" she said. "I pinched one or two as you told me, and when the man wasn't looking I pinched the blessed lot!"—London Answers.

Music Writing Made Easy.

Mlle. Saile was in the eighteenth century the most accomplished and fascinating balletense at the famous French Opera. In addition to her other qualifications, she played and sang with extraordinary artistic skill and depth of expression. She once confided to Rameau, the noter musician, that her ardent wish was to be able to compose and asked him to give her a few lessons in the art. "Nothing easier in the world," Rameau gallantly replied. He handed her a sheet of paper ruled for music and asked her to take her valuable breastpin and prick holes in the lines wherever she thought proper. After the lady had completed her task Rameau took the sheet of paper, turned each puncture into a note, determined its length, selected a suitable key, and the thing was done. This remarkable composition turned out a lively piece of dance music, which was afterward entitled "Les Sauvages Dans les Indes Galantes" and was popular in France for a great number of years.

Macaulay as a Child.

Thomas Babington Macaulay should perhaps have ranked with the universal geniuses, but it is true that his precocious gift was largely in the direction of literature. He read incessantly from the age of three. At seven he had composed a very fair compendium of universal history from the creation to 1800. At eight he had written a treatise destined to convert the natives of Malabar to Christianity. As a recreation from this weighty work he wrote in the same year a romance in the style of Scott in three cantos, entitled "The Battle of Chevlot." A little later came a long poem on the history of Olaf Magnus and a vast pile of blank verse entitled "Fingal—A Poem in Twelve Books." But he disliked mathematics and did not pass his examinations in that subject, thus standing out among all child prodigies. His memory was such that he literally never could forget anything and after twenty years could repeat bits of poetry read only once.

Her One Wish.

The wandering peddler stopped at the southern cabin and opened his pack.

"Mammy, let me show you some self raising umbrellas," he began.

"No use, man, no use," interrupted the old colored woman as she busied herself about the pot of clothes. "Cyant use nuffin lak dat."

"How about self raising window shades?"

"No good heah, kase deh ain't no windows wuth talkin' about."

"Self raising buckwheat?"

"No good to me—we eat cohn pone. But, mister!"

"Well, mammy?"

"If yo'll tell me how to tuhn dese heah fohteen bad chillun into self raising pickaninnies Ah'll be yo' friend foh life, dat Ah will, sah."—Chicago News.

The Castle of Despond.

One of the finest French renaissance buildings in France is the Castle of Despond famous in the legendary lore of the Toulousain country in which it stands. Over the window of one of the inner courtyards is sculptured in the stone a head above the motto, "Plus d'Espoir." These were the last words of Rose de Martial, whose story has been sung by the poets of Toulouse. She was the daughter of the house of Martial, to whom the castle belonged, and she was courted by the lord of Casteinat, whose manor she could see from her window. But, although she was beautiful and tender hearted, the lord jilted her, and she fell into a melancholy. She sat every day by the window, whence she could see the fickle lord of Casteinat's manor. One morning he passed by in the valley below. She sang to him, but he never looked up. "Plus d'Espoir!" she cried and threw herself out of the window on to the flags below, where she was killed. The manor of Martial was known thenceforward as the Castle of Despond. The fine building was falling to ruins when M. Fenaille bought it, and he had it completely and skilfully restored before making a gift of it to the nation.

His First Taste of Discipline.

Admiral Jouett, probably one of the jolliest seadogs our navy ever knew, once told an amusing story of his early days as a cadet.

"I was a sociable youngster," he says, "and when I went to my first assignment, the Independence, and saw the stars and stripes floating over it I remembered my mother had taught me that my first duty was to the flag, so I attempted some conversation on this line with the executive officer who had received me when I came on board and who was one of the strictest disciplinarians in the navy of that day.

"'Silence, sir!' he roared at my first question, his face red with anger. 'Silence, sir! Who gave you permission to speak? Let me hear only six words from you, sir, while you are on this ship—"port," "starboard," "yes, sir," and "no, sir."'

"And this was my first discipline in the navy."

Not an Earthquake.

Mrs. Houser (hearing tremendous noise in the kitchen)—Great goodness, Jane, what was that, an earthquake shock? Jane (calmly picking up the pieces of glass)—No, mum; only a little jar.

Willing.

"Jane, at the table we wish to be served with alacrity."

"All right, mum. Will you have it after the soup?"—London Answers.

FREE IF IT FAILS

Your Money Back if You Are Not Satisfied with the Medicine We Recommend

We are so positive that our remedy will permanently relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine at our expense should it fail to produce satisfactory results.

It is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Laxatives or cathartics do much harm. They cause a reaction, irritate and weaken the bowels and tend to make constipation more chronic. Besides, their use becomes a habit that is dangerous.

Constipation is caused by a weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or descending colon. To expect permanent relief you must therefore tone up and strengthen these organs and restore them to healthier activity.

The discovery of the active principle of our remedy involved the labor of the world's greatest research chemists. As an active agent it possesses the valuable qualities of the best known intestinal tonics as well as being particularly pleasant and prompt in its results.

We want you to try Rexall Ordelies on our recommendation. They are exceedingly pleasant to take, being eaten like candy, and are ideal for children, delicate persons and old folks, as well as for the robust. They act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They apparently have a neutral action on other associate organs or glands. They do not purge, cause excessive looseness nor create any inconvenience whatever. They may be taken at any time, day or night. They will positively relieve chronic or habitual constipation, if not of surgical variety, and the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, if taken, with regularity for a reasonable length of time. They come in two sizes of packages, 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents. Sold in Tecumseh only at our store,—The Rexall Store—B. J. Pulver.

The Suspect's Declaration.

Parson White's precautionary measure of protecting his chicken coop with chilled steel bars was futile, for that very night four more of his choice Leghorns disappeared, leaving the severed and twisted bars as the only visible evidence of the theft. However, his suspicions pointed toward his next door neighbor, whom he had seen prowling around his yard that day, and accordingly he had this suspect up in police court the next morning.

"If the prisoner can file an alibi I'll let him off with a suspended sentence," announced the judge at the end of the evidence. "Can you file an alibi, Ham?"

"Ah guess Ah kin," eagerly rejoined the suspect, "if it ain't any hahder den Pahson White's chicken coop hahs!"—Brooklyn Life.

Hon. Thomas Bentham, who will speak in the New Bradley Opera House in Tecumseh on Monday evening March 28 at 8 p. m., is an attorney and orator of more than ordinary attainments That he is a self made man is demonstrated by the following brief statement of his career:

Mr. Bentham was born July 26, 1862 in Pittston, Luzerne county, Pennsylvania, and went to work at the age of nine years, picking slate in the breakers in the Anthracite region. He worked around the coal mines and in the rolling mills for eighteen years, studying at home nights during the latter part of this period, and during 1889 and 90 attending the National Normal University in Lebanon, Ohio for eight months. He was compelled to leave the University on account of lack of funds, and it was a case of "back to the mines" for him. Having by the most assiduous toil saved a small amount of money, he went to the Cincinnati Law School in October 1892, and graduated in June, 1894. Since that time he has been practicing law in Cincinnati. Mr. Bentham was nominated for congress by Judson Harmon, now governor of Ohio, and by Judge Aaron McNiell, to make the race against Nick Longworth, son-in-law of President Roosevelt. The republican majority in favor of Longworth two years prior, was 21474 out of 43736 votes. Mr. Bentham cut the majority down to 7,000, notwithstanding the fact that the Republican National Committee sent the most noted congressmen into the district to canvass for Longworth, and brought to bear all the prestige of President Roosevelt's enormous power and popularity.

How to Cure Your Piles

Due Often To Carelessness or Neglect and Stubborn to Cure

"The knife is not always necessary to cure even desperate cases of piles," says a physician whose years and experience make him an authority. "Indeed," he says further: "I have known some very aggravated cases of long standing cured by a simple home remedy that restored to the bowels easy natural daily movements."

And the doctor is right, as many letters from cured people in various parts of the country prove. If sufferers from piles, rectal tumors and ulcers would try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin they would often save themselves the terrible pain and danger and the heavy expense of a severe surgical operation.

Piles are often due to constipation and are always aggravated by it. Easy natural movements of the bowels such as are invariably produced by this famous laxative without pain or gripe do much to restore a normal, healthy condition to the bowels and thus cure piles.

M. H. Miller, Moweaque, Ill., says: "I have been troubled all my life with piles brought on by constipation. I tried many doctors and numerous remedies, but found no relief until I used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I have used it as a laxative and stomach remedy for the past nine years and have no more troubles with piles." H. N. John, Minneapolis, Kan., says he suffered for four years with piles which were so bad that he could not work. Four bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin cured him, and he says he has not been bothered since.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a safe sure remedy for constipation, restoring easy natural daily movements in the worst old chronic cases, yet so mild and pleasant to take mothers give it to their babies with splendid results. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Pepsin Syrup Co., 302 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill., will send a free sample to anyone who has not used it and will give it a fair trial.

She didn't think how it would sound: A widow erected a monument to her husband, with the inscription, "Rest in peace until we meet again."

The world famous fire shot who holds the championship record of 100 pigeons in 100 consecutive shots is living at Lincoln, Ill. Recently interviewed, he says: "I have suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble and have used several well known kidney medicines all of which gave me no releif until I started taking Foley's Kidney Pills. Before I used Foley's Kidney Pills I was subjected to severe backache and pains in my kidneys with suppression and oftentimes a cloudy voiding. While upon arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and once more feel like my own self. All this I owe solely to Foley's Kidney Pills and always recommend them to my fellow sufferers. Sold by all druggists.

There are any number of men who, while ever ready to share their troubles with their wives, manifest a strong disinclination to share their pleasures with them.

Foley's Kidney Remedy will cure any case of Kidney or bladder that is not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. Sold by all druggists.

Avoid Cheap and Big Can Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money, but it's not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a very small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as it does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acrid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and often unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same time moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

DRY LENAWEE!

United States Booze Barons have threatened every dry county in the United States with increased taxes—before those counties decided to stand for Dry. But never did threat come true when the actual test of Dry against Wet conditions, was made.

Mr. Voter of Lenawee county, here are the FACTS:

In Ohio—The tax levy in Washington County (Wet) was 7.105 mills. The the tax levy of 1909 (Dry) was 5175 mills, which was a saving to taxpapers of the county of 30,000. The tax in Newcomerstown (Dry) for 1907 was 3.9 mills. The rate for 1008 was 3.475 mills. for 1009 it was s.435 mills. The tax levy in Muskingum county for 1908 (Wet) was 7.25 mills: for 1909 (Dry) was 6.95 mills.

Tax rate far Pike county (dry) decreased in 1909 by .8 mill; Fayette Co's levy for 1908 (wet) was 6.505 mills; for 1909 (dry) ih was 6.255. The rate of Washington Court House (dry) is the tame. Holmes county (dry) indreased the tax .5 of a mill. Troy (dry) decreased the rate 1 mill. Upper Sandusky (dry) decreased the rate 2.3 mills. Wyandotte county (dry) decreased the rate .4 mill.

The 1009 tax levy also shows a decreas ef .8 mill in Knox county (dry); a decrease of 1 mill in Hocking county (dry); adecrease in .2 mill in Hancock county (dry); adecrease of .2 mill in Woodsfield (dry); a decrease of 1 mill in Fremont (dry); a decrease of .2 mill in Carrollton (dry): a decrease of .56 mill in Marion (dry); an increase of .25 mill in Findlay (dry) wher no no levy for the ghneral purpose fund was made in 1908 In the dry counties of Delaware, Brown, Portage, Perry, Van-Wert, Coshocton, Gallia, Sciota and Jdfferson, the rate for 1909 was the same as for 1908.

There is a .2 mill increase in Hardin; .6 in Monroe; 1 mill in Meigs; 1 mill in Belmont! 1 in Licking; .3 in Sandusky; .4 in Madison (all dry counties).

The following table shows the remarkable increase in the tax rate in representative Ohio wet counties and citids:

What does "personal liberty" MEAN anyhow?

Has a person the right to drink in any quantity he wants, no matter who is injured?

A drunken man is a menace to the lives and the property of those he encounters; his neighbors should have the right to protect themselves, by cutting off the source of the crime. The drunkard robs his Wife and children and ususually they are forced upon the charity of the commtnity; shobld the community have a right to protect itself?

That is the proposition Lenawee citizenf demand—and your helping hand, Mr. Citizen will bring it abrut—and you'll be glad in the end that you had pour hand in the decision.

Level-headed merchants, salaried men and farmers are not shedding any tears abour the few losses of jobs in the United States that the death of the saloon will cause—they remember that those men will go into the business into which that $3,500,000,000 is poured when there is no enormous outlay like that for booze.

And remember only a small percentage of the men who are held up as possible martyrs by the saloonists will lose their jobs—and the losers are backed up by the $3,500,000,000 that goes into the legitimote channels of honest trade.

A Remarkable Dinner Service.

The remarkable dinner service made by Josiah Wedgwood for the Russian empress, Catherine II., in 1774 consists of 952 pieces, and on each piece is painted a different view. The body is of a pale brimstone color, and the views are painted in a rich mulberry purple. As the service was intended to be used at the palace of La Grenouillere (meaning marshy place full of frogs), each piece also bears a green frog within a shield on the rim. The views represent British ruined castles, abbeys, parks, bridges, towers, etc. Several pieces are decorated with views of Hampstead, and there are custard cups with views of Richmond and sauce boats with the scenery of Windsor park. In many cases the views are the only pictorial records left of the old buildings. Altogether there are 1,282 views painted on the 952 pieces.—Connoisseur.

TAFT CALLS IN OHIO DELEGATION

Appeals to Them For Aid With His Program.

Washington, March 28.—President Taft made a personal appeal to practically the entire Ohio congress delegation last night to help him put through the administration legislative program at this session. Every member of the delegation who was in the city was present. The conference was called quietly and did not begin until late. The congressmen went to the White House one by one, apparently not knowing in advance that a general call had been issued.

The president made it plain to his visitors just what he wished congress to do. The measures which have been mentioned so frequently, the amendments to the Hepburn law, the postal savings bank bill, an anti-injunction bill, statehood bills for Arizona and New Mexivo, the president would like to have enacted. He asked the delegation from his own state to come to his aid and help. He asserted, it was said, that it was up to the Republican party to live up to its Chicago platform and the Republican congressmen from his own state should be ready to stand by to do its part in carrying out those pledges.

Ohio politics were not mentioned at all, it was said. Whether or not the president intends to call other state delegations to the White House for similar heart to heart talks was not disclosed.

Taft Goes to New York.

Washington, March 28.—President Taft left this city today for New York, where tonight he is to be the guest of Yale '78, his old class, at a dinner at the University club. He will get back to the capital early Tuesday morning.

OLD MAN PROTESTS.

Denies Being Implicated in Counterfeit Doing at Port Huron.

Port Huron, Mich., March 28.—John Mack, the ninety-one-year-old alleged counterfeiter, and Charles Carey, aged nineteen, years, who is also implicated in the case, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Harris. Both waived examination and will be given a hearing Wednesday next.

Martin Carey, a Grand Trunk conductor, father of young Carey, furnished $1,000 bail for his son, but Mack has not secured bail, and it is probable that he will remain in jail until his hearing is held.

United States Secret Service Agent Elmer Gormon, who ferreted out the case, accompanied by Deputy United States Marshal Duncan Lyons, has returned to Detroit, but they will return to this city next week and continue their search for evidence against the prisoners. They will also follow up clues which may lead to the arrest of other persons thought to be implicated in the case.

LESS ACTIVE.

Eruption of Mount Etna Is Apparently Subsiding.

Catania, March 28.—The eruption of Mount Etna is subsiding. The lava is now flowing at the rate of only three yards an hour.

The heat from the incadescent lava causes ascending air currents, provoking a succession of violent whirlwinds, laden with volcanic ashes, which have increased the desolation. Trees in the paths of these whirlwinds are snapped off or torn up by the roots.

Frank Perrett of Brooklyn, N. Y., assistant director of the Royal observatory on Mount Vesuvius, who with difficulty reached the neighborhood of some of the craters, says the emission of lava has almost stopped, but he is of the opinion that the eruption has not ended.

Twenty-two Autos Burn.

Plainfield, N. J., March 28.—Twenty-two automobiles were almost totally burned and eighteen were partially damaged in a fire at Brokaw Bros.' automobile garage early in the morning. The total loss is estimated at between $75,000 and $100,000.

CONFERS WITH EGYPT EDITORS

Roosevelt Stems Attack of the Native Press.

QUICKLY WINS THEM OVER

Former Chief Executive Points Out to Them Power the Press Has For Good—One Sheik Sought to Start Argument—His Freedom in Talking Pleased Them.

Cairo, March 28.—Probably the most interesting incident thus far in connection with Colonel Roosevelt's visit here occurred Sunday, when, at his own suggestion, he held an informal conference with a number of Egyptian newspaper men.

The ex-president has been keenly interested in the attacks by the native press on his speeches, they charging that he has interferred in Egyptian politics, and said he would like to have a heart to heart talk with the editors. As a result, the newspaper men visited him Sunday all of them displaying great eagerness for the interview.

Dressed Like English.

Most of them wore European frock coats and tarbushes, but one tall, dignified Arab sheik appeared in flowing robes and turban. He was the author of one of the anti-Roosevelt articles, and he seemed keenly anxious for a controversy, but each found the other less formidable than he expected.

After the introductions Colonel Roosevelt addressed the assemblage. Some of them could only speak Arabic, and hence an interpreter was necessary. Colonel Roosevelt said something about it being the duty of journalists to promote religious toleration, whereupon the sheik eagerly interjected in gutteral Arabic:

"Moslems and Christians have lived peaceably side by side in Egypt for thirteen centuries. There is no reason why they should not continue to do so."

Roosevelt Didn't Argue.

If he anticipated that this would lead to an argument he was disappointed, for Colonel Roosevelt only rapped out with appreciative vigor: "That's fine; that's fine." Then he went on with his homily on the power and responsibility of the press. Describing it as the most formidable weapon of modern life, he declared it ought only to be used for good purposes.

To this the sheik, among others, heartily assented. The interview ended without any controversy and with mutual compliments and a general display of good feeling. Asked afterwards what were their impressions of the meeting, it became clear that what struck the editors most was the freedom with which Colonel Roosevelt talked with them, and the pleasure he seemed to feel at meeting them. It was a very unexpected attitude on the part of the man who had been the head of a great nation.

Colonel Roosevelt has invited Prince Eitel, second son of the kaiser, and Princess Eitel, who are traveling incognito, to take tea with him Tuesday.

WHERE IS EVA TANGUAY?

Star in "Follies of 1909" Missing From Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, March 28.—Eva Tanguay is missing, at least she was missing at the last report handed in by "The Follies of 1909," with whom she appeared at the Nixon theater part of last week. Eva was last heard from about 5 a. m. Saturday, when she is alleged to have penned a letter to the Nixon management. The letter caused the management at Saturday's matinee to announce that the star "was sick."

While those interested in recovering Miss Tanguay are circulating the report that she "left at daybreak Saturday for New Haven, Conn., to visit a friend," Pittsburg is being searched carefully for the young woman, was last seen in the Nixon cafe Friday night, "or about the time the bar closed," as the management puts it somewhat bitterly.

GRAFTERS HELD WEEKLY CAUCUS

Methods of Pittsburg Councilmen Exposed.

MET IN PARLORS OF HOTEL

There They Discussed How Much Certain Firms Should Be "Bled" For Passing of Ordinances in Which Firms Were Concerned—Bank Directors Being Questioned Today.

Pittsburg, March 28.—Uneasiness is shown in Pittsburg on all sides in anticipation of expected developments today in the graft cases. Directors of the big banks which hold city deposits are being called before the courts and asked on their oaths to tell what they know about their banks buying the city deposits for cash from the city councilmen.

Pursuance of the graft investigation has uncovered that for some years grafting members of Pittsburg councils, about sixty in number, met weekly in parlors of a big downtown hotel, and there, behind closed doors, they discussed what had been offered by certain firms for the passage of certain ordinances, what should be charged, etc. This weekly meeting was called "the caucus" and was attended by all former members of the councils who are now in the tolls.

Councilman John Klein was secretary of the caucus and President William Brand of common council its chairman.

So bold were the movements of this party of councilmen that invitations were sent the newspapers to have reporters wait on the officers of the caucus after adjournment in order that news "of interest to the public" might be secured. It is now believed by local newspapers that threatened publicity was frequently held over the heads of victims by the caucus in order that hight priced bargains might be driven for real money consideration.

YOUTHFUL PAIR KILLED.

Chauffeur and Young Lady Met Death at Sterling, Kas.

Sterling, Kas., March 28.—Wylie Lloyd, a chauffeur, twenty years old, and Bertha Mossman, twenty years old, both of Sterling, are dead here as the result of a collision of an automobile with a buggy just after midnight.

Jay Johnson, Oren Fix and Mabel Wilkens, passengers in the car driven by Lloyd, are painfully but, it is believed, not dangerously injured. The passengers of the horse drawn vehicle, two men and two women, escaped without injury.

COLONIZATION IS CRY.

Grand Rapids Leaders Claim 3,000 Men Were Brought In.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 28.—According to a statement made by the "dry" leaders, all oters who appear to vote on April 4 will be put through the "third degree."

At the recent primaries about 5,000 new voters were registered in the city, and the "dry" now charge the opposition with colonizing voters for the local option election.

Misleading.

"That is a fat, prosperous looking envelope. Does our salesman send in a big bunch of orders?"

"Not exactly. That envelope contains a receipt for his last check, his expense account for this week, a request for a salary raise and a requisition for some more expense account blanks."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Couldn't Walk.

Wifey—You told me the other day we must avoid all luxuries and confine ourselves to absolute necessities only. Hubby—That's so, my dear. Wifey—Well, last night you came home from the club in a cab. Hubby—Yes, but that was an absolute necessity.—Fliegende Blatter.

SEARCH WOODS FOR HIS BODY

Party of Men Will Hunt Northern Wilds.

CASS FARMER WAS LOST

Robert Bielby Wandered Away While on Hunting Trip Last Fall, and All Attempts at Finding Him Have Been Fruitless—Son and Neighbors Now Go For Final Search.

Benton Harbor, Mich., March 28.—Off for the wilds of northern Michigan, expecting to spend several weeks in a hunt for the body of Robert Bielby, a Cass county farmer, who last November went north with a company of Berrien county hunters to shoot deer, and who strayed away from the camp and became lost to civilization, a party of Eau Claire, Sodus and Dowagiac hunters have just left Benton Harbor over the Pere Marquette, going to Chicago and thence directly north to their camp of last fall.

In the party were William and Robert Ferry, Elijah Puterbaught, Charles Cook, Will Bielby, son of the dead man, and Will Ridenourt. Efforts so far to find the body of the dead Cass county farmer have been fruitless, despite the offer of liberal rewards.

Robert Bielby disappeared from the camp of the hunters on November 16. When he did not return for two days the fears of his comrades grew, and they instituted a search. A week passed, and the missing man could not be found. His son, who was in camp, started out alone and for days covered miles of trackless wilds without result. In despair, the party broke camp and returned home to tell the widow.

The expedition which left here will make a systematic search, the son declaring that he will not return until the body is found. Expert guides will be hired in the north to aid in the search. With the snow gone, hopes are entertained that the expedition will be successful.

State News In Brief.

Sylvester Greusel of Hastings has been appointed a deputy state factory inspector.

Mrs. Thomas Hackett, aged seventy-six years, for many years a resident of Monroe, is dead of pneumonia.

Rev. W. M. Corkery of Caro has accepted a call to the Baptist church of Cadillac, his pastorate to begin May 1.

After being closed down for over a week, the binder twine plant at the prison has resumed operations. A shipment of six carloads of Yucatan sisal was received Friday, and about eight or nine carloads are on the road.

The Osceola County McKinley club will banquet at the opera house in Reed City April 7. James V. Barry of Lansing will be toastmaster, and Edwin Denby, Chase S. Osborn, Amos S. Musselman and Grant Fellows will speak.

News of a terrible saw mill accident comes from Holton. Percy Cooley, twenty-five years old, operating a buzz saw in the mill, was caught by the revolving belt, and two companions who stood by, helpless to stop the machinery, saw him drawn across the saw and his left leg severed at the knee.

With 12,000 bushels still in the hands of growers in the vicinity of Traverse City, the price of potatoes dropped to 10 cents a bushel on the local market Saturday. An estimate places the number of bushels marketed so far this season at only 80,000. There are fully 50,000 bushels in storage there, and as the storage charge is five cents a bushel the owners will do well if they break even.

Fred Anderson, an employe at plant No. 2 of the Port Huron Engine & Thresher company, met with a horrible death in the mill room of the plant. While he was oiling a rattler of one of the big machines, Anderson's arm was caught and the body was drawn into the machine. Before anyone could assist him he was whirled half way around, his body being badly mangled and clothing torn to shreds. Death was almost instantaneous.

The Rudderless Ship of the Anti-Saloon League is Rapidly Going to Pieces On the Rock of Reason.

No longer can thinking people be swayed by their unreasoning and unthinking hysteria. They base everything on the argument of an imaginative amount of money they are going to save for the man who drinks by voting the county dry, and then the figures confront them that show that all they are able to accomplish when they vote the county dry is to rob it of the revenue formerly secured from the licensed liquor houses.

During the past 13 years, representing the active life of the anti-saloon league, the per capita consumption of distilled liquor has increased from one gallon to one and a half gallons and the fermented liquors from fifteen to twenty-two gallons as shown by the United States internal revenue department.

This is indisputable evidence that the sale of liquor has not been decreased, but increased during the period of the greatest activity of the prohibition forces. And this is dissipated the oft repeated story which has made them more votes than any other one of their emotional and sensational arguments. If the drinker does not save any money, then of course, it follows that he cannot spend more money with the merchant.

The prohibitionist closes up the legalized license paying saloon and produces the "bootlegger" and the blind pig. If these two do not come immediately into existence, then the foreign brewer and the mail order houses supply the local demand.

A statement appeared in a recent issue of the Adrian daily newspapers over the signature of the Lenawee County Anti-Saloon League. The statement shows that what is probably a true tabulation of the state tax for insane asylums, prisons, industrial schools, home for feeble minded and the state public school for dependent children. Immediately below this statement if another entirely imaginative, but which the clever dry ad. writer wants Lenawee county citizens to accept as being official. This is a part of the average deception practiced by the anti-saloon league everywhere.

If the figures which they can get from official sources do not suit them they get their argument first and then make the figures fit the argument. The figures referred to, published by the anti-saloon league state that 25 per cent. of the state tax for keeping the insane is chargeable against the saloon and that the inmates to that extent have been made insane by liquor. The best statistics obtainable have proven to government officials that no more than 6 per cent. of the inmates of the insane asylums are there as the result of liquor.

The next figures are 75 per cent. of the inmates of state prisons are there as the result of liquor. On page 144 of Special Census Records, Washington, D. C., 1904, "Prisoners and Juvenile Delinquents," the total number of prisoners confined and sent to prison that year in the United States is shown as 140,601, and the number sent to prison for drunkenness was 34,753. According to the figures given by the Adrian representative of the Anti-Saloon league the number should have been 105,000.

And while we are considering the question of the inmates of prison if the argument presented by the Adrian expert of the Anti-Saloon league is represented to prove anything, it is that by adopting prohibition you will decrease crime. Kansas has had 30 years of prohibition. The records just referred to show on page 14 that from 1890 to 1904, Kansas had an idcrease in the number of prisoners in its state prisons of 58.2 per cent. to 100,000 inhabitants and this does not include prisoners in the federal prison. In the Michigan prisons during the same period of time there was a decrease of 23.1 per cent.

The state of Maine, the oldest prohibition state in this nation, is shown on page number 21 of Special Report Insane and Feeble Minded in hospitals and Institutions, 1904 to have had 89.2 per cent. of inmates to 100,000 population and this is the largest percentage excepting New Hampshire shown by the North Atlantic division of states.

If prohibition would accomplish a decrease in this ratio, Maine should be the best example of this fact.

Now, if we take the next oldest prohibition state, Kansas, we find that 87.9 per cent. of its inmates in the asylums are native born and this is only equaled by one other state, Indiana in the North Central Division. On page number 41 in the same record, table number 28 we find the cost of maintainance of the inmates in Maine's public hospitals to be $253,810. In the year 1904, while in New Hampshire it is $139,660. In Vermont $152,393, Rhode Island $106,299, Connecticut $131,269 and in Kansas, "dry" $332,370. In Nebraska, a "wet" state adjoining and about the same population $207,237.

On page number 79, table No. 1, same records, Maine is shown to have received in its hospitals in the year 1904, 188 men and 145 women. To charge that 25 per cent. of these women were made insane by liquor is to bring the strongest possible charge against the prohibition state of Maine. The same table shows 369 of the inmates of the hospitals in Kansas, admitted during 1904, were women and it would be a preposterous charge that 100 of these were there as the result of the use of liquor. Of the total number of inmates in Kansas hospitals, Dec. 31, 1903, 1,1033 were women. Do the prohibition fanatics want to go on record as saying that 250 of these were drunkards?

The astute "dry" ad. writer for the Anti-saloon league says that 40 per cent. of the people confined in institutions are there because of the saloons. It would be just as fair and certainly just as correct to assume that they were there as the result of hysteria created by the Anti-saloon league.

PROHIBITION AND EQUITY

It is hard to believe that any considerable number of people in any civilized community could be induced to destroy their neighbor's property without just indemnity in advance. Such people might be found in a community of criminals, but how Christian men and women could propose such a thing is incomprehensible. Yet this is exactly what our local option friends promise to do, not only in Adrian, but many of the best cities of the country.

If these people were bad, we could understand. If they were ignorant, they might be excused. They are neither ignorant, nor bad at heart They are thoughtless. They are intoxicated with zeal to promote temperance, but their methods are not only intemperate, but futile and unjust.

You may destroy the local brewery and abolish every saloon in the city, or county, but everybody who wants liquor will get it. Blind tigers will take the place of legitimate saloons. The boot legger will bring it to your door. Mail order houses will grow rich irrigating the city with lawless liquor. You may reduce the consumption of beer, but the consumption of whiskey will increase. Local option makes whiskey drinkers of beer drinkers, and thereby increases drunkenness. It augments the evils which these good, but misguided people would cure.

They would not only destroy the investments of men now engaged in the legitimate saloon business, but would empty every saloon building in the city, depreciate real estate values, increase taxes, breed liars, sneaks, hypocrites and petty criminals, without promoting the cause of temperance. As I write there lies before me a copy of the Decatur (Ill.) Herald. for Monday, March 14, 1910. This city has tried prohibition for two years. On page 12 I read:

"Thirty-four arrests on charges ranging from plain drunk to an attempt at murder, was the record made by the police from 12 o'clock noon Saturday to 10 o'clock Sunday night."

"Nine drunks were arrested in a single room on East Elderado street," says the Herald.

Two weeks previous on Sunday, a wowan drunk and almost stark naked, was arrested on the main street of dry Decatur.

Prohibition is an aggravation, but it is not a cure for drunkenness. Nearly every person will listen to good advice. If you say to a man—your fellow soverign, whose power and authority is equal to your own, "You should not drink to excess." He will thank you for the suggestion and probably heed your admonition. But if you say to him: "You shall not drink at all," he will tell you to go to h—. Not only will he rebel against your tyranny, but to show his contempt for your authority, will drink twice as much as he otherwise would. This is natural. The harder a thing is to get, the more people want it. What everybody can have nobody wants. This is literally true of the social evil, and it is equally true of other things.

The folly of prohibition is shown in the story of Eden. The devil was never able to set up in business, or damn a single soul until after the passage of the first prohibitory law. Whether this story is true or not, it is based upon a fact in nature. Adam and Eve were perfect. The supreme God, not some Anti-Saloon Leaguer, or policeman with a club, uttered the mandate. It was accompanied by a threat of death, not fines and imprisonment. They were perfect, not sinful like we, yet they defied Jehova in a matter which concerned their personal liberty, and braved death and damnation in defense of their inalienable right to eat and drink what pleased them.

If a perfect pair would do this, what can you expect of men who live today? If the first man defied Jehova, how can you expect his children to bow to the dictation of self-appointed guardians who would lord it over them?

Not being able to enforce your mandate without destroying freedom, not being able to save the drunkard, nor promote the cause of temperance by despotism, persistence in the direction of prohibition is supreme folly.

There is not an advocate of local option in the country but what knows that it is wrong to destroy another's property without indemnity. When the state destroys disease-infected stock, the farmer is paid for his loss. This is right. It is nothing more than justice. We ask the same for the saloon man and brewer. If you are to confiscate or destroy their property, or impair their investments, pay them for the damage. This is the voice of equity. They are not in the business as criminals, but in answer to a legitimate demand. If this demand did not exist they could not exist. Their property has been taxed for the support of the community. Their business is recognized by the government. It divides millions of dollars with Uncle Sam each year. The amount for 1909 was $253,977,391.26, which notwithstanding the advance of prohibition, is an increase over 1908 of $8,445,276.32. Prohibitionists attack Uncle Sam's partner. You are one of the beneficiaries. So long as this is true, local option is inconsistent. It is unjust. It must continue to be a failure. Dissolve the partnership nationally before attacking the business in which you are a beneficiary It will be time enough to talk local option when Uncle Sam has set his seal of condemnation on the traffic in liquor. To be consistent every local optionist should vote the national prohibition ticket. No Democrat or Republican can be consistent and vote for local option.

Besides the people of these communities where the fight is being waged have for years been accepting license money for the support of local government. It has gone to keep up the police and fire departments. It has been expended in building better streets. Much of it has been devoted to educational purposes. If you are going to destroy this business, make restitution. The people of these cities encouraged the location of breweries. The brewer was led to believe that his money would be safe if invested in this enterprise. He therefore induced his friends to join their capital with his, and now their investments are about to be swept away with resourse. The destruction in many instances will be as great, should local option prevail as if an anarchist were to place a bomb under their property and blow it to fragments.

Is this equity? Can it be right? Put yourself in their place before you vote. Consider whether you would have others do unto you the thing YOU propose to do unto them. Can you destroy their property and not violate the Golden Rule? Besides, if you do, we have already shown that it will not promote the cause of temperance. The blind pig, the bootlegger, the mail order house will supply the demand. You will still have the drunks. It is absurd to stand for such a proposition. Defeat it in the name of reason and equity. Uphold honor, stand for a square deal, defend liberty, and promote progress and prosperity, by voting No.

VECELIUS-PATTISON

Quite a number about town are receiving the following announcements:

Mrs. J. L. Pattison announces the marriage of her daughter Madalyn to Mr. Leonard Conklin Vecelius on Wednesday, March 23, 1910, Detroit. At home after June 1st, Abington, Ill.

The bridal couple accompanied by Fred VanTine and lady friend left the home of the mother just before 7 o'clock by automobile and went to the church where they were quietly married returning to the house in half an hour where the guests assembled for their reception.

The house was beautifully decorated and everything was merry as a marriage bell. They were the recipients of many useful and beautiful presents.

Dainty refreshments were served and those in attendance passed a very delightful evening. The happy pair leave soon for their new home in Illinois. We wish them a long and happy future.

CONFERENCE

OF LOCAL OPTION WORKERS AT Y. M. C. A.

PRACTICALLY EVERY COMMUNITY WAS REPRESENTED.

President John Carr Gave Some Facts and Figures.

Local option workers from every section of Lenawee county held a conference behind closed doors at the Y. M. C. A. this morning, the meeting adjourning shortly after noon.

The meeting was the largest held thus far of the township and village chairmen and county leaders. Practically every community was represented by one or more men.

Success of the dry cause was echoed in every report of the canvasses made throughout the county. Each district representative, as his name was called by President Carr of the Lenawee County Anti-Saloon league made an address of ten minutes, giving facts and figures that showed the trend of the feeling throught the county toward abolishing the saloon.

The township chairmen were warned against over confidence and they leave for their respective districts this afternoon expressing the determination to swing every vote possible into the dry county.

Two of the chairmen reported that in certain districts the merchants contributed freely to the dry side and hoped to see it win because of the effect on business.

Party lines were cast aside in the meeting and the men of both parties laid plans together to win the battle at the polls regardless of any other angle.

The statement was made that because the dry proposition is the biggest of the two, every effort shall be made to win on the local option proposition first.

The men present were business men, farmers and residents of the towns represented.

Several interesting incidents in connection with the campaign throughout the county were told.

One was that of a conversation with a Seneca farmer, whose standing on the wet and dry question was doubtful. The chairman of a nearby district was talking with the farmer on the tax proposition in connection with local option. He reminded that farmer of how a hired hand under the influence of intoxicants had spoiled six acres of the farmer's hay. "Now, how much of your tax would that six acres of hay have paid?" asked the chairman.

"Why, let me see," pondered the farmer, "by gosh, it would have paid all my taxes for last year."

Another incident that was rather pitiful was that of a Hudson drunkard, unable to abstain from liquor, who was out working "for his own salvation," as Mr. Reimer of Hudson, expressed it.

The grangers, who have expressed themselves in Lenawee county for local option, are holding wet and dry discussions at Medina in order to arrive at the economic points on both sides. As yet they have been unable to secure a speaker from the wet forces, but the latter have offered to furnish the arguments on their side if the grangers will produce a man to take the platform and voice the arguments.

The meeting was one of the most successful which the leaders of the Lenawee County Anti-saloon league have held and the enthusiasm over the local option prospects in all sections were declared by the county officials to express for greater expectations than had been looked for. President Carr of the county league presided.

After the meeting it was reported that the money for carrying on the campaign in the various parts of the county has been forthcoming from many sources and that this will do much good.

Arrangements for handling the crowds at the various local option meetings throughout the county were made and a large list of splendid speakers were provided and adopted.

ADMIRAL HUBBARD.

Reported Gun on His Flagship, Charleston, Exploded.

GUN EXPLODED.

Reported Eight Men Have Been Killed on Cruiser Charleston.

Manila, March 28.—It is reported that a gun on the cruiser Charleston exploded while she was at target practice in Olongapo bay. Eight men are reported killed or wounded. The cruiser is returning to Cavite.

The Charleston is the flagship of Admiral Hubbard, commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet. Her commanding officer is Commander John H. Gibbons.

The Charleston is of steel, 9,700 tons, a sister ship of the Milwaukee and St. Louis. She is six years old. Her armament consists of fourteen 6 inch quick firing guns, eighteen 14 pounders, quick firing, and twenty-five smaller guns. As a flagship she carries 564 men.

THOUSANDS STROLLED.

And Scores Bathed in Surf at Atlantic City Sunday.

Atlantic City, N. J., March 28.—Atlantic City, with a perfect Easter Day, had over 20,000 promenaders on the board walk at noon. Promenaders arrayed in new Easter outfits were forced to elbow their way along, and special police were on duty to prevent congestion.

Five thousand rolling chairs, chartered by the less active visitors, formed two solid lines from the inlet to Chelsea ends of the board walk, while the overflow of strollers on the beach gave the strand the appearance of mid-summer. The temperature mounted into the 70's under perfect clear skies, and scores of bathers took dips in the surf.

In Washington.

Washington, March 28.—Easter Sunday in Washington brought out the usual display of gowns and other "creations." Connecticut avenue was thronged withe diplomats and their wives, cabinet officers and others well known in official life. In the morning President Taft motored to All Souls Unitarian church, while Mrs. Taft went to St. Johns.

ROUTING TRAMPS HE SHOT COMRADE

Nightwatchman at Niles Hits Railroad Baggageman.

Niles, Mich., March 28.—While assisting in routing a gang of tramps out of the local railroad yards early Sunday morning, Barron Wetherbee, night baggageman of the Michigan Central, was accidentally shot in the back by John Bachman, night watchman in the yards. The bullet from a 32 caliber revolver passed completely through Wetherbee's back, penetrating the lower lobe of the right lung, making a very dangerous, if not fatal, wound.

Bachman had been advised from Michigan City that a gang of hoboes were en route to Niles Saturday night, and he drove five out from train No. 4. More were expected on No. 6, which arrived at 1 o'clock Sunday morning, and Wetherbee joined Bachman in the man hunt. On the arrival of the train Bachman routed one tramp from the front end of the baggage car, and as the fellow ran toward the rear end of the train, Bachman fired several shots from his revolver, one of which struck Wetherbee.

MERGE FREIGHT BUSINESS.

P., O. & N. to Be Consolidated With Other G. T. Divisions.

Pontiac, Mich., March 28.—F. H. Hall, station agent of the Grand Trunk in Pontiac, has announced that on April 1 the P., O. & N. freight business will be consolidated with that of the D., G. H. & M. and Air Line divisions of the Grand Trunk, the joint agent having offices in the present Grand Trunk freight sheds on Jackson street.

Recently Grand Trunk officials stated before the railway commission that the P., O. & N. was a separate road and not a part of the Grand Trunk system, it merely happening that Grand Trunk men had purchased the P., O. & N. stock.

Taking One's Own Pulse.

Being able to "take" one's own pulse is a doubtful accomplishment, because the heart has some peculiarities the importance of which are sure to be overestimated except by physicians and much uneasiness occasioned in consequence. Irregularity of the pulse is natural to no small number of people without other signs of disease. It may also be simply a transient symptom, due to errors of habit or other causes which, disappearing, leave no trace behind them.

AMUSEMENTS!

A $500 excursion for 50cents is not a flignt of fancy but a faithful reflection of what may be enjoyed by traveling with Lyman Howe" at the Bradley Opera House, Tecumseh on Friday April 1st. The illusion of really touring is perfect. The variety and animation of the scenes are stimulating delightful, educational. U. S army maneuvers, tactics, and equipment; a volcanic eruption in Java; logging in Italy; wild birds in natural colors; Mohammedans at worship in Delhi, India; the peculiar effect of music on wild animals; winter gayety at St. Mortiz—the famous resort in Switzerland, and many other subjects are included in this remarkable program. Everything new this spring.

Two Merry Tramps

Of "Two Merry Tramps" many pleasing things have been said by the critics, not only in larger cities but in the one night stands as well where Two Merry Tramps have been presented, about Wood & Ward's production. The play being strictly a musical comedy with three acts and a bevy of pretty girls.

The title of the piece is somewhat misleading, but it is only the title, for from the rise to the fall of the curtain it is just one of the cleanest, jolliest and liveliest comedies that has enliv- the musical field. Never for an instant does it bring a blush, but instead brings laughter that is irrepressible. For the past eight seasons it has played to packed houses in the middle West and appeals to the elite of fashion and all that is refined. The comedy is natural, the music catchy, the scenery magnificent, the costumes gorgeous and the cast all that can be desired.

Wood & Ward haue carefully selectd teeir company for his or her ability. Among tne members will be found, Bessie Bennett, Corrinne McDonald, Margeret McDonald, Dorothy Howard Goldie Felding, June Flottos, who are playing feminine roles

This attraction will be at the Bradley Opera House on next Saturday night. See ad for prices.

Stomach Dead, Man Still Lives

People who suffer from sour stomach, fermentation of food, distress after eating and indigestion, and seek relief in large chunks of artificial digestors, are killing their stomachs by inaction just as surely as the victim of morphine is deadening and injuring beyond repair every nerve in his body.

What the stomach of every sufferer from indigestion needs is a good prescription that will build up his stomach, put strength, energy and elasticity into it, and make it sturdy enough to digest a hearty meal without artificial aid.

The best prescription for indigestion ever written is sold by druggists everywhere and by C. A. Wright & Son., and is rigidly guaranteed to build up the stomach and cure indigestion, or money back.

This prescription is named Mi-o-na, and is sold in small tablet form in large boxes, for only 50 cents. Remember the name, Mi-o-na stomach tablets. They never fail. They contain ingredients that give quick relief (other than strong digesters), but they are compounded for the purpose of making the stomach strong and energetic enough to do its work without the aid of harmful drugs.

How to Cure Your Piles

Due Often To Carelessness or Neglect and Stubborn to Cure

"The knife is not always necessary to cure even desperate cases of piles," says a physician whose years and experience make him an authority. "Indeed," he says further: "I have known some very aggravated cases of long standing cured by a simple home remedy that restored to the bowels easy natural daily movements."

And the doctor is right, as many letters from cured people in various parts of the country prove. If sufferers from piles, rectal tumors and ulcers would try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin they would often save themselves the terrible pain and danger and the heavy expense of a severe surgical operation.

Piles are often due to constipation and are always aggravated by it. Easy natural movements of the bowels such as are invariably produced by this famous laxative without pain or gripe do much to restore a normal, healthy condition to the bowels and thus cure piles.

M. H. Miller, Moweaque, Ill., says: "I have been troubled all my life with piles brought on by constipation. I tried many doctors and numerous remedies, but found no relief until I used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I have used it as a laxative and stomach remedy for the past nine years and have no more troubles with piles." H. N. John, Minneapolis, Kan., says he suffered for four years with piles which were so bad that he could not work. Four bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin cured him, and he says he has not been bothered since.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a safe sure remedy for constipation, restoring easy natural daily movements in the worst old chronic cases, yet so mild and pleasant to take mothers give it to their babies with splendid results. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Pepsin Syrup Co., 302 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill., will send a free sample to anyone who has not used it and will give it a fair trial.

She didn't think how it would sound: A widow erected a monument to her husband, with the inscription, "Rest in peace until we meet again."

The world famous fire shot who holds the championship record of 100 pigeons in 100 consecutive shots is living at Lincoln, Ill. Recently interviewed, he says:—"I have suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble and have used several well known kidney medicines all of which gave me no releif until I started taking Foley's Kidney Pills. Before I used Foley's Kidney Pills I was subjected to severe backache and pains in my kidneys with suppression and oftentimes a cloudy voiding. While upon arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and once more feel like my own self. All this I owe solely to Foley's Kidney Pills, and always recommend them to my fellow sufferers. Sold by all druggists.

There are any number of men who, while ever ready to share their troubles with their wives, manifest a strong disinclination to share their pleasures with them.

Foley's Kidney Remedy will cure any case of Kidney or bladder that is not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. Sold by all druggists.

Virtue is its own reward, but a little cash helps out.

Would Have Cost Him His Life.

Oscar Bowman, Lebanon, Ky., writes: I have used Foley's kidney Remedy and take great pleasure in stating it cured me permanently of kidney disease which certainly would have cost me my life. Sold by all Druggists.

Tender-hearted folks may succeed in getting the rod banished from the schools, but they will never be able to make the railroads give up their switches.

A NIGHT ALARM

Worse than an alarm of fire at night is the metalic cough of croup. Careful mothers keep Foley's Honey and Tar in the house and give it at the first sign of danger. Foley's Honey and Tar has saved many little lives. No opiates. Sold by all druggists.

Quarrels make enemies and leave the question still unsettled

Pneumonia follows a cold but never follows the use of Foley's Honey and Tar which stops the cough, heals the lungs and expels the cold from the system. Sold by all Druggists.

NO SUBSTITUTE

Accept no substitute for Foley's Honey and Tar. It is the best and safest remedy for coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles. Contains no opiates and no harmful drugs. Remember the name, Foley's Honey and Tar, accept no substitutes. Sold by all Druggists.

Avoid Cheap and Big Can Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money, but it's not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a very small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as it does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acrid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and often unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same time moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

Any case of blindness except, the blindness of love, is curable if the patient can see a doctor.

Possibly dead men tell no tales because they have such an unresponsive audience around them.

Men are like a barrel of apples—all are not good, and only a few are almost perfect.

If you find any substance in your baking injurious to health made from baking powder in this can there is—

$1000 In it for you

The makers of certain Baking Powders have recently been shouting, "purity, purity, purity!!" All other manufacturers have been openly accused of offering an impure product. Calumet, as the largest competitor, has of course come in for its share. But we simply smiled—as our business grew.

For Calumet has been backed for years by an offer of $1,000 for any substance injurious to health found in the baking prepared with it. This offer has never been challenged.

Don't you think that if there was the least trace of impurity in Calumet that our competitors would be the first to jump at this offer? Wouldn't this be an ideal way of putting our product off the market entirely.

Does not this and the fact that it complies with all pure food laws, both State and National, prove that Calumet is absolutely pure?

With the purity question settled—then Calumet is undoubtedly the best Baking Powder. It contains more leavening power; it is more uniform—every can is the same. It assures better results—and it is moderate in price.

EVIDENCE AGAINST ALBERT WOLTER

Circumstances Point to His Having Killed Ruth Wheeler.

New York, March 28.—The police and the district attorney's office are surrounding Albert Wolter, charged with the murder of fifteen-year-old Ruth Wheeler, with circumstantial evidence and making an effort to perfect their case and to find out the whole truth of the murder of the child who went to Wolter's home in search of employment as a stenographer. Katie Muller (whose name Saturday was given as Miller) has been arrested and has given some valuable corroborative evidence against Wolter.

Coroner's Physician Obanion, after performing an autopsy on Ruth Wheeler's remains, has expressed the opinion that she had been burned alive.

Wolter has been taken to the Yorkville court, where the charge of abduction was withdrawn and Magistrate Breen remanded him to the custody of the coroner on the charge of murder. Wolter was then sent over to the Tombs on the coroner's committment.

Katie Muller was arrested at the house in East One Hundred and Fifth street, where Wolter and the girl had taken rooms after their flight from the house of the murder in East Seventy-fifth street. She said that she had noticed on her return from work on Thursday evening that the stove had been moved from the dining room and the whole front of the fireplace painted. Also the hole in the fire board through which the stove pipe had gone had been covered over by an actress's picture. She questioned Wolter about this and he said that he had moved the stove so as to have things ready for summer, painted the fireplace to make it prettier and put the actress' picture over the pipe hole for the same purpose, and that he had painted the marble slab in the flooring at the base of the fireplace because he had dropped paint on it.

She identified the shirt found as Wolter's shirt and the sack in which Ruth Wheeler's body was found as the sack in which the wood was carried up to the rooms. The sack had afterwards been used as a door mat, she said. She was detained as a witness.

LOCAL OPTION!

Notice of Election.

Notice is hereby given that an election will be held in the township of Tecumseh, County of Lenawee, State of Michigan, on Monday the 4th day of April, 1910, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified electors the question "Should the Manufacture of Liquors and the Liquor Traffic be prohibited in said county?"

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss:

At a regular session of the Board of Supervisors of Lenawee County, continued and held at the Court House in the City of Adrian, on Thursday, October 14, 1910, the following resolution and order was unanimously adopted:

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Whereas, Thirty-six petitions from as many townships, precincts and wards of Lenawee County, praying that the question "Should the manufacture of liquors and the liquor traffic be prohibited in said County," be submitted to the qualified electors thereof, have been laid before the Board of Supervisors at the present session of the Board by the County Clerk of said County, which petitions have been duly examined and upon which examination it appears that such petitions have been signed by more than one-third of the qualified electors of said County as shown by the returns and canvass of the general election for state officers held in said County in November, 1908.

The Board finds that the highest vote for any State officer in said County at the said last general election was eleven thousand seven hundred and sixty-seven (11,767) votes, and that said petitions have been signed by five thousand five hundred and sixty-seven (5,567) electors of said County. Therefore,

Resolved, And it is hereby ordered, that the question whether the manufacture of liquors and the liquor traffic be prohibited in Lenawee county under the provisions of Act No. 207 of the Public Acts of 1889 and the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, be submitted to the qualified electors of said county at the next general election of township officers in the several townships, villages and cities of Lenawee County, to be held on the first Monday in April, 1910, to ascertain whether or not it is the will of the electors of the county that the manufacture of liquors and the liquor traffic should be prohibited within the limits of said county.

JOHN K. BINNS,

WORK NEVER STOPS.

Methods of Four Big Banks in the Wall Street District.

Four big banks in the Wall street district resemble the great gold mines of the west in one striking feature. They have three eight-hour shifts of toilers, and the work never stops. One set takes up the routine where the other leaves off. All night long, Sundays and holidays, a staff of men in each of these banks is busy opening thousands of letters, sorting and listing innumerable checks and drafts that represent fabulous sums of money and getting them ready for the day force, which is the only one the public comes in contact with or ever hears about. If this work was not carried on incessantly the bank would soon be overwhelmed with a mountainous accumulation of detail.

Two shifts—the "scouting force," as they call themselves—work between 5 o'clock in the afternoon and 9 the next morning. Each bank has a big drawer in the general postoffice. Messengers clear this of its letters every hour all night long. Three thousand letters a day is the average mail of one of these large banks. Two-thirds of it comes in during the night. These letters in the case of one of the biggest of these banks contain from 35,000 to 40,000 checks and drafts. At times these inclosures represent as much as $30,000,000. Rarely does the total fall below $20,000,000.

The letters are opened as fast as they are received, the checks are counted and the total verified with the footings of the lists. The letters are then stamped, which shows that they have been "proven in," as the banks call it. After that they are turned over to the clerks who send out the formal acknowledgments of the remittances they contain. The various checks are assorted according to the numbers of the books in which they are to be entered and otherwise, the sight drafts are grouped according to the routes of the bank's messengers, and all is made ready for turning the night's accumulation over to the day force, so it may be handled by it as expeditiously as possible.

Each of these shifts of night workers at the banks consists of from twelve to twenty men. Some banks get along with but one extra set of clerks at night. These come on duty at midnight and leave at 8 a. m. This plan of working all night long in order to keep up with the tremendous amount of business that comes in by mail was inaugurated about five years ago. The first bank that tried it found that so much valuable daytime was saved that one institution after another took it up until now there are four that have these three eight-hour shifts of clerks and several more who work only a part of the night.—Harper's Weekly.

Ironing Out the Germs.

Ironing linen has a greater effect than is commonly believed. As the temperature of the iron may greatly exceed 266 degrees F., it has been suggested that the process of ironing may suffice to sterilize surgical dressings and hence be of valuable service, especially in rural districts and elsewhere, in the absence of disinfecting ovens and sterilizers. Nearly all microbes can be killed by a sufficiently long application of a temperature of 158 degrees F., but a temperature of 266 degrees F. is required to kill certain spores of bacteria and to produce absolutely complete sterilization. It has been proved by experiment that it is possible to disinfect clothing very satisfactorily by ironing. Clothing which has been worn by children affected by various contagious diseases and which contained bacteria or pus, diphtheria and the like was sprinkled and ironed. It was then rubbed on plates of gelatin prepared for the culture of bacteria, but not a single colony was developed.

Tuberculosis in Children.

Based on the census of 1900, it is estimated by the National Association For the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis that nearly 100,000 children now in school will die of tuberculosis before they are eighteen years of age or that about 6,400 die annually from this disease. Estimating that on an average each child who dies of tuberculosis has had six years of schooling, the aggregate loss to the country in wasted education each year amounts to $1,152,000. According to investigations made in New York, Boston and Stockholm, the percentage of children who are afflicted with tuberculosis is much larger than the death rate would indicate.

NOT VACANT.

STORE BUILDINGS IN JACKSON SAID TO BE RENTED

Photographs of former saloon buildings at Jackson, which are now occupied by business and which were reported by the Adrian "wets" to be vacant, were received at the local option headquarters today.

In the March 19 issue of the Times there appeared an advertisement stating that among other buildings, the following were vacant:

Paul Schramm, 110 W. Cortland St. $50
Palmer Est., 250 E. Main St..... 55
Tom Satchford, 125 S. Jackson..... 60

The Paul Schramm store has been rented and yesterday when the photographs were taken, remodeling had been in progress for one week, according to the photographer who secured the photographs. The building was rented to the hardware store next door to it, the merchants finding that they needed more room to take care of the increased business. That was the statement which they made to the visiting photographer, when asked why they had rented the building for $50 a month.

The building owned by the Palmer estate had been rented for some time at $55 a month to R. J. Wright, who was doing a flourishing business in dry goods and notions. He reported himself well pleased at his business progress.

The Tom Ratchford building at 125 S. Jackson was rented at $60 a month and men were working inside remodeling it for immediate occupancy.

Other photographs are being secured today by the photographer, who telephoned the local option headquarters that practically every building which was said to be vacant, is either occupied now or rented. Those which are not now either occupied or rented are being dickered for by interested parties who will establish business there, said the Jackson informant of the Anti-saloon league.

RECEPTION

A very pleasant reception was that tendered Rev. Dunning and wife last evening. The church parlors were packed to their fullest capacity. Several speeches were given. Rev. Cheney spoke most feelingly on the departure of the brother and friend of all.

The quartette rendered fine music. A trio by Slater, Ellis and Dickenson a duet by Slater and Ellis, Solo by Mrs. McAlpine accompanied on piano by Prof. McAlpin was heartily encored. They responded twice.

Fred Wood in behalf of the many friends presented Rev. Dunning with a purse. His remarks were very effective. Josephine Orr in behalf of the Class gave Mrs. Dunning a solid silver spoon. Rev. Dunning's remarks in response were more than good.

There were strains of sorrow however, for it was sad to know that the loving relations that had so long existed between pastor and people were so soon to end. While he has been in Tecumseh, Rev. Dunning has won the love and respect of all with whom he came in contact and not only in the church but among a host of friends outside he will be greatly missed. Young and old alke have enjoyed his winning personality. To the old he has been as a loving son, to the young an affectionate brother. Watchful alike for all and ever faithful in the discharge of his duties as a pastor. May success attend him.

He that filches from me my good name, robs me of that which enriches not him, and make me poor indeed.—Shakespeare.

LETTER

WRITTEN BY AN INDIANA MAN ABOUT LOCAL OPTION.

The wealthiest man in Kokomo, Ind., has written a letter to voters of Lenawee county on the wet and dry proposition and he has asked that business men, merchants and salaried men of Lenawee county write to him and inquire as to the conditions in their line of business, as exemplified by a year of "dry" regime in Kokomo.

His letter was received at the headquarters of the Anti Saloon league today.

The man is F. D. Miller and owns more real estate than any other two individuals in Kokomo and vicinity. His residence is one of the finest in that city and he has been interested for several years in building up business additions.

Mr. Miller has made $22,000 in real estate during the past year. Kokomo is a city of 15,000 population and is in an agricultural and manufacturing center. It has two automobile factories, a woven wire fence factory, a large rubber tire factory, a bath tub concern and a plate glass rod and wire mill.

Following is Mr. Miller's letter:

Manufacturers of
MRS. CORA. B. MILLER CO.
MRS. MILLER'S HOME TREATMENT, Kokomo, Ind.

Gentlemen: I am willing to lend my service to anybody or organization that is fighting the "wets"—not from a selfish motive for the fact is when Kokomo was "wet" I had four saloons that were my tenants and they paid their rent, but because its right to exterminate them.

Some of our business men when the wet and dry proposition was first agitated were greatly alarmed, fearing it would hurt business, but their fears have vanished. It is being proved to them every day that it's best to have the money go into the legitimate channels of trade. Why, some of our old "habituals" who didn't know what a sober breath meant are now at it in real earnest, working and making good livings for wife and babies, are self supporting and back again into the ranks of the decent and law abiding.

To see a drunken man in Kokomo now is a rare thing and he looked on with pity and contempt. My office be next to the jail gives me a chance to see what's doing and since the saloon is no more, crime is greatly on the decrease. We have not one-tenth the prisoners as when we were "wet."

Some owning business rooms were of the opinion that there would be many vacant rooms when the saloons went out, well, you would be surprised to know how soon they were filled and those that are well located are bringing a higher rent than when occupied by hell shops.

Logansport is about 20 miles from here and by a small margin voted "wet." I get from good authority that most of the business men there that voted "wet" are now very sorry of it. Crime there is on the increase, as they get the bum element from Marion, Peru and Kokomo who want to get drunk and have a hell of a time. This means for Logansport and Cass county more taxes and a less desirable place to live.

Many of the farmers in Cass county are now coming to Kokomo to do their trading, in preference to their going to their own county seat, Logansport. Every argument is in favor of the "drys" as you will see by a visit.

I hope my arguments will be sufficient to cause Adrian and Lenawee county to mend their ways and come into the fold of the law-abiding, contented and happy.

I would be pleased to have any of your voters who would like to know more about the situation in their lines of business to write me.

(Signed)

Sincerely yours,
F. D. MILLER.

The Demon Of The Air

is the germ of LaGrippe, that, breathed in, brings suffering to thousands. Its after effects are weakness, nervousness, lack of appetite, energy and ambition, with disordered liver and kidneys. Bullets have often caused less suffering to soldiers than the eczema L. W. Harriman, Burlington, Me., got in the army, and suffered with, forty years. "But Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured me when all else failed," he writes. Greatest healer for Sores, Ulcers, Boils, Burns, Cuts, Wounds, Bruises and Piles. 25c at C. A. Wright & Son.

That "every dog must have his day," To me seems only right:

One Conductor Who Was Cured

Mr. Wilford Adams is his name, and he writes about it.—"Some time ago I was confined to my bed with chronic rheumatism. I used two bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy with good effect, and the third bottle put me on my feet and I resumed work as conductor on the Lexington, Ky., Street Railway. It gave me more relief than any medicine I had ever used, and it will do all you claim in cases of rheumatism." Foley's Kidney Remedy cures rheumatism by eliminating the uric acid from the blood. Southers, Eau Claire, Wis., says:—"For a long time I have been unable to sleep soundly nights, because of pains across my back and soreness of my kidneys. My appetite was very poor and my general condition was much run down. I have been taking Foley's Kidney Pills but a short time and now sleep as sound as a rock. I eat and enjoy my meals, and my general condition is greatly improved. I can honestly recommend Foley's Kidney Pills as I know they have cured me." For sale by all druggists.

BE Not Deceived.

Every Dry Vote is a Vote to Paralyze Tecumseh.

Mr. Voter, a word with you. Monday, Apr. 4th, 1910, you assume the scepter. At the ballot box you are a sovereign. In your hands rests the material interests of this city and Lenawee County. We ask you as a citizen of the Republic, as an honest, manly man, to weigh silently the effect of your ballot before it is cast.

Before voting to put the saloon out of business consider the lawless blind tiger and the bootlegger that will take their place. Remember that today there is not a city or county in the nation where local option prohibition has been a success. On the other hand it has hurt business, demoralized good citizens, increased the tax rate, lessened the value of real property, created a disrespect for law and order, retarded the progress of reform and in general brought about a condition that has not been conducive to the best interests of this Republic. Before yielding to this fanatical appeal to destroy the property of other men without offering them any compensation, put yourself in your brother's place and remember the Golden Rule. Before you finally decide this matter ask the Anti saloon league to prove to you beyond a reasonable doubt that local option prohibition has been a success in the grand old State of Michigan. Remember that local option prohibition is a farce and is not the ultimate remedy whereby the liquor traffic can be controlled. Remember that since the beginning of civilization men have drank intoxicating liquors and that liquor has always been recognized as an article of commerce. Remember the ultimate solution of the liquor question is education and not laws that are repressive and which eventually become repulsive because aimed at a men's appetite which no law has been able to control.

Before voting on Monday, April 4, take a glance at the experience of Jackson and ask yourself, does local option prohibition prohibit?

Before voting for a dry city or county remember that in the last 10 years Lenawee County has received from the liquor lisence over $300,000. These figures were taken from the records of Lenawee County. Half of this amount went to the cities and villages of Lenawee County and the other half to the County. It is not evident that had the saloon been abolished 10 years ago you would have been compelled to raise this vast sum of money by increasing your taxes? Is it not equally certain that if the county goes dry Monday, Apr. 4, that your taxes must be increased to meet the inevitable deficit which must result from the loss of the saloon license fees?

Remember that if the County goes dry YOU must pay the price. The worst feature is that people pay the prohibition, but never get it. Instead they get blind tigers, speak easies and boot leggers and if these fail to come in at once the mail order liquor house and outside breweries get the business. And these continue to supply the people with liquor and the evil of intemperance increases instead of diminishes.

You have brains, Mr. Voter, for we know that Lenawee County contains the most intelligent and progressive people to be found anywhere and you know that the argument here stated is the unadulterated truth. Vote to uphold the Warner-Cramptou Law for regulation and against prohibition. Vote for Prosperity, Liberty and Progress. Vote NO.

Lenawee County Branch, United States Manufacturer's, Merchant's, and Taxpayer's Association.

Who Unmasked the Trickery of the Merchants' Manufacturers' and Taxpayers' Association?

DID THE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE TELL THE TRUTH?

Mr. Voter, lets determine whether or not the Lenawee Anti-saloon League is honest in its deductions and conclusions. In their arid advertisement published in the Adrian papers Saturday, March 26, they undertake to deceive the voters of Lenawee Co. by calling attention to two planks in our platform. The first one reads as follows: "There shall not be more than one saloon for every 500 of population in the Cities and Villages of Lenawee County." You will notice that our platform does not read one saloon for every 500 of population in Lenawee County.

For instance Blissfield has a population of less than 2,000 with four saloons. Under that plank in our platform she would be entitled to three only. Morenci has four saloons with a population of less than 2,000. Under the above plank in our platform she would not be entitled to more than three saloons. Cement City has two saloons, but under our platform is only entitled to one.

It is true that Lenawee County has a population of 50,000 equally divided between the cities, villages and rural districts of the county. There being but 25,000 population in the cities and villages of Lenawee county, when that clause in our platform is put into effect, instead of increasing the number of saloons in this county there would be a decrease of at least eleven and better regulated.

It is evident that the Anti-saloon League either wants to mislead the people or are unable to read and interpret the English languags, because we say in the Cities and villages only. If all the evidence that they have presented to you for your consideration is on a par with the article referred to, then under every rule of law their evidence would not be entitled to any lisence.

The second clause referred to by the Anti-saloon League reads as follows: "Saloon licenses shall be made transferable and renewed automatically each year on the payment of the annual license fee, but the same shall be forever forfeited upon the second conviction for violation of the law." The above clause follows out the Warner-Crampton Law, except the transferable and renewal features thereof. The saloon is just as legitimate an institution as the sale of dry goods, groceries, meats and every other article of commerce.

This clause was placed in our platform for the purpose of taking the saloon keeper out of politics, so that the corrupt politician would be unable to play upon his desires or his fears. His right to do business is just as lawful as that of any Anti saloon leaguer, and when he dies, that license granted to him, should be an assett that belongs to his estate which should go to potect his wife and children.

If you take the saloon keeper out of politics and make the tenure of his license depend upon absolute compliance with law, and not upon the whim of any man or any other set of men, he will recognize the fact for the first time that he is protected and that he can make an honest, conscientious living without violating the law, and then fanaticism and turmoil will cease forever in this country.

Finally, it is not true that the Merchants, manufactureres, and Taxpayers, Association had anything what ever to do with Stark County, Ohio, campaign, and when the Anti-saloon league made that statment in reference to Stark County, Ohio, we will donate one hundred dollars to the Anti-saloon league.

Lenawee County Branch United States Manufacturers, Merchants, and Taxpayers Association.

AMUSEMENTS!

A $500 excursion for 50cents is not a flight of fancy but a faithful reflection of what may be enjoyed by traveling with Lyman Howe" at the Bradley Opera House, Tecumseh on Friday April 1st. The illusion of really touring is perfect. The variety and animation of the scenes are stimulating delightful, educational. U. S. army maneuvers, tactics, and equipment; a volcanic eruption in Java; logging in Italy; wild birds in natural colors; Mohammedans at worship in Delhi, India; the peculiar effect of music on wild animals; winter gayety at St. Moritz—the famous resort in Switzerland, and many other subjects are included in this remarkable program. Everything new this spring.

Two Merry Tramps

Of "Two Merry Tramps" many pleasing things have been said by the critics, not only in larger cities but in the one night stands as well where Two Merry Tramps have been presented, about Wood & Ward's production. The play being strictly a musical comedy with three acts and a bevy of pretty girls.

The title of the piece is somewhat misleading, but it is only the title, for from the rise to the fall of the curtain it is just one of the cleanest, jolliest and livellest comedies that has enliv- the musical field. Never for an instant does it bring a blush, but instead brings laughter that is irrepressible. For the past eight seasons it has played to packed houses in the middle West and appeals to the elite of fashion and all that is refined. The comedy is natural, the music catchy, the scenery magnificent, the costumes gorgeous and the cast all that can be desired.

Wood & Ward haue carefully selectd teeir company for his or her ability. Among the members will be found, Bessie Bennett, Corrinne McDonald, Margeret McDonald, Dorothy Howard Goldie Felding, June Flottos, who are playing feminine roles.

This attraction will be at the Bradley Opera House on next Saturday night. See ad for prices.

This resulted in the Governor authorizing an article for the National Magazine published in Boston. The article is published in the April issue of that magazine.

The governor said in his letter "I wish that article might be read by every citizen of this community." The reports circulated by the wets regarding Maine grossly misrepresent conditions in Maine.

DON'T BE BALD

ALMOST ANY ONE MAY SECURE a SPLENDID GROWTH OF HAIR

You can easily find out for yourself if your hair needs nourishment, if it is thinning, getting dry, harsh and brittle, or splitting at the ends. You simply have to pull a hair from the top of your head and closely examine its roots. If the bulb is plump and rosy it is all right; if it is white and shrunken your hair is diseased and needs nourishment.

We have a remedy for hair troubles that cannot be surpassed. It has a record of growing hair and curing baldness in 83 out of 100 cases where used according to directions for a reasonable length of time. It will even grow hair on bald heads if the scalp is not glazed and shiny. That may seem like a strong statement — it is, and we mean it to be, and no one should doubt it until they have put our claims to an actual test.

We are so sure that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will completely eradicate dandruff, prevent baldness, stimulate the scalp and hair roots, stop falling hair and grow new hair, that we personally give our positive guarantee to refund every penny paid us for Rexall "93" Hair Tonic in every instance where it does not do as we claim or fails to give entire satisfaction to the user.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is as pleasant to use as clear spring water. It is perfumed with a pleasant odor, and does not grease or gum the hair. We have it in two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. We urge you to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic on our recommendation and with our guarantee back of it. You certainly take no risk.

How to Cure Your Piles

Due Often To Carelessness or Neglect and Stubborn to Cure

"The knife is not always necessary to cure even desperate cases of piles," says a physician whose years and experience make him an authority. "Indeed," he says further: "I have known some very aggravated cases of long standing cured by a simple home remedy that restored to the bowels easy natural daily movements."

And the doctor is right, as many letters from cured people in various parts of the country prove. If sufferers from piles, rectal tumors and ulcers would try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin they would often save themselves the terrible pain and danger and the heavy expense of a severe surgical operation.

Piles are often due to constipation and are always aggravated by it. Easy natural movements of the bowels such as are invariably produced by this famous laxative without pain or gripe do much to restore a normal, healthy condition to the bowels and thus cure piles.

M. H. Miller, Mowkaque, Ill., says: "I have been troubled all my life with piles brought on by constipation. I tried many doctors and numerous remedies, but found no relief until I used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I have used it as a laxative and stomach remedy for the past nine years and have no more troubles with piles." H. N. John, Minneapolis, Kan., says he suffered for four years with piles which were so bad that he could not work. Four bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin cured him, and he says he has not been bothered since.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a safe sure remedy for constipation, restoring easy natural daily movements in the worst old chronic cases, yet so mild and pleasant to take mothers give it to their babies with splendid results. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Pepsin Syrup Co., 302 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill., will send a free sample to anyone who has not used it and will give it a fair trial.

She didn't think how it would sound: A widow erected a monument to her husband, with the inscription, "Rest in peace until we meet again."

The world famous flrie shot who holds the championship record of 100 pigeons in 100 consecutive shots is living at Lincoln, Ill. Recently interviewed, he says:—"I have suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble and have used several well known kidney medicines all of which gave me no releif until I started taking Foley's Kidney Pills. Before I used Foley's Kidney Pills I was subjected to severe backache and pains in my kidneys with suppression and oftentimes a cloudy voiding. While upon arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and once more feel like my own self. All this I owe solely to Foley's Kidney Pills and always recommend them to my fellow sufferers. Sold by all druggists.

There are any number of men who, while ever ready to share their troubles with their wives, manifest a strong disinclination to share their pleasures with them.

Would Have Cost Him His Life.

Accept no substitute for Foley's Honey and Tar. It is the best and safest remedy for coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles. Contains no opiates and no harmful drugs. Remember the name, Foley's Honey and Tar, accept no substitutes. Sold by all Druggists.

Avoid Cheap and Big Can Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation; they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money, but it's not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a very small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as it does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acrid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and often unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same time moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

Mother Rushes Into Burning Home and Rescues Little One.

Kalamazoo, Mich., March 28.—"Oh, oh, my baby is upstairs and I forgot her," and as Mrs. Charles Nichols, the wife of a farmer living about two miles south of the city, uttered the words she dashed into her burning house and in a minute emerged with the tot in her arms. Her night dress was in flames and her hair burning, but closely wrapped in a blanket lay the babe, uninjured by the fire she had been carried through by her mother. The woman is terribly burned.

Paint keeps the Home Bright

A little paint here, a touch of enamel there, a brushful of varnish yonder—everyone can see a dozen such opportunities for brightening and beautifying the home. Perhaps it's the outside of the house that needs protection from the ravages of the weather; perhaps it's a chair, or dresser, the floor or woodwork that has become worn and shabby, or perhaps it's the family carriage, the farm wagon or the lawn swing that has ceased to be a source of pride. But no matter what it is that has become marred and unsightly from age and wear, there's an Acme Quality paint, enamel, stain or varnish that will exactly fit the need. We are agents in this vicinity for —the most scientifically prepared, the most satisfactory in appearance and wear, made in the largest paint and varnish plant in the world. Simply tell us what you want to do, ask for the proper Acme Quality goods for that purpose and you are sure to get the best that can be made.

ACME QUALITY

POPE NOT TO RECEIVE HIM

Roosevelt Refuses to Sacrifice Liberty of Conduct.

POPE DROPPED GENTLE HINT

Feared Repetition of Fairbanks Incident — Negotiations, Carried on While Ex-President Was in Africa, Fall Flat—He Cables Outlook Editor Note of Explanation.

Rome, April 4.—Although traveling as a private citizens, a distinguished private citizen it is true, but still, as he constantly repeats, merely private, Colonel Roosevelt's long journey has been crowned with success. In every stage his hunting of royal game was triumphant. When he emerged fnto civilization, from Khartoum to Cairo, his journey was as that of a monarch. It is on European soil that for the first time in his world famous tour that Colonel Roosevelt has met with disappointment. Until Sunday morning it was though that today would see his meeting with King Victor Emanuel, and on Tuesday his meeting with the pope. He will see the king today, and dine with him, but Roosevelt will not see the pope. Perhaps a more exact way of putting it would be to say the pope will not see Roosevelt.

The Reason.

As soon as Colonel Roosevelt left the jungle at Gondokoro, in February, he wrote to Ambassador Leishman, at Rome, saying that he would be glad of the honor of a presentation to the pope. At Cairo he received a dispatch from Mr. Leishman as follows:

"Rome, March 23.

"The rector of the American Catholic college, Bishop Kennedy, in reply to an inquiry which I caused to be made, requests that the following communication be transmitted to you. It begins: 'The Holy Father will be delighted to grant an audience to Mr. Roosevelt on April 5 and hopes that nothing will arise to prevent it, such as the much regretted incident which made the reception of Mr. Fairbanks impossible.

Mr. Roosevelt replied in a telegram dated March 25, in which he said:

"Please present the following to Bishop Kennedy: It would be a real pleasure to me to be presented to the Holy Father, for whom I entertain high respect, both personally and as the head of a great church. I fully recognize his entire right to receive or not receive whomsoever he chooses for any reason that seems good to him, and if he does not receive me I shall not for a moment question the propriety of his action. On the other hand, I, in turn, must decline to make any stipulation or submit to any conditions which would in any way limit my freedom of conduct. I trust that on April 5 he will find it convenient to receive me.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

Pope Cables Again.

This reply was communicated to the Vatican on the same day, and on March 28 Bishop Kennedy was instructed to send the following communication:

"His Holiness would be much pleased to grant an audience to Mr. Roosevelt, for whom he entertains high esteem, both personally and as the former president of the United States. His Holiness recognizes Mr. Roosevelt's entire right to full freedom of conduct. On the other hand, in view of circumstances for which neither His Holiness nor Mr. Roosevelt is responsible, an audience could not take place except on the understanding expressed in the former message."

Mr. Leishman telegraphed this to Mr. Roosevelt at Cairo, and the latter, on March 29, telegraphed to the ambassador:

"The proposed presentation is, of course, now impossible."

This impossibility was not given publicity until Sunday, by which time it was evidently quite established. Shortly before leaving Naples Sunday afternoon Mr. Roosevelt cabled to Dr. Abbott a statement for publication in the Outlook.

Sensation Expected.

The abortive attempt to arrange an audience is not yet generally known in Rome, but it is already evident that when it does become known it will cause an immense sensation. One gathers that the line of argument taken by the Vatican is that Mr. Roosevelt demands too much; what, in fact, the Vatican could grant to no individual—an absolutely unconditional audience. The Vatican, like every court, has certain regulations, a certain protocol, that it must insist upon.

The Vatican's friendly hint to Mr. Roosevelt not to make the mistake that Mr. Fairbanks made was not suggested by fear that Mr. Roosevelt contemplated anything of the kind either before or after the audience. It was given him in case the information was needed. Mr. Roosevelt's reply was apparently regarded, not, perhaps, as suggesting that he contemplated any action which might hurt the pope's feelings or cause him to repent of granting an audience, but at any rate reserving to himself the right to do such if he pleased.

So far as the matter is discussed yet the shortest way of summarizing

Manila, April 4.—Owing to the lamentable inadequateness of the law, the two Japanese who were arrested here a few days ago on the charge of being spies have been released, and they sailed for Japan today. The military authorities regard the moral effect of their release as almost calamitous, encouraging others to freely probe into the costly defenses here. The Americans demand that congress remedy the ridiculous criminally negligent situation.

BLODGETT HOT AT BELMONT

Takes Him to Task For His Recent Telegram.

HE SEES TROUBLE AHEAD

Thinks Democrats Will Seize Upon It For Campaign Literature—Bill Requiring Publicity of Campaign Funds Does Not Receive Much Consideration by Grand Rapids Man.

Washington, April 4.—Perry Belmont got a quick reply from John W. Blodgett, Republican national committeeman from Michigan, in regard to the campaign publicity bill, the passage of which by congress Mr. Belmont is urging him to use his influence with Senator Burrows with a view to getting the senator to introduce a publicity bill in the senate. Mr. Belmont intimated that his efforts to get action from the senator had been unavailing and he expressed surprise at the sluggishness of Republican organization leaders in the senate to put into effect views that have been publicly expressed by President Taft. Here is the telegram that National Committeeman Blodgett fired back:

What Blodgett Wrote.

"Your telegram is a dishonest, unfair reflection on the Republican party, and reads like a campaign speech, for which it will probably do duty in the next campaign. You know that while President Taft has approved the principle of publicity of campaign expenditures he has not approved the bill now before the house committee. You also know that the Republicans in the last house passed a publicity bill and the Democrats opposed. As a member of the executive committee of the publicity organization I protest against your dragging in party politics in a non-partisan organization. Any fair measure will have my earnest support in every way possible. Please favor me with a copy of your bill.

"J. W. BLODGETT."

Belmont's Reply.

To this telegram Mr. Belmont has replied in part:

"Your telegram, while not explaining Senator Burrows' course, is of such a character that I would not reply to it at all but that my return to a non-partisan organization requires the refutation of the charge that I am seeking partisan advantage. Your attention was called to the action of the Democratic congressional and national committees in order that you and other leading Republicans should bring your party to take similar active interest in the passage of the bill approved by our organization and introduced by one of the ablest Republicans of the house No fair-minded man could suppose that advantage for the Democratic party was sought when I declared the Republican president's position to be practically the same as that of the Democratic committee's. You cannot be familiar with the legislation attempted in congress when you say that Republicans in the last house passed a publicity bill and the Democrats opposed it."

Mr. Belmont adds that it is still within the power of the Republican party, nothwithstanding the attitude of some of its leaders, to secure the advantage of this publicity legislation.

To Meddle.

Meddle once signified "to concern oneself with." It is so used in the Scriptures, where the expression occurs, "Meddle with your own business."

The Musk-Ox.

In systematic zoology the place accorded to the musk ox is intermediate between those of the sheep (ovis) and the ox (bos), and for its special accommodation a new genus has been created, "ovibos." Most writers notice its resemblance in many ways to the buffalo or bison, and it undoubtedly has much affinity with this species.

W. W. WEDEMEYER.

Candidate For Congress Since Townsend Has Withdrawn.

TOWNSEND TO WITHDRAW.

W. W. Wedemeyer Will Be Candidate In His Place.

Detroit, Mich., April 4.—Congressman Charles E. Townsend of Jackson made the definite announcement while stopping at the Griswold House that he will not again be a candidate to represent the Second district, but that he will devote his time and aspirations to his campaign for the United States senate.

Over the long distance telephone from Ann Arbor, W. W. Wedemeyer stated that owing to the withdrawal of Congressman Townsend he would be a candidate for the Reublican nomination.

"About all I can say now," he added, "is that I will be a candidate, although I may have something to add in the next few days."

MAY HAVE BEEN KILLED.

Believed Joseph Moran of Jackson Met With Foul Play.

Jackson, Mich., April 4.—So badly decomposed as to be almost past recognition, the body of a man, later identified as Joseph Moran, was found floating in the Grand river near the heart of this city by Charles Andre, a clerk.

The body had been in the water for at least three weeks. Indications lead to the belief that the man met with foul play, and this is given strength by the fact that his hands were raised above his head, in an attitude of self-defense.

Moran disappeared on the night of Saturday, March 9. He was down town with his brother, Allen Moran, and late in the evening, according to the brother, they separated. That was the last time he was seen alive. The head man was twenty-eight years of age and is not known to have had an enemy.

A post-mortem was held. The lungs were found devoid of water, which strengthens the belief that he was the victim of foul play and the body hurled into the water.

Crushed by Rolling Log.

Saginaw, Mich., April 4.—While he was working on a train loading logs six miles east of Birch Run, David Stewart, a laborer, twenty-five years old, was crushed to death by a rolling log, being killed instantly.

Academy of Science Officers.

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 4.—At the closing session of the Michigan Academy of Science the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Dr. Frederick Novy of the University of Michigan; secretary and treasurer, Professor George D. Shafer, M. A. C.; librarian, Dr. A. H. Ruthven, University of Michigan; vice presidents, C. H. Kaufman, Ann Arbor; Professor W. H. Sherzer, Ypsilanti; A. Pearse, University of Michigan; H. S. Smalley, University of Michigan, and Dr. Guy L. Kiefer, Detroit.

INJUNCTION IS GOOD THING

President Tells Big Meeting of Railroaders About It.

HE WOULD LIMIT ITS USE

Chief Executive Speaks at Convention of Joint Brothers in Train Service at Worcester, Mass.—Took Shot at "Insurgents," During Course of His Address, For Opposing Him.

Worcester, Mass., April 4.—President Taft defined his railroad policies Sunday in a speech in Mechanic's hall, here, before an audience of several thousand railway trainmen who were attending a joint convention of the brotherhoods in train service which has been in session for several days. Mr. Taft spoke for about an hour and discussed freely the union labor situation and the pending legislation in congress affecting railroad men.

Labor organizations, he said, were necessary and he was in favor of them. Organization is necessary, he continued, among railroad employes in order that they might be upon an equality with their employers. Mr. Taft also defended the injuction as an equitable remedy against unlawful injury, but, he added, that not only he but his predecessor, Theodore Roosevelt, both believed that the power to issue injunctions should be limited so that injunctions should not be issued except upon proper grounds. The audience cheered when Colonel Roosevelt's name was mentioned.

A Good Bill.

The administration's injunction bill now pending in congress, he said, is a good bill and should be enacted. The president declared that he stood with the members of the railway trainmen's unions in opposing the boycott and sympathetic strikes. He admitted that he did not know whether or not congress will enact his anti-injunction bill. But, he added, there are two good reasons why it should be passed. One was that it was promised by the Republican party in its last national platform, and the other was that the measure was a step in the right direction. Mr. Taft took a shot at the "insurgents" in congress, who are opposing his program of railroad legislation because of the fact that he conferred with railroad presidents before framing the measure.

Visits Aged Aunt.

During the morning the president spent several hours at Millbury, a suburb, eight miles from here, where he stopped to visit his aged aunt, Miss Delia C. Torrey.

At 1 o'clock, President Taft, accompanied by Governor Draper of Massachusetts and Mayor Logan of Worcester, entered automobiles and motored to Worcester.

Following the president's motor car was an automobile parade through the streets of Worcester. The parade was led by several companies of militia. The line of march was decorated by bunting and flags, and thousands of people thronged the sidewalks.

OPERA PRINCIPALS WED.

Frances Alda, the Singer, Becames Wife of Gatti-Casazza.

New York, April 4.—Guiolio Gatti-Casazza, general director of the Metropolitan Opera House, and his prima donna, Frances Alda, were married Sunday morning in Mme. Alda's apartments in the Ansonia. They left for Chicago after the ceremony.

Justice Charles W. Dayton of the supreme court performed the ceremony. Mrs. Guggenheimer was Mme. Alda's matron of honor, and Rawlins Cottonet, director of the Metropolitan Opera House, was the best man. The only other witness was Albert J. Weber.

Boy Accidentally Shot.

Monroe, Mich., April 4.—While some lads were playing in the rear of Beck's lumber yard, in the Third ward, a flobert rifle was accidentally discharged, resulting in the wounding of twelve-year-old Ralph Kinnear, son of Policeman Kinnear. The boy will probably recover.

Saved by A Parrot

But There Were Links Between the Bird and the Outcome.

By ANDREW C. EWING.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

On either side of New York harbor, commanding the Narrows, is a fort. That on the east shore is called Fort Hamilton, that on the west Fort Wadsworth. These forts are at all times garrisoned by United States troops.

There lived some years ago near Fort Hamilton a widow named Hammond, whose boy, Robert, growing up in close proximity to an army post, imbibed a taste for a military life. When he became eighteen years of age he went into the fort one day and enlisted and then went home and told his mother what he had done.

Robert Hammond was a steady young fellow and, having received a pretty good education, resolved to try for promotion through the noncommissioned to the commissioned grades. He had become a corporal when that happened which sometimes makes and sometimes breaks a man—he got a sweetheart. Nancy Alvord was about Hammond's age and a lovely girl. Nevertheless she was the cause of his getting into trouble.

Famous Coney Island, where there is a multitude of shows, is but a few miles from Fort Hamilton, and one summer day when the young soldier had leave to go where he liked between midday and 9 p. m. he called for Nancy, and together they stepped on an electric car for a visit to the island. Robert had money enough in his pocket to enable them to take in most of the shows, and so great was their enjoyment that the time passed more rapidly than they realized. The days were at the time at their longest, and this, too, had something to do with their mistaking the hour. At any rate, when there was still twilight they heard a clock strike 9.

Robert's heart sank within him. His leave had expired, and he would not be able to reach the fort in less than half an hour. He would be "broken"—that is, reduced to a private—and his dream of becoming a commissioned officer was at an end. At any rate, he would be obliged to begin all over and by a long period of good behavior get again in line.

"Very well, Nancy," he said; "I may as well be hanged for a sheep as a lamb. We'll stay here as long as we like."

Nancy endeavored to induce him to go back at once, but he would not. So they ordered a supper and after that continued to enjoy themselves at the various places designed for the double purpose of giving people pleasure and getting their money. When the money was mostly spent they took a car and went home. Passing a saloon kept by one Murphy, Robert wished to go in and get a glass of beer, but Nancy dissuaded him. Robert left her at her house, then went to his mother's.

Though it was late, Mrs. Hammond was just about going to bed. Robert told her that he had broken his leave. Mother-like, she persuaded him to go to his own room that he had occupied as a boy and remain there overnight. He did so and in the morning overslept. Then his mother begged him to take breakfast at home. By the time he reached the fort it was long past reveille roll call.

Robert was put in arrest. And what was his astonishment when told that the saloon keeper, Murphy, had been murdered the night before, that some shreds of blue uniform and several army buttons had been found near the body and a soldier answering his description had been seen near the saloon.

The young soldier was troubled only at the prospect of being reduced to the ranks. There could be no doubt of his proving that he had not been in Murphy's saloon and that he had been with his sweetheart and later with his mother. He gave the captain the address of both women and told him to go and ask his mother and Nancy if he had not been with them during the night of the murder.

The officer, in order that there might be no collusion between Robert and the others, said nothing about the charge of murder to either woman in order to better conceal his object. He told them that the soldier was in danger of being tried for desertion. Both women knew enough of army offenses to understand that desertion was a serious charge. Neither knew what reason Robert had given his superiors for his absence, and both feared to say anything about him for fear of disproving what he had himself said. The consequence was that both denied having seen him the night before.

This was quite enough to convict him, if not of the murder, certainly of falsely accounting for his absence. He was turned over to the civil authorities to be tried for murder.

It would be impossible to give an idea of the anguish of the mother and sweetheart when they learned of the real charge that had been made against the son of the one and lover of the other and that they had put it out of their power to prove an alibi for him and in this way establish his innocence. They were visited by Robert's attorney and questioned. It was evident to them that he did not believe the reason they gave for telling his captain that they had not seen him during the night of the murder, and it would not have made any difference if he had believed them. They had made a statement and could not contradict it before a jury and expect the contradiction to be considered evidence.

Nancy Alvord, after her terror at her lover's position and her chagrin at having denied that she had been with him had in a measure subsided, began to think of some way to prove the untruth of her first story. This led her to read carefully the newspaper accounts of the murder, and she saw that Murphy's watch, which was found in his vest pocket, had stopped at thirty-seven minutes after 10. She remembered hearing a clock strike 11 while on the car returning from the island. This was fixed in her mind by the fact that she expected a scolding on her return home for having stayed out so late.

The civil authorities considered that Murphy's watch marked the time of his death. The murder occurred in an upper room used for card playing, no one but the murderer and the murdered man being present. That there had been a struggle was evident from the shred of uniform and buttons picked up on the floor. The watch had undoubtedly stopped during this scuffle. At thirty-seven minutes after 10 on that eventful evening, with a limit of ten minutes either way, Robert and Nancy had been among the shows at Coney Island. They had passed Murphy's saloon at about twenty minutes past 11. Had Nancy not been handicapped by her first statement she could have told a perfectly straight story that would have tallied with the facts and exonerated her lover.

The next move she made was to go to Coney Island and visit the attendants upon the various shows with a view to finding some one who had seen her there with a soldier and if possible to secure that soldier's identification as Robert Hammond. She went over the ground, but found no one who remembered her or her soldier escort.

As the day for the trial drew near the result looked black for the young soldier. His mother was in agony over the situation, which was rendered more excruciating by the fact that in her effort to shield her son she had put it out of her power to save him.

The morning before the trial Nancy was sitting by her open window overlooking the lower bay, trying to think of her problem. A woman came to a window of the house opposite and hung a parrot cage containing a parrot beside the window. The woman left, and the parrot began to chatter.

Nancy jumped from her seat, dashed into an adjoining room, seized her hat, flew downstairs out into the street and boarded a car for Coney Island.

What she did there will appear at the trial, which was called in the criminal court the next day.

A jury had been impaneled and the prosecutor had stated the case for the state and had produced his witnesses. They were but few and stated only what has been thus far given. Then the prisoner's counsel took up the case for the accused, calling him to the witness stand. He asked Robert a number of irrelevant questions not apparently bearing on the case, requiring him to give long explanations. Finally the state attorney objected to the questioning as irrelevant, and the judge sustained the objection. Then the counsel called Nancy to the witness stand and pursued exactly the same course with her till another objection was raised and sustained.

"Where were you," asked the counsel of Nancy, "on the night of the 16th of June between 10 and 11 o'clock?"

"At Coney Island."

"Who was with you?"

"The accused, Robert Hammond."

"That will do."

At a sign from the attorney a phonograph was brought into court and set on a table. An operator put its machinery in motion, and a voice, plainly Nancy's, began to talk. What had been spoken in the machine was of no importance, detached sentences expressive of the pleasure to be derived at visiting Coney Island.

Then another voice was switched on. Every one started. It was the voice of Robert Hammond.

"I'm a soldier, I am. Got leave till 9 o'clock, and here I am at 10:30 talking into a phonograph machine. I'll be broke tomorrow, I will. My chevrons will come off, and I'll serve the balance of my enlistment as a high private in the rear rank. Come, Nancy; let's get along to the next show."

"Your honor," said the counsel for the defense, "I made the jury familiar with the voices of my two witnesses that they might recognize them in this phonograph, which I propose by its operator to prove received the voices at Coney Island about the time the murder was committed."

Robert was acquitted. He had been saved by the squawky voice of the parrot that had brought to Nancy's mind the phonograph, thus suggesting that they had talked in one on that eventful evening.

Robert Hammond's captain was so chagrined at the jeopardy in which he had placed the young man by the way he had approached his mother and sweetheart for evidence that he interested himself in the soldier's behalf, promoting him rapidly as a noncommissioned officer and coaching him for his examination for lieutenant. Hammond, with his wife, Nancy, are now stationed on the Pacific coast.

The murderer of Murphy turned out to be a militiaman who had been off on an excursion with his company. He had gone to Murphy's saloon, played and lost to Murphy himself and in a burst of passion killed him. Acting suspiciously, he was finally accused of the murder, tried and convicted.

TECUMSEH DRY

MAJORITY 15

DRY LENAWEE--VOTERS OUST THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC BY A MAJORITY OF 1970.

Heavy Vote Cast Enrollment 800 Votes 745

This was one of the most exciting elections held in Tecumseh for a long time, yet everything was conducted in a quiet and orderly manner despite the large crowd that gathered on our street corners. It was a clean republican victory and Tecumseh went dry. There was no ringing of bells, bonfires or other demonstrations, the same feeling prevailing that had marked the Campaign.

Reports coming in from all over the state show a strong feeling on the local option question, but there is yet a large field to be garnerd later.

The following shows how our votes were distributed.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Ella McClue Harriott was born in Niagara county New York, Jan. 5, 1850. In her early years her parents moved to Michigan and settled on a farm near Saline, where she lived until her marriage to Robert S. Harriott in May 1872. Then she took up her residence in Lenawee county, on a farm near Macon. This continued to be her home until her death.

Her life was a quiet uneventful one, her time being given to the numerous duties that come to a devoted wife and mother. Her keen and ready sympathy found a great channel of usefulness among those who were in affliction or trouble. She was ever ready to help by words of comfort and acts of loving service.

In October 1890, her home circle was broken by the death of her eldest son, Edgar. In less than three years she was called upon to mourn the loss of her youngest son, Webb. This double sorrow cut very deeply into her life, undermining her vitality. But she bore her burdens bravely until a few months ago, when failing strength compelled her to lay aside her responsibilities.

On the 19th of March, she quietly and peacefully passed into the spirit land

Very early in life she evinced an interest in the christian life, at first uniting with the Baptist church, afterward transferring her membership to the Reformed church at Macon.

While circumstances for the last few years prevented her from participating in church work, she did not lose her christian confidence, but found great comfort in God's promises, and her heart's longing was for rest and peace of eternal life.

The burial service was held Wednesday, March 28, at the Reformed church in Macon, conducted by her pastor, Rev. Scarlett, and her body was laid to rest in Macon's beautiful cemetery.

Mrs. Harriott is survived by a husband and one son, one brother and four sisters.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. Harriott and family desire to express most sincere thanks for the beautiful flowers and other expressions of sympathy shown them in their recent sorrow.

WHEN HER BACK ACHES.

A Woman Finds All Her Energy and Ambition Slipping Away.

Tecumseh women know how the aches and pains that come when the kidneys fail make life a burden. Backache, hip pains, headaches, dizzy spells, distressing urinary troubles, all tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the stealthy approach of diabetes, dropsy and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills permanently cure all these disorders. Here's proof of it in a Tecumseh woman's words:

Mrs. George Burrough, E. Potawatamie street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "About a year ago my health became much run down. My kidneys did not act properly and I suffered severely from backache. Knowing of other people who had used Doan's Kidney Pills for similar troubles with the best of results, I procured a box at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store. In a few weeks after taking them, I felt better and I am now free from Kidney complaint. I willingly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

New Sport of Flying.

Operating an aeroplane is easier than riding a bicycle or steering an automobile. In driving on the road your attention is required constantly to be fixed upon the paths or ruts in which the vehicle must be guided, for the slightest inattention would cause serious trouble. Guiding an aeroplane is like riding a bicycle in the center of an immense asphalt plaza where the surface is perfectly smooth and uniform and where you can go in every direction equally well without serious attention as to where you must steer. In the air all is free, and the movements become so unconscious that the aviator's mind sometimes wanders off until he almost forgets that he is in an aeroplane. One can look down on the ground and notice various things, but it is very hard to tell how high you may be flying or the exact angle of flight of the machine or its speed.—Country Life in America.

Smoke Detector.

A Scotchman, John Lowden, has invented a "smoke tintometer," which, it is thought, may be of use in prosecuting cases of "smoke nuisance." It consists of a tube with a single eyepiece and two object openings. One of these is clear, but the other contains a revolving diaphragm, in which are set five circles, one of clear glass and the other four of tinted glasses corresponding with the standard tints of a scientific "smoke chart." In examining smoke defiled air the diaphragm is turned until the tinted glass coincides in darkness with the air seen through the clear aperture. The various glasses are systematically numbered, so that a glance suffices to show the degree of defilement of the

HINTS FOR FARMERS

Care of Stable Manure.

Briefly, there are a few methods which can easily be employed by every farmer which will result in giving him the largest value for his manure, writes an Illinois farmer in the New England Homestead. In the first place, other things being equal, manure results in greatest benefit if applied as made by the use of some kind of a manure spreader. Probably the best method is to load the manure from the stable every day upon a manure spreader and haul it to the fields.

If this cannot be done the next best thing is to provide a shed for the manure adjacent to or close to the barn, clean out the stables every morning and throw the manure in under the shed. Here it will be protected from the rain, and if hogs are permitted to run in the shed every day the manure will be worked over, fire fanging will be prevented, the materials will be thoroughly mixed and rotting encouraged. Of course the shed should be so arranged that if any liquid manure develops it will not run off and be lost. If a liquid manure cistern can be provided adjacent to the manure shed, all the better. Here the liquid manure can be collected and eventually taken out and distributed. If the manure in the shed shows a tendency to fire fang or dry out, wet it thoroughly.

Roup in the Poultry Pen.

At the first sign of roup the bird should be removed from the flock and put alone, says the American Cultivator. The water vessels should be thoroughly cleaned and refilled with water containing a few drops of carbolic acid. Place the affected bird in a warm, dry place and free from drafts, with dry sand on the floor. Give warm stimulating food. Commence treatment by giving a spoonful of castor oil. Wash the nostrils, eyes and other affected parts with a solution of chlorinated soda diluted with twice its bulk of water. Repeat this several times a day. Kerosene should be freely used about the head of a roupy fowl. Inject the kerosene into the nostrils with a small spring bottom oil can. Give the following twice a day: Balsam copaiba, one ounce; licorice in powder, one-half ounce; piperine in powder, one dram; add magnesia enough to make pills and divide into sixty parts. Generally under this treatment the bird will recover if not too badly affected before treatment is commenced. If the bird recovers do not return it to the flock at once, but keep it on a tonic for some time.

Alfalfa For Brood Mares.

Thousands of brood mares have for their almost sole ration alfalfa hay. Alfalfa hay and corn form nearly a balanced ration in themselves, writes J. E. Wing in the Breeder's Gazette. Do not overdo the matter, but feed alfalfa in limited supply. If the mares are given daily no more than one pound of alfalfa hay for each hundred pounds of their own weight, the hay will do them no harm, but only good. If they require a little more roughness than that, make it up by feeding bright corn fodder or prairie hay. Do not overfeed with corn either. A moderate corn ration inclining to smallness will give best results.

Pregnant mares ought to have ample chance for exercise and should come to foaling time well nourished, strong and not too fat. Then they will have safe delivery and suckle their colts well. No pregnant female should have moldy hay or grain.

Weed Seeds In Manure.

Under an act of congress the department of agriculture is authorized to examine commercial feeds and grass seed and publish the names of dealers who sell adulterated seeds, says American Cultivator. A number of experiment stations have gone the department one better, more especially the Vermont station, which has purchased commercial feeding stuffs, fed them to cattle and other live stock, and then by planting the faeces shown how dangerous it is for the farmer to throw the manure broadcast over the farm and produce the following year an abundant crop of weeds.

Tankage For Hogs.

Experiments in pig feeding at the Pennsylvania station indicate good results from the use of tankage for growing and fattening. Comparison of rations with and without tankage show that the gains in weight were produced at 20 per cent less cost where tankage was used than the middlings alone. Results were in favor of the use of tankage as compared with oilmeal when fed with corn. There was no important difference in the quality or market value of the carcasses obtained from the various rations.

Plant Trees on the Farm.

No better use can be made of land that is not suitable to cultivate than to either set it or sow it to trees of some sort. White pine is much talked of, but other hardy native trees do well. Beeches and maples may be easily seeded, and spruce also, which is the best of soft wood lumber trees. No more beautiful crop can grow on any farm than a clean growth of any kind of tree. To our northern New England eyes perhaps the sugar maple is the most beautiful.—H. Leigh Hunt in American Cultivator.

Remedies For Botflies.

The only remedy generally practiced is the squeezing out of the grubs or killing them by putting some substance, such as turpentine, carbolated oil, axle grease, etc., into their breathing holes in the animal's back.

Red Hair.

Red hair is, says a scientific authority, of that color because it has in its composition a larger proportion of sulphur than black hair.

Farewell of Rev. J. Wirt Dunning

HIS CONGREGATION REGRET TO GIVE HIM UP.

Business Men's Class Present Him With a Fine Gold Watch.

Sunday morning a large audience gathered at the Presbyterian church to hear the last message of the pastor, Rev. J. W. Dunning. It was not a "farewell sermon," but an earnest appeal to the members of the church to go out into the world and live up to the ideals he had striven for the past three years to hold up before them.

In the Men's class in the S. S., Mr. J. Q. Look, Mr. John Boyce, Mr. F. B. Wood, spoke words of appreciation of his work in the class. Mr. J. H. Smith for the class presented him with a beautiful gold watch as a token of their love and esteem.

The committee appointed by the congregational meeting to draw up resolutions have presented the following resolutions: Resolved,

Whereas, The Rev. J. Wirt Dunning, Pastor of the 1st Presbyterian church of Tecumseh, Mich., for the past three years, having received a call from the 1st Presbyterian church Portsmouth, Ohio, and believing by accepting the call unanimously extended to him, will give him a larger and more extensive field of usefulness, he has tendered his resignation as pastor of this church, to take effect April 1, 1910.

Not wishing to curb his laudable ambitions, nor in any way to circumscribe his usefulness, the members of this church at a meeting held Feb. 27, 1910, did by unanimous vote accept his resignation. Therefore, be it

Resolved, by this church and congregation, that in accepting the resignation of our beloved pastor, we lose not only a talented and earnest minister, who has given to this church and this community, his best efforts for the upbuilding of christian manhood, and for the advancement of all those christian principles which tend to the betterment of society and advancement of the human race; but also a citizen who has ever been identified with the best interests of society, and by precept and example, has endeavored to lead the people of this community into a larger and broader field of moral and christian usefulness. And be it further

Resolved, That we extend to the church at Portsmouth, Ohio, our hearty congratulation upon having secured the services of one so eminently fitted to bring to them the glad tidings of salvation, the gospel of "peace on earth and good will to men." And, be it further

Resolved, That these preambles and resolutions be spread upon the records of this church and a copy presented to the Monroe Presbytery and also to our retiring pastor.

John Q. Look.
Mrs. Francis D. Rector,
W. Elmer Slayton,
Committee.

AMUSEMENTS!

"A GIRL OF THE MOUNTAINS"

"A Girl of the Mountains" is something new, something worth seeing. It develops a strong plot with very dramatic situations in such a delicate and picturesque style that one must at once place it far above the ordinary drama. An especially strong scene, one that will grip its hearers, is brought about when Nellie, the Mountain Girl, discovers that she has been betrayed by Richard Thurston, a wealthy New Yorker. The scene is most graphic and most telling and bound to command unflagging attention. The play is in four acts and comes highly recommended by the press in the cities where it has been seen. It will be the attraction at the Bradley Opera House on Thursday, April 7th.

Stomach Dead, Man Still Lives

People who suffer from sour stomach, fermentation of food, distress after eating and indigestion, and seek relief in large chunks of artificial digestors, are killing their stomachs by inaction just as surely as the victim of morphine is deadening and injuring beyond repair every nerve in his body.

What the stomach of every sufferer from indigestion needs is a good prescription that will build up his stomach, put strength, energy and elasticity into it, and make it sturdy enough to digest a hearty meal without artificial aid.

The best prescription for indigestion ever written is sold by druggists everywhere and by C. A. Wright & Son., and is rigidly guaranteed to build up the stomach and cure indigestion, or money back.

This prescription is named Mi-o-na, and is sold in small tablet form in large boxes, for only 50 cents. Remember the name, Mi-o-na stomach tablets. They never fail. They contain ingredients that give quick relief (other than strong digesters), but they are compounded for the purpose of making the stomach strong and energetic enough to do its work without the aid of harmful drugs.

How to Cure Your Piles

Due Often To Carelessness or Neglect and Stubborn to Cure

"The knife is not always necessary to cure even desperate cases of piles," says a physician whose years and experience make him an authority. "Indeed," he says further: "I have known some very aggravated cases of long standing cured by a simple home remedy that restored to the bowels easy natural daily movements."

And the doctor is right, as many letters from cured people in various parts of the country prove. If sufferers from piles, rectal tumors and ulcers would try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin they would often save themselves the terrible pain and danger and the heavy expense of a severe surgical operation.

Piles are often due to constipation and are always aggravated by it. Easy natural movements of the bowels such as are invariably produced by this famous laxative without pain or gripe do much to restore a normal, healthy condition to the bowels and thus cure piles.

M. H. Miller, Moweaque, Ill., says: "I have been troubled all my life with piles brought on by constipation. I tried many doctors and numerous remedies, but found no relief until I used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I have used it as a laxative and stomach remedy for the past nine years and have no more troubles with piles." H. N. John, Minneapolis, Kan., says he suffered for four years with piles which were so bad that he could not work. Four bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin cured him, and he says he has not been bothered since.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a safe sure remedy for constipation, restoring easy natural daily movements in the worst old chronic cases, yet so mild and pleasant to take mothers give it to their babies with splendid results. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Pepsin Syrup Co., 302 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill., will send a free sample to anyone who has not used it and will give it a fair trial.

She didn't think how it would sound: A widow erected a monument to her husband, with the inscription, "Rest in peace until we meet again."

The world famous fire shot who holds the championship record of 100 pigeons in 100 consecutive shots is living at Lincoln, Ill. Recently interviewed, he says:—"I have suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble and have used several well known kidney medicines all of which gave me no releif until I started taking Foley's Kidney Pills. Before I used Foley's Kidney Pills I was subjected to severe backache and pains in my kidneys with suppression and oftentimes a cloudy voiding. While upon arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and once more feel like my own self. All this I owe solely to Foley's Kidney Pills and; always recommend them to my fellow sufferers. Sold by all druggists.

There are any number of men who, while ever ready to share their troubles with their wives, manifest a strong disinclination to share their pleasures with them.

Foley's Kidney Remedy will cure any case of Kidney or bladder that is not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. Sold by all druggists.

Virtue is its own reward, but a little cash helps out.

Would Have Cost Him s Life.

Oscar Bowman, Lebanon, Ky., writes: I have used Foley's kidney Remedy and take great pleasure in stating it cured me permanently of kidney disease which certainly would have cost me my life. Sold by all Druggists.

Avoid Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation; they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money, but it's not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a very small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as it does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acrid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and often unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same time moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble.

Any case of blindness except, the blindness of love, is curable if the patient can see a doctor.

PRODUCED AN ECLIPSE.

The Persian Astronomers Were More Diplomatic Than the English.

Official Chinese astronomers sometimes get their heads cut off for not correctly foretelling an eclipse. Illustrating this, I am told by my friend, the astronomer royal, of a visit paid about thirty years ago to the observatory in Greenwick park by the shah of Persia of that date. The shah made a great point of visiting the British state observatory in company with King Edward, who was then the Prince of Wales.

Sir George Airey was the astronomer royal and showed the party over the building and gave them peeps through telescopes. "Now, show me an eclipse of the sun," said the shah, speaking in French. Sir George pretended not to hear and led the way to another instrument. "Dog of an astronomer," said the shah, "produce me an eclipse!" Sir George politely said he had not got one and could not oblige the king of kings. "Ho, ho!" said the shah, turning in great indignation to the Prince of Wales. "You hear; cut his head off!" Sir George's life was, as a matter of fact, spared, but in the course of a year he retired and was succeeded by the present astromoner royal.

On his appointment that gentleman was astonished at receiving a letter of congratulation from the shah of Persia. The shah evidently thought that his request had been attended to, though with some delay. He proceeded to tell the new astronomer royal that he had a few days before writing witnessed a total eclipse of the sun in the observatory at Teheran. This was perfectly correct, but the suggestion seemed to be that the Teheran astronomers knew their business and had the good sense to arrange an eclipse when a royal visitor wished for one and so escape decapitation.—Sir Ray Lankester in London Telegraph.

James the Great.

The educated chimpanzee known as James the Great is at present one of the sensations of the vaudeville stage in Europe. A man who saw him perform in Germany writes: "The animal does all sorts of tricks under the direction of his master and at one time occupies the stage all alone, and then he becomes the most interesting. He wears long black trousers, a green pea jacket and a light felt hat of alpine shape. The monkey makes his bow and advances to the wings, where he receives from an attendant a bicycle, which he mounts and rides around the stage at all speeds from the very slow to racing time and seems to enjoy it. Then he does some fancy riding and closes by wheeling in and out among a dozen champagne bottles, coming dangerously close to some of them, but hitting none. He is a wonderful example of the trainer's patience and the monkey's adaptability."

GRAND RAPIDS GIRL WAS SENT HOME

Admitted Negro in Memphis, Tenn., Was Her Affinity.

Memphis, Tenn., April 4.—Confronted with the choice of remaining in Memphis and facing a serious charge, or leaving on the first train for the north, Miss Eva Bishop, a pretty girl not yet out of her teens, was escorted by plain clothes detectives to the station and purchased a ticket to Chicago. She said she would go to her home in Grand Rapids, Mich., later.

Horace White, a negro, who claims Springfield, Ill., as his home, was put aboard an eastbound train, after being subjected to a merciless horsewhipping. Miss Bishop was cashier at the Arlington hotel grill room. White was the steward. Police say the young girl admitted with sobs that White was her affinity.

According to Inspector of Police Hayes, Miss Bishop admitted her love for White. She did not know that it was unlawful for whites and blacks to marry in Tennessee and admitted that it was her intention some day to marry her black affinity.

White also was given the choice of punishment. At first he defied the police, but after he summoned a lawyer and was informed of possible criminal prosecution he submitted to lashes from a horsewhip which were dealt out in the central police precinct station in the presence of the police only.

While M. Leblon, a French aviator, was attempting to make a flight at San Sebastian, Spain, in a Bleriot biplane, something happened to the machine, and it fell into the sea from a height of 1'5 feet. Leblon was so badly injured that his recovery is considered to be impossible.

England's craze to buy stock in rubber companies is startling. The shares of any and every new company are oversubscribed for. Such a crop of suckers has never been garnered since the halcyon days of the flotation of the Kaffir mines. The other day one bank in London was compelled to station two policemen at its doors to prevent the mob of subscribers to a new rubber company from overflooding the premises.

Small wailing sounds from the areaway stirred Margaret Collins, maid servant in the house of Dr. Parkhurst, the preacher, on East Thirty-fifth street, in New York, the other night, to seek out the cause. She found that someone had left the preacher a baby boy enclosed in a go-cart. The servant called a policeman, Carroll, who took the go-cart and infant to the East Thirty-fifth street station and from there to the Bellevue hospital. The child was pronounced to be two days old.

New Santa Fe Trail.

A modern highway, 275 miles long, through the "short grass country" in western Kansas would not only prove an illuminating object lesson for the entire state, but for all the country as well. From Newton to the Colorado line it is proposed to construct a continuous boulevard along the Arkansas river and call it "the new Santa Fe trail."—Kansas City Times.

American Capital in Canada.

It is estimated that there are now between 150 and 200 American factories or branches of American factories in Canada, fifty of these in Toronto and twenty in Hamilton, and between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000 of American capital invested in industrial enterprises in the Dominion. This transfer of industries and of capital is found to continue, assisted by the Canadian tariff and the opportunities for investment which the Dominion now affords. Retaliatory measures approaching commercial nonintercourse may check the movement, but only for a time and only partially.—London Times.

NEGROES' DISMISSAL STANDS APPROVED

Court of Inquiry Reports on Brownsville Affair.

Washington, April 7.—The dismissal of three companies of the Twenty-fifth infantry by former President Roosevelt for participation in the shooting up of Brownsville, Tex., on the night of Aug. 13 and 14, 1905, has been sustained by the report of the court of inquiry which investigated the affray. The court is unanimously of the opinion that the evidences sustained the charges that the colored soldiers of the Twenty-fifth infantry were guilty as accused by the mayor and citizens of Brownsville.

The officers of the regiment, the members of the court declares, had been negligent in not performing their duties properly immediately prior to the affray and in not ordering an inspection of the regiment after the raid on the town, instead of at daylight, several hours later.

The report was submitted by Secretary of War Dickinson, who recommends that fourteen of the discharged solders be allowed to re-enlist. Three companies of the Twenty-fifth infantry, Companies B, C and D, were discharged without honor for declining to give information which would enable the army authorities to locate and punish the soldiers who raided the town.

NEGROES SHOT TO DEATH.

Couple Charged With Murder Taken From Constable.

Memphis, Tenn., April 7.—While in the hands of Constable Mallory of Keo, Ark., Frank Pride, aged fifty, and Laura Mitchell, aged forty, negroes, charged with double murder, were seized and shot to death by a mob, then strung up side by side.

The mob overpowered the constable on the Bert Sims farm, four miles north of here, where the officer and his prisoners took refuge from a storm. The double murder and lynching has stirred Lone Oak county. The lynching is said to be the only one in which the mob was composed entirely of blacks.

The victims had just been bound over to wait the action of the grand jury on charges following the finding of the body of Wiley Mitchell, husband of the woman. Mitchell's brains had been knocked out with a club. Pride's wife is missing and is believed to have been murdered and buried.

KITCHENER IS COMING.

Due to Arrive In San Francisco by Steamer Today.

San Francisco, April 7.—Lord Kitchener of Khartoum is a passenger on the Pacific mail liner Mariposa, which is due here today from the orient.

Kitchner has been asked by wireless to speak at a banquet this evening to Admiral Sebree, retired. The dinner to Sebree is given by army and navy officers and various civic organiations to testify their appreciation of his long naval service, so recently ended by age limit.

Lord Kitchener is going back to London after seven years' service as commander-in-chief in India.

Microscopic Life.

The first organized living forms are extremely minute and can only be recognized by powerful microscopes. A filtered infusion of hay, allowed to stand for two or three days, will literally swarm with living things, many of them not exceeding the forty-thousandth part of an inch in diameter. And yet, minute as these animalculae are, they are thoroughly alive. They dart about and digest, shooting out their jellylike substance to seize their food.

Aptly Termed.

A farmer in a flood district, watching his mortgaged house and barn fall over and float down the river, remarked, "That represents my floating indebtedness."

ROOSEVELT SENDS IN REPORT

Is Read Before House by Representative Mann—Feels Deeply Indebted to British and Belgian Officials In Africa For Courtesies Shown—Many Fishes and Birds In Collection.

Washington, April 7.—It seemed like old times in the house Wednesday, when Representative Mann (Ill.) arose and read a report signed by Theodore Roosevelt. The document was the former president's report to the Smithsonian institution as head of the Smithsonian-African Expedition. It was dated Khartoum, Feb. 15, and was Rooseveltian even to instances of simplified spelling. The former president reports that the expedition has gathered, all told, 11,397 specimens for the institution, of which about 5,000 are mammals and 2,000 birds.

The house listened to the report with a good deal of interest and now and then a grin. The report in part follows:

"Khartoum, Feb. 15, 1910.

"To the Hon. Charles Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian:

Full Report Later.

"Sir: I have the honor to report that the Smithsonian-African expedition which was entrusted to my charge, has now completed its work. Full reports will be made later by the three naturalists, Messrs. Mearns, Heller and Loring. I send this preliminary statement to summarize what has been done; the figures given are substantially accurate, but may have to be changed slightly in the final reports.

"We landed at Mombasa on April 21, 1909, and reached Khartoum on March 14, 1910. On landing we were joined by Messrs. R. J. Cunninghame and Leslie J. Tarlton; the former was with us throughout our former trip, the latter until we left East Africa, and both worked as zealously and efficiently for the success of the expedition as any other members thereof.

"We spent eight months in British East Africa. We collected carefully in various portions of the Athi and Kapitil plains, in the Sotik and around Lake Naivasha."

Mr. Roosevelt here enumerates several districts visited by himself and party. Continuing, he says:

Grateful to Others.

"We owe our warmest thanks for the generous courtesy shown us and the aid freely given us, not only by the Sirdar, but by all the British officials in East Africa, Uganda and the Soudan and by the Belgian officials in the Lado; and this, of course, means that we are also indebted to the home governments of England and Belgium.

"On the trip Mr. Heller has prepared 1,020 specimens of mammals, the majority of large sizes; Mr. Loring has prepared 3,163, and Dr. Mearns, 714, a total of 4,897 mammals. Of birds Dr. Mearns has prepared nearly 3,100, Mr. Loring 899 and Mr. Heller about 50, a total of about 4,000 birds. Of reptiles and batrachians, Messrs. Mearns, Loring and Heller collected about 2,000.

"Of fishes, about 500 were collected. Dr. Mearns collected marine fishes nera Mombasa and fresh water fishes elsewhere in Sea, and he and Cunninghame collected fishes in the White Nile. This makes in all of vertebrates: Mammals, 4,897; birds (about), 4,000; reptiles and batrachians (about), 2,000; fishes (about), 500. Total, 11,397."

Etna Busy Again.

Catania, April 7.—Mount Etna is again busy. Parts of the central crater collapsed Wednesday. Lava is pouring down in immense furrows on all sides, illuminating the cone at the top. The incandescent streams are several miles in length. The lava is still spreading on the lower levels, carrying new destruction in the neighborhood of Crysterna and Regina.

Government Forced to Get After Sugar "Trust" Again.

AT PORT OF NEW ORLEANS

Winfred T. Denison, Assistant Attorney General, Is Detailed to Go and Probe Matters—His Going Follows Conferences Between Government Officials and President.

Washington, April 7.—The American Sugar Refining company, the so-called "sugar trust," is to be taken to task once more by the United States government. This time the scene of the federal attack is to be shifted from New York to New Orleans.

High officials here admit they do not know just what may be the outcome of the proceedings at New Orleans. It was said that the government intends to demand the books of the "sugar trust" there and if necessary to make just as thorough an investigation there as they did in New York city in uncovering the frauds amounting to millions of dollars.

Winfred T. Denison of New York, who rendered valuable assistance to Henry L. Stimson, the government's special prosecutor in the the sugar cases, and who was recently made assistant attorney general, has just left for New Orleans. The departure of Mr. Denison followed several long conferences at the treasury department, the White House and the department of justice. While primarily any report of frauds in the customs services is acted upon by the treasury department, Mr. Denison, as an officer of the department of justice, is going to the southern city as the representative of that department and of Attorney General Wickersham, who is determined to sift the "sugar trust" affair to the bottom if it takes him all summer.

Make "Trust" Show Its Books.

The "sugar trust" has refused to produce for the government its books showing New Orleans importations. The government thinks it knows a way to make the "trust" show its records. Mr. Denison, it was said, will attempt to convince "trust" officials that they should be good and show their books. If they do not recognize this force of his arguments he will resort to the use of subpoenaes and will ask the federal grand jury now in session in New Orleans to make "trust" officials give the information desired.

According to information here, the action of the department of justice came naturally enough and was not the result of any special revelations such as those made by Thomas Parr in New York.

Following the discoveries at the New York investigation, the government began investigating at other ports where sugar came in. At New Orleans, in ordinary course of events, it asked the sugar company to give up its records for examination. The "sugar trust" refused, contending that there was nothing to interest the government in the books. The government thought it over and decided that it wanted to be shown.

SAYS LOCKE GOT A BRIBE

Witness Accuses Prison Trustee of Taking Money.

FIRM WAS AFTER CONTRACT

Former Contractor, on Stand In Damage Suit Against Warden, Makes Sensational Charges—Says Trustee Locke Did Not Deny Taking Bribe When Accused.

Jackson, Mich., April 7.—Testimony which may bring to light graft on the part of one or more members of the board of control of the Ionia state reformatory was brought out Wednesday in circuit court during the trial of the damage case of Joseph S. McDowell, assignee of Edward Wallerstein & Co., against Warden Otis Fuller of the Ionia state reformatory.

The Wallerstein company entered into a contract with the state for the manufacture of shirts, collars and cuffs at the Ionia reformatory by convict labor, the contract being for a period of ten years. This contract, which, it is said, contained no forfeiture clause, took effect in May, 1898, and would have expired in May, 1908. In June, 1903, the board of control declared the contract forfeited. The company refused to vacate, and the machinery, according to Alfred Wallerstein, was torn up and thrown from the buildings.

Why Contract Was Annulled.

It is alleged by the plaintiff that the board wanted the contract annulled because it had a chance to make a better one. Attorney A. R. Locke of Ionia was a member of the board of control at that time and is still a member of the board.

Following the passing of the resolution of July 20 and the canceling of the contract by the state, Wallerstein tried to regain the factory at the reformatory.

Wallerstein stated that Mr. Goodman of the firm of Goodman & Glazier told him that they had already secured the contract at Ionia prison by paying Locke, a member of the board of control, $1,200. Goodman told him, he said, that he could not do anything with the board without "sugaring" Locke. The witness stated that he then went to see Locke.

"I told him I could sell that contract for $12,500 and would give him half of it if he could get the concellation rescinded. He said he would think it over."

The witness stated that he made the proposition to see how far Locke would go in the matter. Another meeting was held with Locke, according to Wallerstein. He stated that he accused Locke of having accepted money from the Goodman & Glazier company, and he (Locke) did not deny it.

Attorney Locke was present during the hearing of the case.

One Stabbed; Other In Jail.

Owosso, Mich., April 7.—As the result of a stabbing affray, Fred Dawson, aged twenty-three, a hack driver, is locked up and George Horn lies at his home in a critical condition with several knife wounds on his body which may result seriously. Dawson and Horn got into an argument, it is alleged, and Horn poked Dawson with an umbrella, whereupon the latter pulled a knife and stabbed Horn once in the shoulder and three times in the forearm. The two men live together in a double house.

The Right of Search

And the Woman Who Would Try to Do a Little Smuggling.

By A. S. CROCKETT.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Be sure," Mrs. Jeffreys read from her husband's letter, "to declare everything. The customs inspectors are on the alert. The new collector is carrying out the law to the letter, and there is no chance of getting a 'free entry' this year. I spoke to Senator Jones about it, and he assured me that, while he would be glad to give me the same sort of letter as last year, it would be worthless.

"Let's see," she reflected. "Of course I can wear the traveling dress ashore, and then I can also wear that dear little turban. I must muss both up a bit, and I can break the feather in the turban, so that the hat will not look new.

"Heloise!" she called.

"Oui, madame," answered her maid.

"Have you bought much in Paris for yourself?"

"Non, madame; jus' a leetle lace."

"Then you must take one of my trunks for yourself and pack some of my things in it. I will tell you which later."

Left to herself, Mrs. Jeffreys resumes her addition, subtraction and division.

"Let's see, $100 for each passenger. That makes $200 for Heloise and myself. That black silk alone cost that much, while the other dresses cost—let's see—400 francs plus 500, plus 750. That's 1,650. Five into sixteen goes three times, carry one. Why, 330 plus 200 equals $530, and, merciful heavens, that doesn't count lingerie or stockings or"— And her glance encountered two beautiful Sevres vases standing on the mantel. She gave a scream that brought Heloise to the door.

"It is nothing. I—I thought I saw a mouse."

Heloise picked up her skirts and fled.

"Ah, those vases!" Mrs. Jeffreys resumed. "How on earth am I ever going to get them in? The duty on them alone would be more than $100. Let me think. No," after a pause, "I could not conceal them. Well, let me make the best I can out of the other things. Let's see. I can put the black silk down at, say, $50. The materials did not cost more than $30, I am sure; the other dresses $30, $35 and $40, not counting the one I shall wear. That makes $155 altogether. The lingerie—well, we can change the appearance of most of that by rubbing it on the carpet, and the rest I can divide between Heloise and myself in such a way that I can list the hats and the stockings for $40."

Then she thought of the vases again.

Mrs. Jeffreys was still thinking of the vases when the steamship left Cherbourg, and she thought of little else for the first three days. Women homeward bound are sometimes a little talkative when it comes to discussing great bargains they have picked up, but Mrs. Jeffreys maintained a strict silence on this topic, even when her friend Mrs. Burroughs confessed that she had bought lots of things, including yards and yards of lace, and, as for simply paying duty, she would see congress and the president in very hot regions before she would give up a cent. "I shall conceal the lace on my person," she confided. "I have a dress that I am taking home to mother, who, you know, is larger than I, and on the morning we land you will see an extremely matronly person going down the gangplank if you watch me, my dear."

Mrs. Jeffreys sighed. Ah, if she had not bought those vases!

A thought struck her. Why not carry those vases ashore, after all? She excused herself and went to her stateroom, where, after locking the door, she took the two exquisite ornaments from a traveling bag.

She removed her skirts. Then she took a strap from the bag and fastened one end to a vase and the other to a belt. The other she fastened similarly, so that one hung from the front and the other from the back. Then she put on her skirts again and walked about the room.

"I have it at last," she exclaimed joyfully, "only I must be careful about walking."

That day she ate the first hearty luncheon of her voyage, and when in the afternoon the declarations were passed about to be filled by the passengers she made hers out in the fashion she had planned in Paris.

Mrs. Jeffreys did not complete her toilet on the morning the ship arrived until the vessel was coming up from quarantine. Then she went below, locked her door and slipped into the harness she had invented.

She went down the gangway so carefully that her husband, who was at the foot, asked in great concern: "What is the matter? Hurt yourself? You seem lame."

"It is nothing," she assured him. "Just a touch of rheumatism."

While they were waiting under the letter "J" for their baggage to be assembled her husband solicitously urged her to sit on a trunk and spread a steamer rug for her.

"No," she said; "I feel much better standing." At the same time she felt as if she must sink, for the two vases, really light, now weighed a hundred pounds each.

It was an age before the trunks and bags were collected and the customs inspector began his examination. He looked at Mrs. Jeffreys' declaration, and as his eyesight was none of the best he found only what she had listed. Then he called an appraiser to pass upon the value of the goods declared.

The latter gave a sharp look at Mrs. Jeffreys, who was talking very volubly to her husband and telling him in a tone that was audible some distance away how she had taken his advice and declared everything. The official peered into the trunk that was nearest him and then wrote something in red ink on the bottom of the declaration. Then the inspector carefully placed a label on each of the packages showing that they had been passed, and Mrs. Jeffreys in her relief, forgetting her own precious cargo, plumped herself down upon a trunk.

Crash! The bottom of a vase dropped upon the pier and rolled some distance away. Mr. Jeffreys had gone to look for a porter. His wife started to make a rush for the broken piece, but as she did so a keen eyed man who was standing near anticipated her.

"Is that yours, madam?" he demanded.

Mrs. Jeffreys hesitated. "Yes," she said, with a gasp.

"Will you kindly show me the other part of it?"

The woman almost fainted. "Why, it isn't possible—it—er—it's in my trunk!" she finally managed to get out.

"I am sorry, madam, but I must see the other part of this vase. Will you open your trunk?"

Mrs. Jeffreys handed him the keys.

"Which one?"

"This—no, that—no, the other one. Merciful heavens, what shall I do?" And Mrs. Jeffreys sank weeping on one of her trunks just as her husband came back with a porter.

"What is this? Who are you?" he demanded of the other man. The latter showed him the shield of a special officer of the treasury. "I must see the other part of this vase," he repeated to the husband. Mr. Jeffreys, protesting, gave him his card.

"I would advise you to make no scene," the "special" told him. "There are lots of reporters about here, and they would be only too glad of a chance for a sensational story."

He went away and returned with a uniformed inspector, not the old man who had made the previous inspection, but a younger. "Here," he told him, "get this woman's declaration and reinspect those trunks." The "special" stood by while each article was being turned out in a heap on the pier. He fingered the dresses and looked at the declaration. Then he took up several pieces of lingerie and examined them closely.

"Ha, not worn! Apparently rubbed on the floor to give them that appearance. See anything of that broken vase?"

"No," the inspector replied, "but here is a lot of lace." It was that belonging to Heloise.

"Tell the appraiser in charge to come here."

The latter was soon bending over the pile of finery. He looked at each garment separately and then put down a lot of figures.

"The total is $700," the "special" informed Mrs. Jeffreys. "Under the law we have a perfect right to seize the contents of the trunk, but to avoid unnecessary notoriety we will permit you to pay the duty and take the trunks away with you. Wait a moment; I forgot. We have not found that broken vase." He turned to Mrs. Jeffreys.

"Let me go aboard the steamship," she begged, "and I will find it for you."

"I have no objection, madam," he replied, "but an inspector must accompany you."

Mrs. Jeffreys started back. "Oh, horrors! Never!" she protested.

"A woman inspector, madam," the "special" explained. But Mrs. Jeffreys still protested vigorously. Mr. Jeffreys, feeling that the scene had gone far enough, demanded to see the official in charge of the pier.

"I regret it, sir," he said, "but your wife will have to accompany the woman inspector on board the ship and be searched."

It is best not to follow the two women into that stateroom. The inspectress came out with a broken Sevres vase and a whole one and several pairs of stockings.

"Now, madam," said the "special," "we shall not take into account the new dress and hat you are wearing. Under the circumstances I think you would prefer to have us seize what is left of the 'pair' of vases. Now, if your husband will step to the cashier's office and pay the duty on $700 worth of goods, less $200 worth allowed for yourself and maid, I think the requirements of the law will be met."

When they had got into their carriage Mr. Jeffreys turned to his wife sternly.

"Why did you not do as I told you?" he demanded.

She disregarded his question. "Oh, the horrible customs laws of this country! They are enough to make an American deny that he is such!" she exclaimed.

"Yes; that is just the way a woman would put it," her husband returned. "On the other hand, suppose the treasury agent had handed us over to the newspapers."

"Oh, don't! I can't bear it!" She buried her face in her hands and shuddered. "Oh, Gerald, I have been punished enough! Just forgive me, and I'll promise never to buy a single thing in Paris again!"

And Mr. Jeffreys, being a tender hearted man and tolerant of woman's little weaknesses and, besides, having an eye to future economies, promptly absolved her.

Letter From Carrie Osborn Searles.

Elizabeth, New Jersey, April 4th.

The following letter received Wednesday, will be of interest to many of the older people of Tecumseh and vicinity who knew Mrs. Searles in her girlhood. Also the many who will remember Will Whitehead, whose death she announces. We are always glad to hear from the old-time friends, and to publish their letters.

To the Editor the Tecumseh Herald:

I enclose a little notice of the death of Will Whitehead. I thought his old friends would be glad to hear of him, even if it were only to know that God had said, "It is enough—Come up Higher"

Tecumseh is still a dear name to me, although I have been away from her for over fifty years. And I have much enjoyed the reminiscences by some of my old school fellows, which have appeared in the Herald from time to time.

I am living in Elizabeth with my cousin, Mrs. Ella Sholes-Moir, who gets the Herald regularly. But, I realize that there are but few of the pupils left who attended the "Old University," when Prof. Estabrook taught.

Wm. Wesley Whitehead, familiarly known in Tecumseh, as Will, passed away last Wednesday morning, March 13th, aged 69. He was born in Tecumseh and spent a large part of his early manhood there. He was a fine musician, of a genial sunny disposition, and a fine mechanical workman; and well loved by all who knew him. He was in the civil war, and his old comrades of the G. A. R. held a very impressive service at All Saint's church, Mariner's Harbor, Staten Island, on Sunday, April 3.

His remains were taken to Jersey City and buried beside his wife and little ones. The VanHouten Post, G. A. R. of that city held an impressive service at his grave and gave him their last salute—sounding "Taps" and covering him with "Old Glory." One by one they go. Soon the last will follow.

He leaves three children in Mariner's Harbor, two sons and one daughter, and hosts of friends.

Hillsdale and Grand Rapids papers please publish.

Carrie Osborn Searles.

AN INTERVIEW

With The Saloon Men of Tecumseh, Proves that they are Manly As to the Result of Election.

There has been so much wondering and inquiry about the disposition of the various buildings so soon to be vacated by the saloon, that we have been making inquiry and have learned that W. F. Scott of Detroit, is negotiating for the Lowery place for a Picture Show. They have also had several applications to rent it.

Barrett Bros., expect to use theirs, but cannot report under two weeks.

Eugene Service will rent his place, has had several desirable applicants already.

Robt. McClelland has not yet decided what he will do.

Ed. Hand will occupy his place, but has not quite decided just what he will do.

The Wyckoff & Avery firm will go out of business. Mr. Avery will go more extensively into the wood and coal business, has bought some land of L. I. Bidwell, and is putting up sheds, etc., for the new ventures.

Keysor & Sutfin have not come to any decision as yet. Their place is not so desirable for other business, but they hope they may be able to rent it.

People are under the impression that all the fixtures used belong to the Breweries, but we have learned that only one saloon in town has these fixtures—the others owning their own.

TECUMSEH OPEN EVENINGS

We the undersigned, believing it to be for the best interests of Tecumseh and an accomadation to the public during the summer months, agree to keep our respective places of business OPEN EVENINGS, beginning April 11th and continuing until October 15th.

ITCHING ECZEMA WASHED AWAY

Stomach Dead, Man Still Lives

People who suffer from sour stomach, fermentation of food, distress after eating and indigestion, and seek relief in large chunks of artificial digestors, are killing their stomachs by inaction just as surely as the victim of morphine is deadening and injuring beyond repair every nerve in his body.

What the stomach of every sufferer from indigestion needs is a good prescription that will build up his stomach, put strength, energy and elasticity into it, and make it sturdy enough to digest a hearty meal without artificial aid.

The best prescription for indigestion ever written is sold by druggists everywhere and by C. A. Wright & Son., and is rigidly guaranteed to build up the stomach and cure indigestion, or money back.

This prescription is named Mi-o-na, and is sold in small tablet form in large boxes, for only 50 cents. Remember the name, Mi-o-na stomach tablets. They never fail. They contain ingredients that give quick relief (other than strong digesters), but they are compounded for the purpose of making the stomach strong and energetic enough to do its work without the aid of harmful drugs.

Stomach Muscles In Old Age

How Old People May Retain or Restore Good Health

Usually the bowels are not so active in middle or advanced years as in youth. Just as the eyes grow dim, the skin wrinkled, the hair gray, the muscles flabby, so do the internal organs show their age if we could but see them.

However we sometimes find a person whose age is near the meted three-score and ten and yet his step is sprightly, his eye keen, his flesh firm, his appetite good and his bowels regular, and upon close questioning you will find a life's history of right-living, good food, keen appetite, perfect digestion and regular bowel action.

Regular bowels and proper digestion of the food we eat is absolutely necessary to the enjoyment of good health by old or young. If the readers of this article are interested, we are glad to tell them how they can restore good health and prolong their lives.

Step into a drug store and purchase a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It will cleanse the bowels of any waste matter that has clogged them up and restore to them strength and nerve force for regular natural daily action. It aids digestion by stimulating the stomach and digestive glands to a proper and sufficient secretion of the fluids necessary to perfect digestion. It acts on the liver and kidneys in a mild, quiet yet effective manner. Rev. A. J. Fletcher, of Rutherford, Tenn., is 80 years old, and it cured him of 40 years of dyspepsia. W. W. Sterling, Sioux City, Ia., says: "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the best medicine I ever used and I am 88 years old." B. F. Thompson, Shenandoah, Ia., says: "I suffered 15 years with dyspepsia and it cured me." It is certain and effective in the most obstinate old cases, and yet mild and safe for the most delicate woman or child. All druggists sell it at 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Pepsin Syrup Co., 304 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill., is glad to send a free sample to any one who has never used it and will give it a fair trial.
